SHIP TORPEDOED AS LOS ANGELES THRONGS WATCH

Jap Sub Attacks It Near Shore.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24 [Special].—Hundreds of watchers on shore near Long Beach today witnessed an enemy submarine's torpedo attack on the 5,700 ton freighter Absaroka which badly crippled the American ship and cost the life of one crewman.

While the damaged ship was being towed to port, naval authorities said they had unconfirmed reports that two other lumber schooners were attacked in California waters today. They were the Barbara C and the Dorothy Phillips. Both ships made port altho the latter was damaged.

American planes dropped depth charges in the vicinity of the attack on the Absaroka with undisclosed results. Some watchers said the submarine remained surfaced so long after the attack that they believed it was damaged, but others said it submerged quickly when the planes approached.

Tugs Haul It to Port.

The Absaroka, owned by the McCormick line, began settling rapidly after being struck but tugs, which sped out from shore, immediately took it in tow and hauled it into port.

The casualty was identified as Joseph Ryan, 63 years old, of San Francisco. He was killed by falling lumber when the freighter's cargo shifted several minutes after the attack.

Vivid stories of the attack were told by crewmen of the Absaroka as the freighter, with a hole in its side large enough to drive an automobile thru, was being towed toward shore. Twenty-four of the crew of 35 were brought ashore in a coast guard cutter while the captain and the others remained aboard.

Crew Could See Shore.

The seamen said they were close enough to see the shore just before the attack and most of them were discussing plans for Christmas and expressing relief that "we got thru this time."

Joseph Scott, 46, of Portland, Ore., survivor of four torpedo attacks in the first World war, said he first thought the submarine was a whale but then yelled "There's a Jap submarine."

"She was coming head-on," he related. "Suddenly her periscope went up and she shot a torpedo. I've seen torpedoes come at me before. I said, 'They've wasted that one, and sure enough it went wide. But then came another. I could see it was going to get us."

Hit on Starboard Side.

Harry Greenwald, 44, said he saw the explosive streaking thru the water and a moment later the projectile cracked the steamer's starboard side opposite the third of its four masts.

Lumber flew in all directions, showering down upon Greenwald and his companions, Ryan and Marshall Mansfield. The Absaroka listed sharply, plunging Greenwald and Mansfield overboard.

One shore eyewitness, Sergt. J. E. Hegwood, a policeman, said that he and others were watching the Absaroka when the torpedo struck. He said a fountain of water shot up about 100 feet high at the stern of the freighter and it was swung around from the force of the blow.

Schooner Reaches Port.

Authorities who received reports of attacks on the other two lumber schooners said the four masted Dorothy Phillips, down by the stern but proceeding under her own power, entered a California port tonight. The extent or cause of her damage had not been determined but it was believed she was the schooner reported to the navy as having been disabled by a submarine in the vicinity of the Absaroka torpedoing.

An officer of the schooner Barbara C said his vessel was fired upon near the Absaroka but that he was unable to determine whether the wild shots came from a submarine or were being fired at a nearby submersible by shore batteries.

The torpedoing of the Absaroka was the ninth enemy submarine attack on American vessels in Pacific waters since the outbreak of the war with Japan on Dec. 7.

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN NORTHERN MALAYA, Dec. 21 [Delayed].—Japanese attacks in Malaya sound like July 4th celebrations. In addition to firing orthodox weapons as they advance, they send parties out on the flanks to discharge strings of giant firecrackers in the dense underbrush of the steaming jungle. The object is to confuse the British, making them think the attack is coming from all directions.

They also have a trick of climbing coconut palms, wrapping themselves in long leaves, and lying in wait for British empire troops.

Woe to the man on the ground who happens to glance upward. His white face makes a gleaming target for a shot from the automatic weapons most of the yellow soldiers are carrying.

Suicide Cyclists Court Fire.

Then, too, suicide squads of three or four Japanese soldiers on bicycles often ride down jungle paths in an attempt to draw the fire of British

British Batter Bengazi; News of Other Fronts

British troops in Libya yesterday were fighting at the gates of Bengazi after capturing the big axis airdromes at Benina and Barce. Four Italian divisions are penned up in Bengazi. German armored units were reported trapped in an attempted flight to Tripoli, far to the west. British planes operated all the way to Tripoli and hammered scattered axis columns which had escaped the trap.

The Russian offensive moved ahead with the main smashes delivered against the Germans at Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow. Orel is a strategically important communications center midway between Moscow and Kharkov. The Germans admitted Russian break-thrus, but claimed some wedges were broken off by counterattacks.

Hongkong Garrison Holds.

The British garrison of Hongkong, fighting on in disregard of overwhelming Japanese forces, reported it had won a series of local encounters and had set ablaze Japanese naval fuel tanks on the mainland at Kowloon.

The British defense line 300 miles north of Singapore was reported to have fought the Japanese Malayan advance to a standstill. British airmen and some Americans, presumably those defending the Burma road, pounded the invaders from the air. Dutch bombers sank another Japanese transport off Borneo—their 13th Nipponese victim. Tokio claimed Japanese bombers destroyed 21 planes in a second raid on Rangoon, Burma.

The story of how 385 American marines with 12 fighter planes held off superior Japanese invading forces for 14 days at Wake Island was told by the United States navy department which conceded the island probably had fallen into enemy hands. Thirteen raids were repulsed from Dec. 9 to Dec. 23 when the Japanese landed. In the attacks the Japanese lost a light cruiser and three destroyers.

Where Japanese Have Grip.

After eighteen days of war Japan is conceded to hold two American island possessions in the Pacific — Wake and Guam—and to have made numerous landings and offensive gains on American and British territory. Here is what the Japanese have done:

In the Philippines the invaders have established beachheads on Luzon island at Aparri, Vigan, Legaspi, the Lingayen gulf shore, at three points southeast of Manila and at Davao on Mindanao island.

After seizing British Kowloon the Japanese crossed to Hongkong island and are besieging the garrison.

The Japanese after landings in Thailand have moved southward toward Singapore and westward toward Burma.

Dutch Possessions Attacked.

Japanese planes have attacked the Dutch East Indies possessions of New Guinea, Celebes, Java, and Sumatra.

In the east central Pacific the American islands of Oahu and Maui of the Hawaiian group, and the Midways, Johnston, Palmyra and Baker have been attacked by Japanese naval units or planes.

Japanese submarines are known to have sunk three American ships, the freighters Cynthia Olson and Lahaina and the tanker Montebello, in the eastern Pacific. Six other ships—and possibly two more—have been attacked, all except one of them close to the California shore.

CHRIST IS BORN

(The following story of the Savior's birth is made up of selections of Bible verses, beginning with an ancient prophecy. The King James version of the Bible is used. The arrangement makes a connected narration of the "greatest news-story ever told.")

ISAIAH'S PROPHECY.

"Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." Isaiah vii., 14. "* * * and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and His name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of His government and peace there shall be no end." Isaiah ix., 6, 7.

THE ANNUNCIATION.

"And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

"And the angel came in unto her and said, 'Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: blessed art thou among women.' And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

"And the angel said unto her, 'Fear not, Mary, for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shall call His name JESUS. He shall be great, and shall be called the son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto Him the throne of His father David. And He shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." St. Luke i., 26 to 33.

MARY'S RESPONSE.

"My soul doth magnify the Lord,

"And my spirit hath rejoiced in God my saviour.

"For He hath regarded the low estate of His handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations shall call me blessed.

"For He that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is His name." St. Luke i., 46 to 49.

THE NATIVITY.

"And she brought forth her first-born son * * * And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid.

"And the angel said unto them, 'Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord.' And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying.

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men." St. Luke ii., 7 to 11, and 13, 14.

9 KILLED, 18 HURT IN EXPLOSION OF BUS AT ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 25 [Thursday] (AP).—A street railway company bus exploded and burned after a collision with an automobile early today, killing nine persons and injuring 18 others.

All of the injured suffered first or second degree burns. Not a person was rescued from the bus uninjured.

Witnesses said the bus swerved to avoid a collision with an automobile, struck a parked car and was deflected into an apartment biulding wall.

PUBLIC ASKED TO AVOID LONG. DISTANCE CALLS

National defense requirements are so great that officials of the Illinois Bell Telephone company requested last night that the public refrain from putting in long distance calls today except in cases of necessity.

The situation was particularly acute with regard to points west of the Mississippi. The telephone company warned that greeting calls to soldiers and sailors in the west might not get thru and were almost certain to be delayed many hours.

Report Free French Seize Isles Near U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 24.—Free French naval forces under Adm. Emile Muselier have taken over the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, off the southern coast of Newfoundland, in a surprise landing, according to radio reports received here from several sources tonight.

Landing parties from four Free French warships, which went over to Britain with Gen. Charles de Gaulle when France was defeated, carried out the raid and took over strategic points on the islands, according to the radio. Among the first places reported occupied were the governor's residence, the telegraph and wireless offices, and the police stations.

Miquelon consists of two islands, which with nearby St. Pierre cover an area of 93 square miles. The islands have a population of 4,000.

A Speedy Seizure.

Occupation of the islands took little more than half an hour, the reports said, with many residents welcoming the sailors and marines ashore.

The following communique was reported issued by Adm. Muselier:

"Inhabitants of the French islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon: Conforming to Gen. De Gaulle's orders I have come to let you take part freely and in due order in a plebiscite for which you have begged for so long. You may now choose between the course of Free French and the course of collaboration with the axis powers who starve, humiliate and martyrize our country.

"Long Live the Allies."

"There is no doubt in my mind that the oldest territory overseas will side with Great Britain, the United States, Canada, and our other allies and will show en masse its loyalty to the traditions of honor and liberty which have always been the pride of France. Long live France; Long live the allies!"

It was reported that the plebiscite will be held tomorrow, with all males 18 years of age and over permitted to vote. It was said that should the islands cast their ballots in favor of the French government of Marshal Petain in Vichy, the Free French forces will withdraw.

The Free French expedition was reported to have sailed in great secrecy from various parts of the world, with Adm. Muselier and his staff arriving from England aboard a 1,000 ton corvette [small warship].

TWO BIG BATTLES RAGE FOR MANILA

14 Philippine Towns Bombed from Air.

MANILA, Dec. 25 [Thursday] (AP).—American army forces with Gen. Douglas MacArthur personally in the field staved off Japanese advances toward Manila from both the north and south this Christmas day, but the invaders continued to land in such numbers that they left no doubt that the battle for this Philippine capital itself now is on.

Bitter fighting occurred thruout yesterday in both the Lingayen sector, about 125 miles north and west of Manila, and in the Atimonan area, 75 miles to the southeast.

Skirmish at Night.

Only minor skirmishes occurred during the night, however, the army command announced in a communique, and a spokesman added that there were no important changes in the front line positions overnight. The statement said:

"It was a very quiet night, but there still was Japanese pressure both north and south. Practically the only activity overnight was small skirmishes by patrols."

Earlier it was said that Japanese reinforcements continued landing in the Lingayen and Atimonan sectors.

Gen. MacArthur's communiques yesterday said "very heavy fighting continues on the north and south fronts. In both areas our troops are resisting stubbornly against great odds."

Fourteen Towns Raided.

Fourteen towns were reported bombed in widespread Japanese air raids. Among those attacked were the railroad centers of Cabanatuan, Nueva Ecija province, and Calamba in Luguna province. Other strategic points were bombed in Pangasian, Tarlac and Tayabas provinces. Scores were killed or wounded, including more than 20 known dead in Manila.

The first of the day's raids was by nine Japanese bombers which hit the port area with heavy bombs and left black smoke rising. There was an explosion that shook the city, but American anti-aircraft guns threw aloft a tremendous barrage and one of the attacking craft crashed.

Appearing over Fort McKinley, the assailants were driven off by heavy ground fire, and dropped no bombs there.

Japs Admit Fierce Struggle.

TOKIO, Dec. 24 (AP).—Imperial headquarters today acknowledged the Japanese were locked in a fierce struggle in the Philippines but they declared successes at all points "and absolute supremacy of sea, air and land" indicated the Philippines' "inevitable" capture.

JAPS 50 MILES AWAY; 100 SHIPS BRING NEW ARMY

Two More Landings on Luzon Coast.

BULLETINS.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 25 (Thursday) (AP).—An unofficial indication that belligerents consider Manila already an open city was seen today when three waves of Japanese bombers circled over the capital for an hour and neither dropped bombs nor drew anti-aircraft fire.

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 25 (11:05 A. M. Thursday) (AP).—A United States army spokesman said today that "the enemy continues to be re-enforced" but declared that while fighting continued on all fronts there had been no material change in the situation. He said he was "surprised how quiet it has been overnight."

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—The war department said today Gen. Douglas MacArthur had reported Japanese troops had landed in two additional areas on the Island of Luzon, and consideration was being given to the withdrawal of the commonwealth government and military forces from Manila.

The war department said the withdrawal of the island government and military forces from the capital would make it possible to declare Manila an open city and thus spare the civilian residents from aerial bombardment.

Two More Landings.

The text of the evening communique follows:

"1. Philippine theater: The commanding general, United States forces in the far east, reports that Japanese troops today landed in two additional areas on the Island of Luzon. One landing was accomplished near Mauban, about 30 miles north of Atimonan, where troops landed last night. The other landing was effected near Nasugbu in Batangas province, on the west side of Luzon, 50 miles southwest of Manila.

"Beach heads previously seized by the invaders are being rapidly enlarged as landing forces are augmented.

Great Armada Sighted.

"Heavy fighting continues near the Lingayen gulf where the main invasion effort is being made. Tho American and Philippine troops are greatly outnumbered, they are offering stiff resistance to the Japanese forces in a series of delaying actions.

"It is estimated that at least 100 enemy transports, in several convoys, are now in waters around the Philippine Islands. Each of these fleets of troopships is accompanied by strong naval and air escort.

May Declare Open City.

"Intense enemy air activity continues in the Manila area. Consideration is being given to the withdrawal of the commonwealth government and military forces from Manila. This would make it possible to declare Manila an open city and spare the civilian residents unnecessary casualties from aerial bombardment.

"2. There is nothing to report from other areas."

In an earlier communique today the war department told of the appearance of enemy troop ships off Batangas and Japanese landings near Atimonan.

Military observers saw in the several Japanese landings an effort to press upon Manila from two or more directions in a pincers movement, thereby compelling MacArthur to divide his meager forces and meet the enemy on several fronts simultaneously.

There remained complete silence about the situation at Davao, port on the Island of Mindanao where the Japanese landed in force last week.

RULES FOR 'OPEN CITY'

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

If Manila is declared an open city as expected, that capital would be neutralized under international law, with the occupants refraining from military operations and the enemy enjoined from attacking it.

The main guarantee behind the declaration is that the open city contains no legitimate military objectives. The general rule as enacted by The Hague convention declares: "Aerial [and other] bombardment is legitimate only when directed at a military objective, that is to say, an object the destruction or injury of which would constitute a distinct military advantage to the belligerent.

The purpose of the open city declaration is to avoid destruction and civilian causualties. The open city thus goes intact to the winner of the battle for it, which must be waged outside the city itself. Paris was saved by this means after the Germans bombed it systemically once, and other cities in Europe fell to the Nazis more or less intact. Rotterdam and Belgrade were declared open before the Germans destroyed a great part of them in mass bombings.

BANKS RUN OUT OF BLANKS FOR BOND BUYERS

The avalanche of defense bond buying set off by the outbreak of war has created a scarcity of blank bonds in the $25, $50, and $100 denominations, Norman B. Collins, state administrator of defense savings for the treasury department, said yesterday.

"There are few banks and other issuing agents in Illinois which can furnish one of the low denomination bonds," Collins said. "The public rush to help finance the war has been so heavy that the government engraving office fell far behind actual sales. Most banks are accepting applications and issuing receipts for the money invested. Customers have to wait for the bonds until the blanks are supplied."

Clifford S. Young, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, said the seventh [Chicago area] federal reserve district has been receiving from 15,000 to 30,000 blanks for defense bonds daily. These have been allocated among the 2,600 banks and other issuing agents in the district.

Supplies of the blanks probably will catch up with the demand in a week.

War Perils May Compel Evacuation of Alcatraz

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Alcatraz prison, "the rock" in San Francisco bay reserved for the toughest of the 15,000 federal convicts, may be abandoned or used for less dangerous prisoners because of the possibility of token air raids in the San Francisco bay area.

TORRANCE FREED IN WIFE'S DEATH, FACES REARREST

Higher Court Acts as Trial Is On.

MONTERREY, Mexico, Dec. 24 (AP).—Federal Judge Ramirez Wiella today ordered the release of Dr. Arthur Torrance, holding there was insufficient evidence to support a charge the 54 year old explorer-writer murdered his wife, a former Kalamazoo, Mich., widow.

State Judge Jesus B. Santos had already begun the formal trial of Dr. Torrance when his attorneys appealed Judge Santos' decision. The federal judge issued an order to Judge Santos' court saying the detention was improper and that Dr. Torrance should be released.

Rearrest Probable.

Judge Santos said he would comply with the order to release Torrance but would immediately rearrest him. The state judge said since his first action in ordering Torrance held for trial he had accumulated additional evidence against him which had not been presented to the federal judge when he was considering Torrance's appeal.

Dr. Torrance was arrested six weeks ago after his bride of a month died in a Monterrey hospital. He told police she was injured when she swerved their limousine into a ditch to avoid a cow on the road.

Son Made Complaint.

Acting on the complaint of Richard Loveland of Los Angeles, a government attorney and the dead woman's son, police held Dr. Torrance. Loveland expressed the suspicion that his mother had been murdered.

Subsequently, police found a broken thermos bottle and bloodstains in the car. Furthermore, they reported the car did not show any evidence of having been in an accident.

RAIL SWITCHMAN FOUND DEAD.

Roy Garrard, 50 years old, a switchman living at 6300 South Central avenue, was found dead yesterday beside the Belt railway tracks near 69th street and Central avenue. Police believe he was killed when his clothing caught on a passing train.

JAP RADIO TELLS OF 'ATROCITIES' AT HANDS OF U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 24.—An atrocity propaganda campaign against the United States is being carried on over the official Tokio radio thru broadcasts charging misconduct by United States forces in the Philippines. The broadcasts have been recorded here.

A dispatch of the official news agency, Domei, broadcast yesterday, charged that Japanese forces discovered on landing at Davao that 17,000 Japanese, including women and children, had been imprisoned without food and were on the verge of starvation. The Japanese said they liberated about 12,000 and learned that the others were cold bloodedly machine gunned or kidnaped.

Again today the Tokio radio referred to this "incident," reporting that 6,000 Japanese, mostly women, were missing and probably had been abducted by the Americans.

1 YANK'S SCORE: 4 PLANES DOWN, 2 SHIPS BOMBED

Story of Maj. O'Donnell's Feat Disclosed.

MANILA, Dec. 24 (AP).—The story behind a terse official announcement crediting Maj. Emmett O'Donnell Jr. with the destruction of four Japanese airplanes was disclosed today as new tales of heroic deeds by American aviators filtered in.

O'Donnell, whose home is in New York City, was piloting a big bomber on a flight against Japanese naval units off Legaspi when he was attacked by a swarm of fighter planes.

In the face of heavy odds, O'Donnell maneuvered his plane so skillfully that four of the speedy Japanese fighters were picked off by his crew—an unusual feat for a bomber.

O'Donnell then pressed home his attack on the Japanese sea forces despite heavy anti-aircraft fire, and scored bomb hits on two transports before turning his bullet riddled plane for home, with one of his crew dead and seven wounded.

Altho both tires on his landing wheels were flat, O'Donnell succeeded in landing safely at his base.

A SCOTCH STORY: JAP EMBASSY'S SANTA 'FROZEN'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—A doleful Christmas was in prospect tonight for the 20 or more subjects of the Son of Heaven under guard at the Japanese embassy here.

They had expected to be transferred during the day to a comfortable hotel at White Sulphur Springs, Va., where attachés of the German embassy are already installed, but evening arrived without orders for the transfer.

Meanwhile it was reliably reported that the embassy has run out of Scotch whisky—40 cases since Dec. 7—and that the staff, its funds exhausted and credit frozen, is unable to buy more. Adding to the embassy woe Yoskiki Iwamoto, 20 years old, daughter of the embassy chef, told police she had been robbed of six kimonas, four house coats and two sashes, all taken from a car parked nearby.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SALE OF BONDS BY TRIBUNE OFF TO GOOD START

Tailors in One Shop Buy $25,000 Worth.

Tailor shop employés of Maurice L. Rothschild company, State street clothiers, yesterday gave THE TRIBUNE'S sale of defense bonds and stamps a running start by subscribing for nearly $25,000 worth. Other citizens eager to equip the Yanks brought in $2,550 to The Tribune Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street and in Tribune Tower.

"Employés learning of the convenient new locations for bond sales wanted to act fast to give the American armed forces a Christmas present," said David Mayer Jr., president of the Rothschild company. "The salespeople were too busy, so that most of those who had time to buy bonds today were from the tailor shop.

American Way Proved Again.

"This 100 per cent response of the tailor shop employés demonstrates that voluntary efforts are again the most successful. After the holiday I am sure that our other employés will follow thru with their expressed intention to help our government by buying bonds."

One employé, Karl Tregner, 2333 South Avers avenue, yesterday received a letter from his son, Adolph, a marine at Pearl Harbor. News that his son is safe inspired Tregner to buy two bonds at $375 each. Louis Stein, 515 Maple avenue, Wilmette, bought two $750 bonds. Only 25 per cent of this group of workers bought the smallest denomination—$18.75.

The Public Service office at Dearborn and Madison streets sold out its supplies of defense stamps twice, sending to the postoffice for more each time. More than $1,200 was taken in for stamps in denominations of 10, 25, 50 cents and $1. These are to be saved in books until there are enough to exchange for interest-bearing defense bonds.

Place for Christmas Money.

Today the tower office will be open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. for those wishing to invest Christmas cash in this form of combined personal and national security. At the redemption date 10 years hence the $18.75 bonds are worth $25. The value of larges ones increases accordingly.

Many more Chicago companies announced yesterday that they were giving defense bonds and stamps as Christmas bonuses to employés. The Kropp Forge company, 5301 Roosevelt road, gave $29,025 to 511 workers.

Among the others were: Kelso-Burnett Electric company, 223 West Jackson boulevard; Minerallac Electric company, 25 North Peoria street; John J. Moroney & Co., 2825 Harrison street; Superior Sleeprite corporation, 2219 South Halsted street; W. R. Brown corporation, 5720 Armitage avenue.

Perfection Tool Hardening company, 1742 Hubbard street; Harrington-King Perforating company, 5655 Fillmore street; Sampson Electric company, 3201 South Michigan avenue; Crown Steel Sales, Inc., 1229 East 74th street; Sundstrom Pressed Steel company, 8030 South Chicago avenue, and McNulty Brothers company, 1028 Van Buren street.

Norman B. Collins, Illinois administrator of the defense saving staff, announced the following result of the judges' bond drive in Cook county: Circuit court, $261,550; Superior court, $96,105, and Municipal court, $43,495.

IN KNOX'S SOCK: BOOK ON HOW TO OPERATE A NAVY

It's the Primer of Warfare Used by Japanese.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox will receive in his stocking tomorrow a copy of "Mahan on Naval Warfare" [Little, Brown & Co.]. The book is a primer and also the highest authority on theories and practices of combat at sea.

The donor was a supporter of Knox as Republican candidate for Vice President. He said he thought the secretary should read the book with the recent Pearl Harbor calamity in mind. The text emphasizes responsibilities of the secretary of navy.

Lessons Basically Modern.

The author, Rear Adm. Alfred Thayer Mahan, U. S. N., died in 1914, but as explained in this 1941 edition in an introduction by the editor, Prof. Allan Westcott, United States Naval academy, the lessons are basicly modern. Mahan is studied by the officers of all navies and, quoting the introduction, "perhaps most diligently studied by officers of the Japanese navy." The full significance of this quotation will become apparent as you read further.

In a chapter entitled "Principles of Naval Administrations," the author makes declarations that some readers are now applying to the punishment the Pacific fleet received on being surprised by the Japanese at Hawaii on Dec. 7. Mahan describes the navy secretary as one man in whom responsibility is centered for all affairs of the navy.

Test Is in Readiness.

"In the United States naval administration," reads the text, "the head is one man, with no division of responsibility."

"The test of naval administration," reads another paragraph, "is not the satisfactory or economical working of the office, as such, but the readiness of the navy in all points for war."

Knox, on the day the Japanese struck but before news of the disaster reached America, issued to newspapers a copy of his annual report, a glowing account of the efficiency of his administration.

"There is a quaint, well worn story," Mahan wrote, "which yet may be new to some readers, of an administrator who complained that his office was working admirably until war came and threw everything out of gear."

Raps Official Tardiness.

The old admiral also had things to say about tardiness in adopting new weapons that might be applied to the Japanese emphasis on airplanes and carriers while the American policy has retained faith in the big battleships with their recently proved vulnerability to air attack.

"Changes in tactics," he wrote in reference to a lull in adaptation of new weapons, "have to overcome the inertia of a conservation class . . . a great evil. History shows that it is vain to hope that military men generally will be at the pains to do this, but that the one who does will go into battle with a great advantage—a lesson in itself of no mean value."

Mahan wrote vigorously against the "two ocean navy" policy, which has been adopted by the present administration.

Battered Freighter Nears Port After Jap Torpedo Attack Off California Coast

RECRUITING MEN GET THEIR FIRST BREATHING SPELL

Army, navy and marine recruiting stations yesterday had their first breathing spell since the war was declared more than two weeks ago. Enlistments dropped off to a mere trickle because of Christmas, and the office staffs were able to close up early in the afternoon. However, the recruiting depots will be open 24 hours a day again starting Friday.

A full-blooded Ottawa Indian, Richard C. Cobb, 25 years old, of South Bend, Ind., was among the 16 men recruited by the navy yesterday.

Army recruiting officers reported that 20 men were accepted for service during the day. Marine corps authorities said they swore in six men.

Santa Claus, Ind., Dec. 24 (AP).—Most wistful of 12,000 letters to Santa Claus answered by an 8th district American Legion committee was from Tommy Thedenow of Madison, Ind.

On one side of the paper Tommy wrote:

"Dear Santa, please bring me a pony and saddle and please bring me a gun and that is all."

On the other side:

"Santa, I hate to tell you this but my daddy says please bring him a bundle of switches."

President Approves Bill to Buy Food for Hawaii

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—A 512 million dollar defense appropriation bill, carrying funds for a big expansion of defense housing and an outlay to build up emergency food reserves for Hawaii's civilian population, was signed into law today by President Roosevelt.

Two Are Held on Charge of Liquor Sale to Minor

Joseph Musacci, 50 years old, owner of a tavern at 2029 West Van Buren street, and John A. Cecchini, 27 of 2740 Gladys avenue, his bartender, were held by the Warren avenue police yesterday on the complaint that they had served a 14 year old boy intoxicating liquor.

TELL HOW WAKE MARINES FOUGHT OFF FOE 14 DAYS

Hail 385 Heroes, but Fear Isle Is Lost.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—The Wake Island garrison of United States Marines which withstood the battering of 14 Japanese attacks by sea and air, sinking four enemy warships and writing another heroic chapter in the history of American arms, numbered 385 men, including medical officers, the navy department revealed today.

Maj. J. P. S. Devereux.

Radio communication with the tiny coral atoll in the far reaches of the Pacific has been severed and capture of the outpost is probable, the department announced following Japanese claims that the island has been occupied. The enemy admitted that the defenders exacted heavy toll in the sinking of two destroyers during final landing operations.

Shell Two More Islands.

Shelling of Palmyra and Johnston Islands in the central Pacific by enemy submarines also was reported by the navy today. Damage to Palmyra was declared to be negligible, and there was no damage to material at Johnston Island. There were no casualties, according to communique No. 17.

The intrepid garrison on Wake Island was under the command of Maj. James Patrick Sinnott Devereux, the navy revealed. There were 13 marine officers, 365 marines, a naval medical officer and six naval medical ratings.

The tools with which they met overwhelming odds and carved a niche for themselves in the military annals of America consisted, the navy announced, of 12 fighter planes, 6 5-inch guns, 12 3-inch anti-aircraft guns, 18 .50 caliber anti-aircraft machine guns and 30 .30 caliber anti-aircraft machine guns, plus the usual light weapons such as rifles and pistols.

Ranked With Great Heroes.

This incredibly small force, said the department, repulsed "all out Japanese attacks" from Dec. 9 to Dec. 23. Already they are being compared to the heroic defenders of the Alamo and the men who fought to the last with Gen. Custer. The fate of those who remained alive after two weeks of sustained onslaught is not known.

News of the first attack on Wake, valued as a potential sea and air base and a stepping stone to the far east, was made public by the navy Dec. 11, with the announcement that it had withstood four separate attacks in the preceding 48 hours by Japanese aircraft and naval units.

It was in this stage that the marines announced they had sent the first enemy destroyer and a light cruiser to the bottom. The weakened Pacific fleet could not go to the rescue of the defenders, 2,320 miles west of Honolulu; so the marines were on their own.

Day after day came the thrilling message across the waters of the Pacific: "Wake Island continues to resist!"

Certain to become an American legend is the garrison's reply when asked what it needed most.

"Send us some more Japs!", they answered.

In congress, these words were described as being in keeping with the highest traditions of the country's military service. Rep. Clarence Cannon [D., Mo.] asserted the reply will rank with Perry's laconic: "We have met the enemy and they are ours." And Farragut's order: "Damn the torpedoes. Go ahead."

Yesterday, however, the navy's communiques took a different tone. The department confirmed previous Japanese claims that the enemy had effected its first landing in its 14th attack in as many days. After that silence. But until today's communique, which admitted that the island probably was captured, there had been a last hope that the doughty marines had succeeded in pushing the foe back into the sea.

MEXICAN SENATE RATIFIES DECREE FOR U. S. USE OF PORTS

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 24.—The Mexican senate today unanimously ratified the presidential decree permitting the use of Mexican harbors and soil by the armed forces of any American republic at war with a non-American power. The Mexican government held that this action was in line with the agreements reached at the Havana conference.

The senate's action is expected to be followed by intensification of coöperation between the United States and Mexico, especially on the Pacific coast where Japanese, ostensibly fishermen, are believed to be engaged in espionage and possibly as supply bases for submarines. No American forces are now on Mexican soil.

American warships and seaplanes are expected to use Mexican harbors for refueling, while Mexican airports will be available for the American air force as stopping points between Panama and the United States.

ASKS CONGRESS TO GIVE TROOPS FREE POSTAGE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Postmaster General Frank C. Walker recommended to congress today that letters written and mailed by soldiers, sailors, and marines assigned to duty outside of the continental United States be carried free of postage.

At the same time, Walker announced that preferential postage rates on air mail and parcel post carried to and from American forces stationed outside of the United States will be placed in effect immediately.

The domestic air mail rate of 6 cents a half ounce will apply to all matter carried by airplane to and from the armed forces stationed outside this country, including transportation of mail to and from air mail routes.

Fourth class postal and parcel post matter sent to service men at leased bases, aboard ships, or any other place outside the United States where the air mail operates, will be chargeable at the fourth class rates.

Hold Hearing on Free Rides for Men in Uniform Jan. 13

The city's petition before the Illinois Commerce commission to permit men in military uniform to ride free on the elevated, surface and bus lines in Chicago has been set for hearing Jan. 13, it was announced yesterday. It had been erroneously stated Tuesday that the free transportation privilege was already in operation.

POLITICAL PARTY ASKS FULL MOBILIZATION OF CHINA FOR PACIFIC WAR

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 24 (AP).—Full mobilization of China's tremendous manpower to provide millions more men to be thrown into the Pacific war was demanded in a manifesto published today by the central executive committee of the Kuomintang, China's dominant political party, as it closed an eight-day session.

The manifesto vigorously indorsed the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic charter, to the fulfillment of which it pledged "the utmost measure of China's manpower and resources."

It declared that China never would conclude a separate peace but would fight on "until the aggressor nations are disarmed, equal economic opportunity for all peoples assured, and a world order based on peace is assured."

[China is believed to have 4,000,000 men under arms, a large proportion of them poorly equipped. About half of China's 450,000,000 population lives in Japanese dominated territory.]

35 Killed as Train Jumps Tracks in South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Dec. 24 (AP).—More than 35 natives were killed and scores injured today when a train crowded with Christmas travelers jumped the rails outside this city.

WARN SABOTEURS MAY STRIKE THIS CHRISTMAS MORN

A warning that saboteurs may strike this Christmas morning in an attempt to cripple Chicago manufacturing plants engaged in armament work was issued yesterday by Col. Donald Armstrong, deputy chief of the Chicago ordnance district.

"The district office has been warned of definite acts of sabotage planned for Christmas morning as the time when plant protection might be less than usual," Col. Armstrong said yesterday. "Plant guards, citizens in general, and local police are asked to be especially vigilant at that time to prevent such treachery."

Col. Armstrong said the ordnance district office at 38 South Dearborn street would be kept open all Christmas day. He would not say how he received the warning of possible sabotage.

Japs Pledge 'Courteous' Conduct Toward Envoys

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—The Japanese government, in an official communication received by the state department today, declared its intention of treating American officials in Japan, Manchuria, and China fairly, courteously, and on a basis of reciprocity, pending their departure. It also said that American citizens are being treated fairly and courteously. The communication was received thru the Swish government, which is representing American interests in Japan.

JAPS WRAP UP IN LEAVES FOR A JUNGLE WAR

Tribune Man Describes Treetop Tricks.

troops. When the firing begins, other Japanese open up with mortars on empire positions.

However, I talked with a British general and he said empire casualties were remarkably small. He said the trouble was in getting at the enemy.

The Japanese, who are here in superior numbers, rarely fight a frontal action. They attack from the front, but they immediately send additional units to feel out the British flanks.

Fight Like American Indian.

Their methods are similar to those used by American Indians in pioneer days. The Japanese fight from behind trees, and are expert at infiltration along uncharted jungle paths. Thus they often get behind the defenders.

Streams as well as paths are used for this purpose, the Japanese floating down them in sampans and rubber boats. Most of the infiltration units never return to their lines, but they serve a purpose by adding to the general confusion.

Collapsible bicycles for speedy movement are part of the equipment of many of these units. At Singora, a number of Japanese from the Takahashi bicycle unit were captured. They were very pleased that they had been given a job which almost certainly involved death or capture.

Prefer Stealthy Approach.

I also learned these interesting facts:

The enemy is not using aircraft as a substitute for artillery, or in support of infantry, as the Germans have done. They prefer to advance quietly.

The Japanese mechanized units are using light armored automobiles carrying two men and equipped with machine guns and a mortar.

They also have a portable 4.5 inch infantry mortar which is quite effective. But, the British add, it goes off with a terrific bang which makes it sound twice as effective as it really is.

The Japanese do not like cold steel, and fade hastily before the bayonet.

Japanese sappers are very quick at replacing demolished bridges. One span was put back into service in four hours.

Push Southward on Roads.

The Japanese are pressing southward from Butterworth toward Taiping on several hard surfaced roads, and south from Grik toward Kuala Kangsar.

In falling back, the British are mining roads and bridges and destroying communications. Abandoned air fields have been blown up.

My own observations convince me British officers in command are not likely to die in bed. At an advanced position I stopped to talk with one who was inspecting a bridge preparatory to ordering it blown up. As we spoke the officer suddenly wheeled, pulled his pistol and shot a Japanese motorcyclist, who with two others, was attempting to dash across that very span. A member of the officer's staff shot another one of the Japs but the third dashed on into British territory, where, farther down the road, he was felled.

Lost Britons Trickle Back.

Many British officers and men who were separated and believed lost in the early days of the campaign are trickling back into the British lines. The Tribune correspondent was told of a platoon commander who brought back 20 men with all arms and equipment after several days behind the enemy lines.

One group of 12 Indian soldiers traveled a hundred miles in four days and nights. They had abandoned their rations, but obtained a boat and went to Penang, where they were given food and cigarets.

Obtaining another boat, they returned to the mainland, waded swamps, swam rivers and pushed their way thru almost impenetrable jungle back to their base. They were suffering from exhaustion and had been badly bitten by insects. Originally there were 14 of them, but two drowned while swimming streams.

One company was led out of the jungle by a Malayan native.

Plane Shoots Up Ambulance.

I saw an ambulance with 50 holes in it. The driver said the vehicle had been machine gunned by Japanese planes as it was picking up wounded at the Kota Bharu airdrome.

He also said he had heard that the body of a German pilot had been recovered from one of the Japanese planes brought down there, but that he hadn't seen the body himself.

I was accompanied on my tour of the front by two Australian and one British newspaperman. We left Kuala Lumpur in army staff cars under the leadership of a captain and a youthful officer who had been a London journalist. We were issued tin hats and gas masks.

Iron rations for seven days were taken on a baggage truck, as well as cots, mosquito nets, anti-malaria tablets and other equipment. Each correspondent carried a knapsack containing supplies sufficient for a trek thru the jungle in case he should be separated from the party, or in case our transport happened to be destroyed by the enemy.

Our first breakfast was eaten at a rest house, where a Chinese served sausages, eggs and coffee; but when some one asked for milk, he received, instead, a roar of laughter and was shown a framed notice on the wall. It read: "Not permitted to serve milk to children over 12." When we asked for fruit, our host laughed again, and pointed out a sign which barred fruits to adults.

BABY IS FOUND DEAD.

Robert Slaby, 1 year old, was found dead on a couch yesterday in the home of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Irva E. Slaby, at 477 Uvedale road, Riverside. Police said the child had evidently strangled when he became entangled in a strap that held his blanket.

Battles a Burglar

Mrs. Katherine Rafter, whose wrestling skill routed a burglar in her home at 10 South St. Louis avenue, with her son, Patrick.

BURGLAR MEETS A BUZZ SAW IN YOUNG MOTHER

Cuts Him Down to Her Size; Gets Back $16.

If the 170 pound burglar who was thrown for a loss yesterday by 115 pound Mrs. Katherine Rafter wants his nice green overcoat and hat back, he can get them by calling on Scully Benedetto at 4001 Fillmore street.

The burglar may, however, be detained a little. Benedetto is a sergeant of police and 4001 is the Fillmore Street station.

Mrs. Rafter, 20 and comely, found the intruder in her first floor flat at 10 South St. Louis avenue when she returned with her infant son, Pat, from a neighborhood store.

$16 in a Purse.

The young man had in his hand one of her purses, which he hastily shoved into his overcoat pocket as she entered. Mrs. Rafter knew there was $16 in it—$16 she needed for Christmas—so, disposing of young Patrick, she leaped at the burglar.

He evaded her for a moment, but she finally got hold of him—and then:

"My wrestling knowledge started to tell!" she said with shining eyes.

"We wrestled thru the hallway and out into the kitchen. Little Pat was crawling along, crowing with delight. He thought it was great fun. We rolled around the kitchen and he tried to break loose. I mean the burglar, not Pat. He made a lunge for the door and dragged me with him.

"We tumbled around the porch floor, and slithered down the back stairs to the concrete areaway.

Neighbors Just Stand.

"I hollered to the neighbors who were out on the porches watching, but they just stood there. Some of them even laughed. I got my knee on the middle of the burglar's back and grabbed his overcoat by the collar. Then he suddenly wiggled out of it, jumped up, and ran like a deer.

"I didn't care, tho. His hat was laying there. I had the coat—and the $16."

"But why didn't the neighbors help?" Sergt. Benedetto asked. "Why did they stand there—and laugh?"

Mrs. Rafter laughed, too. "O, that!" she said. "They told me later. They thought I was fighting with my husband!"

PARLEY ON BUS STRIKE MAY BE HELD IN CAPITAL

Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the federal conciliation service, last night issued in Washington, D. C., an invitation to representatives of the Greyhound bus lines and their striking employés to meet with him tomorrow in the capital in an effort to settle the strike, which began Dec. 3 in Cleveland, O.

O. David Zimring, Chicago attorney for the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway, and Motor Coach Employés of America [AFL], said that he, S. B. Berrong, a member of the international's general executive board, and Thomas Ott, president of the executive council for the seven striking locals, probably would attend the Washington conference.

Earlier Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in Circuit court continued until Saturday hearing on a plea of the Central Greyhound Lines, Inc., and Illinois Greyhound Lines, Inc., for an injunction to halt picketing. About 1,250 employés in the midwest and east, including 150 in Chicago, are on strike. The Greyhound garage at 3418 Cottage Grove avenue is being picketed, and operations of the two lines from St. Louis to New York City and Boston are halted.

CLAIM SINGAPORE DRIVE STEMMED; RAF POUNDS JAPS

Planes Raid Foe's Bases In North Malaya.

SINGAPORE, Dec. 24 (AP). — A staunch but ragged British line athwart the mangrove swamps and mountains of north Malaya appeared today to have fought the Japanese advance on Singapore to a standstill.

Above the brilliant green of the Malayan jungle carpet and on the flanks of this all essential naval base the Japanese, too, were feeling the rising power of the allied air forces.

The RAF, after a 10 day lull, was in the air in strength, pounding Japanese operational bases in northern Malaya and defending areas between the British land line and Singapore against Japanese air assault. In formation the RAF raided Sungei Patani, 25 miles northeast of Penang Island, where the Japanese are trying to utilize a former British airfield.

U. S. Flyers Help Rout Japs.

Official accounts of yesterday's air raid on Rangoon, Burma, disclosed that British and American fighters engaged 50 to 60 Japanese bombers outside the city and broke up their formation. Some bombers got thru, hitting docks, damaging a block of buildings and causing some casualties among RAF ground staffs. Nine bombers and a fighter were destroyed and several badly damaged, however, the allied fighters attacking the enemy on their way home.

The American fighters were not identified, but it was believed possible some were volunteers of the international air force, former United States army pilots who have been patrolling the Burma road for China.

On the Malayan mainland the only action reported was "some skirmishing" in the northwestern sector. There, about 295 air miles from Singaapore, the strategically important sector is flanked on the west by the coastal mangrove swamps and on the east by some of Malaya's highest peaks. In between is a narrow stretch of rolling country cut by the Perak river and the mainland to Singapore.

Rangoon reported a patrol engagement at Messiar, on the Burma-Thailand border, but said the Japanese force was "shot up" without British casualties.

Dutch Sink Another Transport.

Flying Dutchmen, who now claim a ship a day sunk or damaged by themselves or by submarines of the Netherlands East Indies, smashed again at Japanese ships off Sarawak, leaving one transport in a sinking condition near Kuching, the capital of the British protected Borneo state.

Official Netherlands sources said, moreover, that combined submarine and air action by the Dutch forces, culminating with the sinking of three transports and a tanker off Borneo yesterday, had wiped out with serious losses in men and material the entire supply fleet which earlier invaded the Miri oil fields of Sarawak.

The Dutch score by air and undersea attack now is 13 Japanese ships sunk and four seriously damaged.

Japs Claim 21 Planes.

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP).—The Tokio radio was heard tonight broadcasting an imperial headquarters announcement that Japanese army planes carried out a second mass raid on Rangoon late yesterday, damaging five ships in the harbor.

The broadcast declared that 21 out of 32 British planes which gave battle over the city were shot down and that only two Japanese planes failed to return.

"Emergency" In India.

CALCUTTA, India, Dec. 24 (AP).—A state of emergency was proclaimed today in the Bengal presidency, the region of India closest to Burma, which has been subjected to heavy Japanese air assault.

ILLINOIS MILITIA TO WEAR OLIVE DRAB UNIFORMS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP).—Members of the Illinois reserve militia henceworth will wear the regulation olive drab wool uniforms and wool overcoats of the United States army. About 400 are now on duty guarding bridges and other important installations.

Adjt. Gen. Leo M. Boyle announced today authority to adopt the regulation uniforms had been granted by the war department. Previously the federal government had banned their use and blue cotton uniforms were purchased for the 5,000 members.

In a statement issued after Gov. Green signed the bill making an emergency appropriation of $5,000,000 for militia equipment, Gen. Boyle said "immediate steps have been taken to obtain the uniforms, overcoats, and other equipment necessary to completely equip the militia to perform any assignment in Illinois requiring the protection of life and property and the maintenance of law and order."

30 SUB VICTIMS FIND LAND AFTER 9 DAYS AT SEA

Tiny Boat from U. S. Ship Reaches Hawaii.

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Dec. 24 (AP).—Survivors of the American freighter Lahaina today told of nine terrifying days in a stormy sea, with 35 men crowded into a 20 foot lifeboat after their ship was shelled and sunk Dec. 11 by an enemy submarine 800 miles off the Hawaiian islands.

As the lifeboat headed for safety, two men leaped overboard, two perished aboard the small boat, and a fifth died a few hours after the craft, under makeshift sail, reached Maui Island.

There they were mistaken for an enemy landing party until they could make their identity known.

Capt. Hanso Matthiesen said a submarine bearing no identifying marks shelled his freighter first from about 2,000 yards and then again at 300 yards. About half the 25 shots fired struck the 5,646 ton Matson Line vessel, setting her afire and sinking her. No torpedo was fired.

The captain and his crew piled into the one undamaged lifeboat, taking the ship's compass, sail canvas, potatoes, apples, oranges, lemons, and a keg of water.

Gaunt and exhausted, the men put ashore at Spreckelsville, Maui, at dawn last Sunday.

ONE VICTIM A CHICAGOAN.

Herman Freedman, the seaman who died shortly after the Lahaina's lifeboat reached shore, was the son of Louis Freedman of 4343 West 13th street, Chicago. Freedman, who was 40 years old, visited in Chicago last spring after retiring from the navy, in which he had served 24 years. After his visit here he became a member of the Lahaina's crew and sailed for Hawaii on Nov. 18. His family received a letter from him, postmarked Dec. 2 in Honolulu, stating that he would be home for Christmas.

Cops Have Fun as Iceland Holds Practice Blackout

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Dec. 20 (AP).—[Delayed.]—Shadows of Europe touched Reykjavik and the surrounding country as the government, coöperating with United States and British armed forces, staged Iceland's first trial blackout last night. Antiaircraft guns fired, American soldiers and marines manned defense posts, and police spent a pleasant hour firing large firecrackers to simulate bombs.

GERMAN GUNS ROAR A GRIM CAROL; SHELL BRITISH COAST OF KENT

FOLKESTONE, England, Dec. 24 (AP).—Germany's big cross channel guns broke the peace of Christmas eve tonight by shelling the Kentish coast.

Children were singing Christmas carols at some towns along the white cliffs of the Dover strait when the guns across the water at Cap Gris Nez opened up. Buildings were shaken, but the caroling went on.

British bombers attacked the naval base and German warships at Brest and objectives at Cologne last night, the air ministry announced. Other points in western Germany, Dunkirk and Calais, France, and Ostend, Belgium, also were bombed. The air ministry announced coastal command planes torpedoed a large enemy fleet auxiliary off Spain today.

Second Ship with Alaska Evacuees Reaches Seattle

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 24 (AP).—A second ship bringing evacuees from Alaska, most of them families of service men or of civilian employés working on defense projects, has arrived here, naval headquarters reported today. Most of the 724 evacuees were women and children. Last week another ship brought a similar group, including 36 children, from Sitka, Alaska.

IRELAND'S 3D WAR CHRISTMAS TO BE ALMOST NORMAL

Biggest Loss Is Foreign Fruits and Spices.

Message to America

DUBLIN, Ireland, Dec. 25. [Thursday] (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera told Americans in a Christmas broadcast today that his country must hew to its course of neutrality to save its unity—"unless we are attacked." Now, he said, Ireland is "united as perhaps never before in history. Unless we are attacked, any change from neutrality would destroy this unity." He continued: "It is our duty to Ireland to try to keep out of war. And with God's help we hope to succeed." He assured Americans that "in the difficulties that lie ahead you have the understanding and sympathy of our people."

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Ireland, Dec. 24.—The third war Christmas will find Ireland singularly normal. With the exception of the bombing of Dublin on May 31 when 25 persons were killed, the only reminder of the war is an occasional forced landing in Ireland by a war flyer.

The chief effect of the war, otherwise, is the loss of imports, leaving the Christmas table minus foreign fruits and spices. Home production has balanced the loss, however, providing a plentiful supply of meat and grains.

Shopping has been about normal, indicating no lack of money. The coal shortage has affected some railways, preventing many city workers from going home for Christmas. The coal shortage also has curtailed the electric and gas utilities.

Most Dublin hotels and fashionable seaside resorts are crowded with wealthy families for the holidays. Dances are being held. Roadhouses near Dublin are filled with people from northern towns who wish to escape the rationing that prevails there on the English scale.

While family reunions are fewer than usual, the influx of workers from Britain, on short leave, has crowded the incoming mailboat. Many households are distressed because the mails from America, which usually contain remittances, have not arrived.

Did YOU awake to tousle-headed cherubs . . . . screaming MERRY CHRISTMAS

Did they scrabble up your bedside . . . . . and bounce astride the pair of blanket-mounds that you were under?

Did they drag you . . . . . *bare*foot, robeless : : : : : out of sleep and bed . . . . . in the very middle of the night . . . . . at six this morning . . . . . screaming "Merry Christmas"?

New Planes Pour Into Hawaii; Manila Awaits U. S. Aerial Aid

Bases Recovering

[Copyright: 1941: By the New York Times.]

HONOLULU, Hawaii, Dec. 23 [Delayed].—The Japanese bomb damage to Hickam field, the huge air base guarding Pearl Harbor, and to Wheeler field, the pursuit base adjacent to Schofield barracks, was shown to newsmen today for the first time.

At the same time they saw an amazingly quick and complete replacement of the lost materiel, with planes pouring in to both fields, which suffered the brunt of the Dec. 7 attack. One authority said that in a week Wheeler field would be stronger than before the raid.

First reports about the marksmanship of the Japanese have been discounted and many misses were observed at both fields. Most of the planes lost were not first line craft.

U. S. Pilots Best Japanese.

Most of the metal from wrecked planes and hangars can be salvaged.

The Japanese, zooming in from the north, evidently attacked Wheeler field first to keep the fighter planes grounded. Despite the surprise, the field soon had 14 planes up and the superiority of American planes and pilots quickly was evident. One officer said:

"Our pilots didn't think much of the Japs. They could outmaneuver and outshoot them."

The Japanese planes were slow, with an estimated speed of 150 miles an hour. The Japanese planes shot down were closely examined. They looked like cheap imitations of American craft, with air-cooled motors, of a type similar to one the United States used in 1917. Their guns also were copies. The Japanese strafers had no retractable landing gear with "pants," and that slowed them down.

An officer estimated 150 Japanese planes attacked Wheeler field, which indicated two aircraft carriers had been used.

Shoot Down 12 Jap Planes.

Twelve Japanese planes are known to have been shot down at Wheeler and probably three more were destroyed, with all their pilots killed in the air. American pilot casualties at Wheeler were two shot down, two killed by strafers as they were taking off, and one as he was boarding his plane.

Apparently no determined attack was made by the Japanese on Wheeler personnel, altho one bomb which missed may have been aimed at the 600-man barracks. One barracks had a corner knocked off, but was unscathed inside. Several hangars were badly damaged, but the runway was not marked.

The adjacent Schofield barracks was untouched except for one American anti-aircraft shell, which hit the roof of an empty engineer barracks, and a Japanese machine gun bullet which struck a table where four cooks were playing cards. No one was hurt.

Hickam field suffered damage to several hangars, but many were untouched. There was no damage to runways. One big barrack was struck, but most of the men were out. Today two mechanics were nonchalantly shooting pool on a table in the first floor recreation room, with the ceiling sagging and dripping plaster.

Peril Yule Crowd

BY VICENTE A. PACIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 24.—Thousands of last minute Christmas shoppers in Manila this afternoon thought Santa Claus had arrived from America. As the people gathered their courage to venture out into the streets, two formations of planes flew directly overhead and were mistaken for the first arrivals from the United States—instead of Japanese raiders.

"Those are ours, sir. They have just arrived from America. Victory at last!" screamed the doorman at my building as I left for a press conference at the headquarters of the far eastern commander, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Could They be From U. S.?

I also thought the planes were those of the American forces, altho I was not able to figure how they could have reached the Philippines from the United States so soon. Wistfully I thought that Gen. MacArthur might make an announcement about them at the press conference, which was a special one.

The planes made a pretty sight—the first nonenemy formations over Manila, I thought. As I sped thru the shopping district the streets filled with shoppers, craning to see the planes and shouting remarks similar to that of the doorman.

And Then—The Siren Wails.

Suddenly, when the planes were over the city hall and beyond the shopping district, the air raid siren wailed the eerie warning that they were enemy planes.

I rushed to the conference to learn that the "forward echelon," meaning Gen. MacArthur's staff, was taking the field. Santa Claus had not yet come from America.

THAI MINISTER TO 'CARRY ON' IN CAPITAL POST

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special]. — The Thai minister, Rajawongse Seni Pramoj, announced at a press conference today that he will carry on as minister, notwithstanding the capitulation of Thailand to Japan, and will work for the independence and liberty of his country.

The minister declared that he had not heard recently from his government, nor is he particularly interested in hearing from it, but that the Thai people had seven centuries of independence behind them, had many times fought for their independence, and are opposed to Japanese domination.

"The Thai people," he declared, "are not pro-Japanese, and they are not the kind to be subservient. I am working here to carry on the struggle."

He urged the American people not to make a hasty judgment" of his country's capitulation. The Thai people, he said, have not been proved guilty of what he called the ugly charges that the capitulation was prearranged, that Thailand has entered into an alliance with Japan, and that the Thai premier has sent congratulations to Tokio.

BISHOPS PLEDGE ALL AID TO F. D. R. IN 'DAYS AHEAD'

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—In the name of over 20,000,000 American members of their church, the Roman Catholic bishops of the United States today pledged to President Roosevelt "wholehearted cooperation in the difficult days that lie ahead."

In a letter sent the chief executive by the Most Reverend Edward Mooney, archbishop of Detroit and chairman of the national Catholic welfare conference's administrative board, the bishops declared that they would marshal the spiritual forces at their command "to render secure our God-given blessings of freedom."

Promising to do their full part in transmuting the nation's material and spiritual resources into effective strength for common security and the safeguarding of individual rights, the bishops said Catholic citizens pledge anew "their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor"

BRITISH CLAIM GAINS IN BATTLE FOR HONGKONG

Fire Fuel Oil Tanks in Enemy Territory.

LONDON, Dec. 25 [Thursday] (AP).—The British garrison of Hongkong, still fighting on in supreme disregard of that death and doom which has so long seemed imminent, sent out word today that it had won a series of local encounters in maintaining contact with the enemy all along the front yesterday and had set ablaze his naval fuel tanks on the Kowloon mainland. The latter presumably was accomplished by artillery action.

"Our position on Mount Cameron [a long-assaulted British stronghold] is being maintained," said Hongkong's communique, of yesterday, which reached here early today.

Even civilians and British administrative officers were said in reports thru Hongkong's difficult but still surviving communications channels to be fighting, with what arms they could find, to hold some isolated points.

Terrain Helps Defenders.

The British defense was strong not alone for its valor but because the mountainous terrain to which the imperial troops had withdrawn made Japanese mechanized attacks difficult and gave some protection against Japanese bombers.

While British marines and Canadians were known to have regained some positions, Japanese gains also were indicated.

The effects of the Chinese counterthrust against the Japanese flank and rear were in doubt. The British Singapore command indicated that the Japanese were being seriously harried and that it was possible that Hongkong might thus be measurably relieved.

Chinese Aid on Small Scale.

Other information reaching Singapore from Chunking, however, was to the effect that the Chinese operations were on a rather small scale.

Chungking itself stated officially that while two Chinese attacks were under way—one north of Hongkong in the Tamsui area and the other against Pingwu on the Canton-Kowloon railway—neither could be regarded as a general offensive.

It was added, however, that the Japanese had been forced to divert some of their forces to meet the Chinese assaults.

Delayed dispatches from Chungking supplemented this with the report that 3,000 to 4,000 Japanese troops had been forced to withdraw from the Hongkong assault to meet Chinese pressure near Shumchun on the mainland.

Japs Claim Gains in Area.

TOKIO, Dec. 24 [Official radio recorded by Associated Press].—An announcement credited to a Japanese army air base in South China said today that 17 British aircraft had been destroyed on the ground, three war vessels sunk, and three more heavily damaged in the fighting in and around Hongkong and Kowloon up to Dec. 23. It added that several British airbases and antiaircraft gun emplacements and other military facilities had been demolished.

No More Americans Killed.

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 24 (AP).—A telegram from Hongkong filed at noon today [10 p. m. Tuesday Chicago time] said that no Americans had been reported killed or injured in the invaded crown colony since the death of Miss Florence Webb of Shanghai early in the siege.

Be a Soldier, Judge Tells Veteran Who Lost Son

Last Monday Frank Konkowski, 47 years old, of 2136 North Winchester avenue, a World war veteran, received a telegram from the navy department notifying him that his son, Michael, 22 years old, was killed in the sinking of the U. S. S. Arizona. He was arraigned in the Shakespeare avenue court yesterday on a charge of intoxication. Jude Thomas A. Green discharged him after telling him that he should bear his grief like a soldier and be proud that his son died, fighting bravely for his country.

FALL KILLS DELIVERY MAN.

Ionia, Mich., Dec. 24 [Special].—Delivering Christmas groceries to the home of Walter Harder here, Leo Vanvleck, 60 years old, opened the door to the cellar instead of the kitchen and fell down the stairway head first to suffer a skull fracture. He died late yesterday at Ionia hospital.

PAGAN JAPANESE SHUN CHRISTMAS BUT CELEBRATE

Today is a holiday in Japan, too, but not Christmas, for pagan Japan has nothing to do with Christian festivals. It is the 15th anniversary of the accesion of Emperor Hirohito, altho the Japanese, with their penchant for doing things backward, observe it as the day the old emperor, Taisho, died, rather than as the day of the accession.

When Hirohito became emperor he chose as the name of his era Showa, usually translated "Peace made manifest." For 10 of the 15 years Hirohto's empire has been at war, altho it was called "maintaining the peace of the far east," first in Manchuria, then China, and now thruout the far east and all across the Pacifi ocean.

When Emperor Hirohito dies he will pass into history as Showa Tenno, or "the emperor of peace made manifest." Emperors posthumously take the names of their eras.

Libraries Made Available for Defense Organizations

The public library and its 46 branches are to be made available for defense activities of authorized organizations, Carl B. Roden, chief librarian, said yesterday. The buildings will be kept open after hours if necessary and will be recreational centers as well as information and research centers, Roden stated.

BATTLE AT GATES OF BENGAZI! FOE TRAPPED: BRITISH

4 Italian Divisions Penned Within Libyan City.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 24 (AP).—British troops fought at the gates of Bengazi tonight after capturing the big axis airdromes of Benina and Barce, and Gen. Erwin Rommel's battered German armored units apparently were trapped in their desperate flight toward Tripoli.

Four shattered Italian divisions were at Bengazi and their annihilation or capture was regarded as certain.

The high command said that British armored vanguards "appear to have cut off the retreating Germans south of Bengazi from the Italian forces remaining in that port. . . . Our forces are rapidly completing their occupation of Cirenaica."

Other axis columns which escaped from Cirenaica into Tripolitania, the western division of Libya, were hammered relentlessly by RAF planes operating all the way to Tripoli.

Confronted By Barrier.

In addition, the tattered axis columns were confronted by a British patrol standing athwart the coastal road 150 miles inside Tripolitania.

Hundreds of axis prisoners and great quantities of abandoned war equipment were seized in the British onrush.

The communique announcing these successes dropped all military caution by naming the participating British units and the sectors in which they were attacking.

Benina and Barce were the last major axis airdromes in eastern Libya.

Benina, 12 miles east of Bengazi, was occupied by the Royal Horse artillery, and Barce, 40 miles to the northeast, was taken by a central India horse regiment. These units and others then sped on to Bengazi.

The Coldstream Guards.

On the Antelat-Agedabia road, which dips south of Bengazi, the retreating Germans and Italians were pursued by one of Britain's most famous regiments, the Coldstream guards.

Near the Tripolitania border another British unit inflicted more casualties on the routed Germans and destroyed a batch of axis trucks and gasoline wagons.

Another unit swept deep into Tripolitania to destroy a number of enemy aircraft at Magrun airport.

Far to the rear of the British near the Egyptian border small axis garrisons still were holding out at Sollum and Bardia. The British expected to deal with these pockets later, and expressed doubt whether the besieged men had enough water to last them for long.

SUPPLIES DIFFICULT MATTER.

London observers, who believed the British would sweep on to Tripoli, conceded that the question of supply was a difficult one for such an extended haul over the desert.

However, military commentators predicted a swift British drive 400 miles across the desert to Tripoli, as a knockout blow to Premier Mussolini's empire.

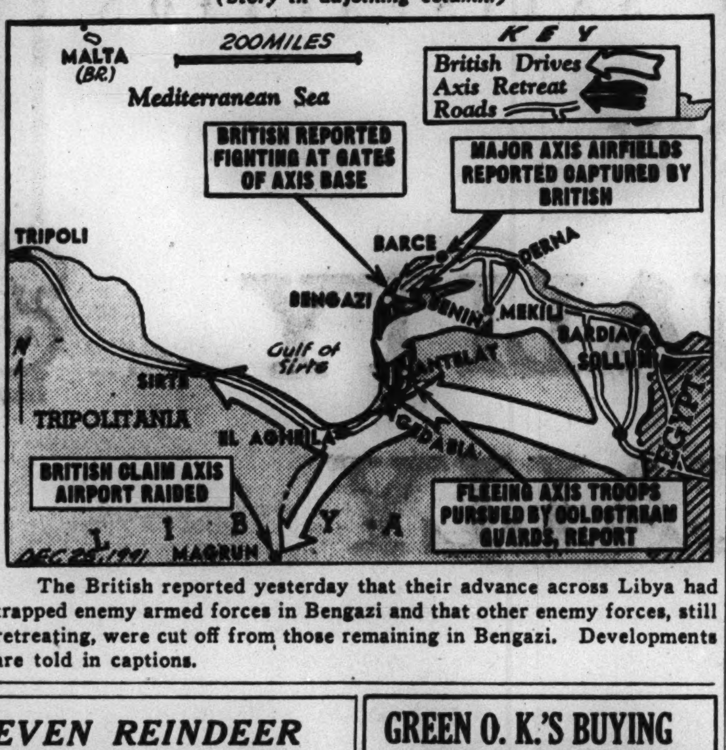
Their view was that the British could not await the chance of axis reinforcements being poured into Tripoli for a counteroffensive such as Gen. Rommel produced last spring.

Control of the Italian territory clear to the French North African border would give the British unquestioned military advantages in the Mediterranean where the British navy thus far has been successful in sinking many axis supply and troop transports bound for Libya.

The Italian high command acknowledged strong British attacks between Barce and Bengazi, and the German command said that Nazi troops had destroyed two British batteries and eight tanks in an unidentified sector.

British Trap Foes in Libya

(Story in adjoining column.)



The British reported yesterday that their advance across Libya had trapped enemy armed forces in Bengazi and that other enemy forces, still retreating, were cut off from those remaining in Bengazi. Developments are told in captions.

KING OF NORWAY AND PRESIDENT EXCHANGE NOTES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Norway's King Haakon, who went to London after the German invasion of his country, has sent to President Roosevelt a message of sympathy with the "deep resentment burning today in American hearts."

Norwegians not only hope with their American friends for a speedy victory over aggression, he said, but are proud that the United States and Norway now not only are friends but "for the first time in history, also comrades in arms."

President Roosevelt, in reply to King Haakon, thanked him for his friendly message. "We are especially grateful," the President said, "for the inestimable aid in our common fight which is being given by the intrepid Norwegian seamen on whose skill and courage greatly depends the steady flow of supplies which in the end, under the guidance of Providence, will restore decency and personal freedom to the world."

DIONNE QUINTS WILL CELEBRATE 2 CHRISTMASES

CALLENDER, Ont., Dec. 24 (AP).—The Dionne quintuplets will have two Christmases—one tomorrow, like their admirers thruout the world, who have sent them hundreds of presents—and one on New Year's day, the traditional custom of French Canada.

Altho Christmas day is primarily a day of religious observance for their family, the five girls will open most of their Christmas parcels tomorrow after attending an early mass.

On New Year's day, however, they will join their family and relatives for the arrival of Pere Noel with family presents. The 7 year old girls will be hostesses at a Christmas dinner for their family and advisers and have a party in the afternoon. Presents in store for them include new skates for use on their private rink.

EVEN REINDEER MISSED BY FINNS THIS CHRISTMAS

Santa's Steeds Are in the Army Now.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 24.—Christmas will not be a festival of feasting in Finland. Last Christmas, the Finns slaughtered some of the herds of Santa Claus reindeer for food; but this winter the reindeer are pulling little snowboats loaded with supplies and ammunition for the Finnish army units operating against the soviet forces in Karelia. Available reindeer meat is being consumed by the inhabitants in the northern districts and the army.

Of the three traditional dishes which appeared on every Finnish Christmas table only one is available. It is boiled stockfish [dried fish], served, where possible, with horse-radish sauce. The juicy hams baked in a loaf of rye bread and the prune tartlets which followed, are only memories. Groceries and butcher shops are practically empty. A few stores have small supplies of lemons and raisins.

Soldiers Feed the Children.

But the Finns are fighting famine just as courageously as they have fought the Russians. They have brought the Christmas holiday back to thousands of Finnish speaking East Karelians and Russians. In the occupied regions soldiers are sharing the contents of their Christmas packages from home with the children who throng about the camps begging for food. All the able bodied men in Karelia were either impressed into the soviet army or exiled at the outbreak of the war, only women and children and old men remaining.

The little the Finns have they are sharing with the poverty stricken inhabitants of the captured districts. They have even provided an extra allowance of food for the 50,000 soviet prisoners.

Last Christmas the ministry of supplies was able to issue small extra rations, thanks to a new cargo from America. There are none this Christmas; not even the cake of soap for children. Children will receive toys, but no candy nor candles for the Christmas trees.

Book Stores Are Sold Out.

The stores are filled with Christmas shoppers, and for adults books are the favorite gifts. Booksellers report empty shelves. One curious development of the past year in Finland has been the shortage of Bibles and prayer books. All available copies have been sent to the men at the front.

Finland's losses in the present war have been even more staggering than in her last conflict. [Twenty-six words censored at Helsingfors.] There are many veiled widows in every crowd of shoppers. [Fifteen words censored at Helsingfors.]

There is an element of happiness in this Christmas, altho the war is not finished, for the Finns are thankful that bolshevism has been beaten back from their frontiers.

MAYOR PRAISES POLICE FORCE IN YULE GREETING

In his annual Christmas message to the police department, Mayor Kelly said yesterday that he was "genuinely proud of its splendid achievements" and added:

"In this time of national peril and crisis, it is especially reassuring to me, as mayor, to know that the safety, protection, and well being of our citizens are in the custody of men whose loyalty, efficiency, bravery, and high sense of public spiritedness have so many times been tested and found true."

The message was broadcast on the police wires by Commissioner Allman.

BOY HIT BY FLAGPOLE DIES.

Charlotte, Mich., Dec. 24 [Special].—Samuel Nemeth, 12 years old, died today, the result of injuries incurred several days ago when a schoolhouse flagpole toppled over and struck the child on the head.

GREEN O. K.'S BUYING LAND FOR NEW PARK AT SILOAM SPRINGS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP).—Gov. Dwight Green today approved the purchase of land for a new state park around Siloam Springs, 15 miles east of Quincy.

The governor authorized the department of public works and buildings to exercise options for an initial purchase of 1,027 acres of land. Public Works Director Walter A. Rosenfield said additional tracts will be purchased later to raise the total acreage to 3,500.

The first purchase will cost about $21,000, of which $10,000 has been raised by public subscription in Adams and Brown counties. Rosenfield estimated the state would spend $250,000 to develop the park in the next few years.

Plane Plants Workers Give $12,000 for Soldier Guards

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24 (AP).—Employés of three Douglas Aircraft factories contributed more than $12,000 today to provide Christmas dinners and entertainment for soldiers guarding the plants.

ATLANTA, 50 MILE AN HOUR CRUISER, PUT INTO SERVICE

Warship Was Launched Only 3 Months Ago.

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—The 6,000 ton cruiser Atlanta, a ship capable of speeding more than 50 land miles an hour, became a unit of the American navy today in commissioning exercises at the navy yard in Brooklyn. The ship was launched only three months ago.

The Atlanta will be commanded by Capt. Samuel P. Jenkins, an Indiana born veteran of the last war.

Margaret Mitchell, author of "Gone with the Wind," and sponsor of the $12,000,000 craft when it was launched, attended the ceremony attired in a smart Red Cross uniform. She said she was doing part time Red Cross work.

In a short speech Rear Adm. Adolphus Andrews, commandant of the third naval district, wished the men and officers a merry Christmas and a "victorious" new year.

Hailed as a Christmas present to the fleet and a deadly gift from America to the axis, Adm. Andrews said: "This ship may have the splendid opportunity of carrying greetings in the form of a broadside to those twin horrors of insincerity, Germany and Japan."

Responding to his mention of the "proud" name of Atlanta, Miss Mitchell said that she and all Atlanta were proud of the cruiser and its men. About 10 per cent of the 750 officers and crew are from Atlanta and the ship is the third of her name.

The Atlanta is built along destroyer lines and carries 12 five inch guns as well as 12 smaller guns and torpedo tubes.

CAIRO TOO IS GAY; HOLIDAYS RETURN MEAT TO TABLES

Christian, Mohammedan Mark Festive Season.

BY SAM BREWER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 24.—This wartime Christmas in Cairo will be gayer than in most of the cities of the old world. The war's effect is evident, of course, but British successes in the desert have brightened the outlook of the people.

This year the Mohammedan Great Bairam, the year's chief festival, happens to fall between Christmas and New Year's—Dec. 28, 29, and 30—so there will be festivities, either Christian or Mohammedan, from Christmas eve to New Year's.

Share with Soldiers.

The numerous British here will celebrate Christmas as nearly as possible in the traditional form. Soldiers will be given the best available Christmas dinner, even if it is only an extra share of bully beef.

The Mohammedans, meanwhile, will celebrate Bairam, marking the end of the annual pilgrimage to Meçca. It is the day when the pilgrims, having passed thru Mecca to Medina [the prophet's city some 250 miles northwest of Mecca] arrive back in Mecca.

In olden times the Mohammedans sacrificed a ram, a camel, or some other animal ceremonially. Now every family has sheep to feast on—the only time in the year when the poorer peasants eat meat.

Pass Thru Streets.

As the feast approaches flocks of sheep become a common sight in Cairo as they are driven into town in preparation for the ceremonial slaughter.

The Mohammedan, for Bairam, puts on his best clothes which he had bought for Little Bairam 40 days ago. They pay numerous visits to friends, more or less as we do on New Year's, but the most interesting custom is the visit to their dead.

Wealthy families have vaults in what is called the Dead City on the edge of Cairo. It is a city of neat little white houses for the dead. Inside are the tombs of the families. For Bairam the whole family moves to these houses and takes along furniture and cooking utensils.

Poor Go Picnicking.

The poorer families do not have houses for their dead, but they picnic in the cemeteries. The children take toys and their elders take musical instruments or enjoy other amusements and for three days live with their dead ancestors.

Every family, as soon as it arrives at the cemetery, recites the first chapter of the Koran. The wealthy ones hire holy men to recite the entire Koran.

The blackout regulations and wartime restrictions will make some difference, but for both Christians and Moslems at least one handicap is being removed. The meatless days have been suspended for 10 days so that everybody may feast.

CORPORAL GIVEN HEROISM MEDAL FOR SAVING BOY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special]. The war department announced today that the soldier's medal for heroism had been awarded to Corp. James E. Engels of Manitowoc, Wis., for rescuing a small boy from drowning in Lake Michigan off Fort Sheridan, Ill., last July 11.

Engels, a member of Battery F, 61st coast artillery, rescued Philip Nowakowski, 6 years old, son of Capt. Felix Nowakowski, post adjutant at Fort Sheridan. Three other children, Philip's sister, Patricia, 3, and his cousins, Elfreda and Hedwig Zieleniewski, 13 and 15 years old, were drowned when they stood up and capsized a life guard's row boat they had taken out on the lake.

Heroism medals also were awaded to Corp. Robert J. Morgan of Flushing, N. Y., Company B, 84th reconnaissance battalion, 4th armored division, for saving two boys in the path of runaway horses at Antwerp, N. Y., and Private Vernon D. Bowman of El Paso, Tex., troop C, 7th cavalry, for rescuing a fellow soldier from drowning near Seale, La.

VEGETABLE MEN SUE TO GET STATE TO HONOR CHECKS

The Illinois State Vegetable Growers association, a nonprofit organization coöperating with the state department of agriculture, filed suit in Superior court yesterday for a mandamus to compel Arthur C. Lueder, state auditor, and George B. McKibbin, state director of finance, to honor its checks against the state treasury.

The suit stated that an association check for $34 was refused payment because Attorney General George F. Barrett had declared invalid a legislative appropriation of $3,100 for 1941.

The association received state funds in 1933, 1935, 1937, and 1939.

Rapist Arraigned

David Steffey III., confessed rapist, being arraigned in Criminal court. A court attache is at his side.

A mental examination was ordered yesterday by Chief Justice Robert J. Dunne of Criminal court, for David R. Steffey III., 18 years old, confessed rapist. He is under indictment on three charges of rape and one of assault to rape.

The test was ordered at the request of Steffey's lawyer, Benjamin Ehrlich, when Steffey was brought into court for arraignment. Steffey, a first year student at Wright Junior college, pleaded guilty, but Ehrlich promptly halted the plea.

Arraignment then was deferred to Jan. 5 at which time the result of the mental test will be known.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT SHINES THRU WAR GLOOM IN BRITAIN

Parties Held for Children in Air Raid Shelters.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The British are making every effort to celebrate this Christmas as merrily as possible under wartime conditions. Even those persons who nightly take their refuge from German bombs in the subway stations are doing their utmost to generate the Christmas spirit. In defiance of official disapproval, they are staging underground parties for the children, altho without Christmas trees, colored lights, or the other typical decorations.

Church services tonight attracted a larger attendance than usual, especially at the midnight mass at Westminster abbey.

Altho the war has not dampened the Christmas spirit, its privations strike at every one's celebration. The main loss is paper for wrapping gifts and making other decorations. In some places even the exchange of Christmas cards is frowned on, being regarded as an added strain on the country's total war effort.

Christmas dinners will be slimmer than last year, the supply of turkeys being only 60 per cent of last year's inadequate quota. Most members of the fighting forces and the women's auxiliary units will dine on roast pork washed down with ale. A few members of the forces were able to obtain turkeys by forming clubs and buying their birds in advance.

Most People to Eat Roasts.

The hotels will be allowed to serve turkey only to their guests, but some exceptions will be made in the West End, where parties will be held for outsiders.

The masses generally will eat roast beef, pork, or lamb for dinner. Large families, by lumping their ration books together, bought entire joints, while many smaller families will eat unrationed chicken.

Even on Christmas eve the black [illegal] market operators came up with a new racket. From cars touring the working class districts they were found to be selling "colored water" as whisky at $3 a quart. Real whisky and wine will not be widely served tomorrow because of their scarcity and high prices.

Adults' Gifts Scarce.

Christmas toys are scarce and prices are high. Dolls worth less than $1 a year ago are selling for $5. At the toy auction market in "Petticoat Lane" many persons who came in high powered automobiles today jostled sailors and soldiers who were spending most of a week's pay to buy Christmas gifts for children.

Gifts for adults are scarce and high. A notorious example is the increase from 5 to 40 cents for Christmas stockings. Rationing has made it difficult to obtain gifts like handkerchiefs and ties, while the paper shortage has made books scarce.

Despite the railroads' warnings that there would be no extra Christmas trains, the crush of travel today was so grêat that many persons were left shivering on platforms, awaiting trains which were hours late. Even when they caught their trains many persons did not reach their destinations. Civilians ignored the unwritten law that soldiers and sailors on leave should have precedence on the trains.

Altho there has been no orgy of spending among the working class, small savings deposits last week decreased by 12 million dollars and withdraws were heavier than expected.

STREET CAR KILLS WOMAN.

Mrs. Victoria Trygg, 58 years old, 3318 North Clark street, was fatally injured yesterday by a street car in front of 3345 North Clark street.

RUSSIANS SWARM ON OREL, 200 MI. BELOW MOSCOW

Pursue Ragged Remnants of Tank Division.

MOSCOW, Dec. 24 (AP).—Over snowy roads littered with hundreds upon hundreds of German vehicles, the Red army swarmed down tonight on Orel, 200 miles south of Moscow, and on the ragged remnants of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian's 2d tank division.

Guderian himself—accounted Germany's wizard in armored warfare—was reported to have been called back to Germany from the eastern front in the German high command shake-up which has seen the Nazi commander in chief, Field Marshal Walther von Brauchitsch, replaced by Adolf Hitler, and the Moscow front commander, Field Marshal Fedor von Bock, reported succeeded by Field Marshal Siegmund List.

The Russians, now in control of the Kaluga-Tula-Orel railway and highway system north of Orel, were pushing the Germans westward after occupying Odoev, 60 miles north of Orel, and were threatening their rear.

Halfway to Kharkov.

Other Red army forces pushed toward Orel, strategically important communications center midway between Moscow and Kharkov, in a steadily developing counteroffensive.

What was left of the 2d Nazi tank division had fled to Orel after leaving at least 1,000 vehicles on the roads. These Nazi armored remnants were under the command of Guderian's chief aide, it was reported.

In the area north of Orel the soviet troops were reported to have retaken 94 populated places in two days. At Gorbachevo, rail junction occupied on Tuesday, they seized two trainloads of German ammunition and material and captured a fuel depot.

Cavalry Leads Attack.

This whole tide of counterassault south of Moscow, it was revealed by Cavalry General P. Velov, was begun by his command which, inspired by a telephone call from Premier Josef Stalin, attacked the Germans east of Tula without waiting for the support of tanks.

More casualty figures were given out by the Russians—1,650 Germans slain in two days in one sector of the Moscow front; 3,000 killed in four days in the bitter fighting southeast of Leningrad, where the Nazis have been rolled back to the Volkhov river.

In the Crimea the violent battle for Sevastopol went on, but dispatches said that Germans trying to break the Russian defense line on a hill dominating the Black sea port had been thrown back to their original positions.

Behind the lines Russia, preparing for the future, began the annual registration of all men between the ages of 18 and 50 years.

Finns Recapture Island.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 24 [Official radio recorded by Associated Press].—Finnish naval forces have retaken Suursaari island in the Gulf of Finland, 70 miles east of Helsingfors. The Russians had maintained the island as a base, the Finnish command said today.

The Finns took over after the Russians withdrew. The Reds had destroyed a considerable number of the dwellings on the island, a communique said.

Nazis Admit Break-Thru.

BERLIN, Dec. 24 [Official broadcast recorded by Associated Press].—Continued Russian attacks which at some places drove gaps in German defense lines were reported today by the German high command.

The war bulletin said these local breaches were broken off with heavy casualties by Nazi counterattacks, and that German thrusts elsewhere broke up massed Red army preparations for assault.

Much of the German action was aerial. Planes struck at the Russians from icy Lake Ladoga to the Black sea. Oil supplies were reported set afire and railways hit in attacks on the Black sea port of Tuapse. Other Russian rail lines on the southern front were said to have been bombed.

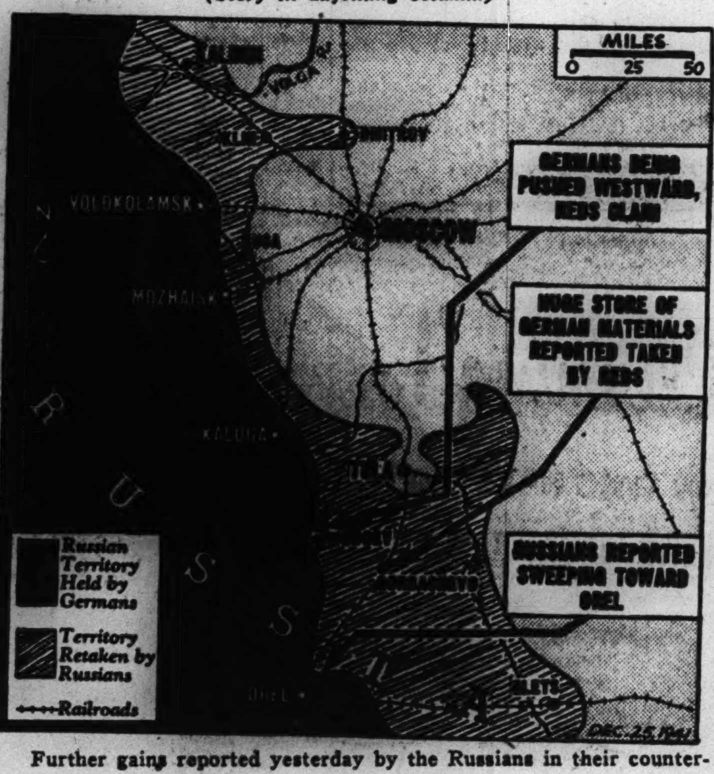
The Germans said Russian columns crossing the ice on Lake Ladoga were bombed heavily, day and night. Russian artillery batteries were said to have been silenced by bombs, and hits were reported on supply trains on the line north of Murmansk.

FATALLY HURT IN FALL.

Charles Johnston, 70 years old, was fatally injured yesterday when he fell three stories from the window of his bedroom at 3918 Janssen avenue.

War on the Moscow Front

(Story in adjoining column.)



Further gains reported yesterday by the Russians in their counter-attacks on the Moscow front are told in captions.

95 JEWS KILLED AS HOSTAGES IN FRANCE, CLAIM

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 24 (AP).—The Paris correspondent of the Berne newspaper La Suisse said today that 95 Jews held by Nazi authorities in occupied France as hostages for attacks on Germans have been executed and that five others were freed on grounds that they had committed no offense.

[The Germans announced Dec. 14 that 100 "Jewish communists and anarchists" in occupied France would be shot in retaliation for "recent attacks against the occupation troops." The Petain government issued a communique protesting the order, which it said "provokes profound uneasiness among Frenchmen."]

NAZIS IDENTIFY PLANE CARRIER 'SUNK' BY U-BOAT

BERLIN, Dec. 24 [Official Broadcast Recorded by Associated Press].—The British aircraft carrier which a German submarine reported last Tuesday to have sunk in the Atlantic was identified today by the German high command as the Unicorn.

At the same time, the high command said other U-boats had sent 23,500 tons of British shipping—three merchant vessels and a large tanker—to the bottom of the Atlantic between Gibraltar and England.

[The Unicorn is not an aircraft carrier but a 14,000 ton fleet air arm supply and repair ship laid down in 1939 and not previously reported in action.]

Sigerist of Johns Hopkins university, Baltimore, Md., and Dr. David J. Davis, deah of the University of Illinois medical school.

All Nazi Garment Makers Ordered to Clothe Army

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP).—The German radio announced today that all German tailors, dressmakers, furriers, hatters, glove makers, and underwear manufacturers have been ordered to turn their entire production into supplies for the German army on the cold Russian front.

PUSH ANGLO-U. S. STUDY OF WORLD WIDE WAR PLAN

F. D. R., Churchill Weigh Threat to Pacific.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill today pushed forward the formulation of a global allied strategy for winning the war.

While their subordinates surveyed the various theaters of war and the requirements in each one to meet the attack by the axis powers, the American and British chiefs of state had another prolonged conference on joint war policies. At the conclusion of their meeting at the White House it was stated that there was no news to give out and that there probably will not be until a plan of action shall be agreed upon. Then, it was stated, there will be a joint statement by the President and the prime minister.

83 Experts in Party.

The over all strategic plan is being worked out by staffs of experts representing the army, navy, and air forces of the two nations. Churchill brought with him 83 such experts headed by Capt. C. E. Lambe, deputy director of plans for the British navy; Brigadier V. Dykes, director of plans for the British army, and Air Commander W. F. Dickson of the RAF. These officers compose the British joint planning committee.

The British experts are meeting with their "opposite numbers" in the American army, navy, and air forces to analyze the war situation confronting the allies in Europe, Africa, and Asia, and to evolve recommendations of action to be laid before Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill.

Question of Deploying Power.

This undertaking is extremely complicated and fraught with a grave responsibility for the President and the prime minister in devising a plan of action for the defense of their respective nations and for achieving victory over our enemies with the least expenditure of material and manpower. All the discussions, both of principals and subordinates, are revolving around the question of allocation of joint resources to the various war fronts of the world.

Looming largest in the situation with which the President and the prime minister must deal is the inferiority of Anglo-American air power in the far east, as a result of which there is grave danger that the Japanese will be able to take both the Philippine Islands and Singapore.

Altho Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his American and Filipino forces are putting up a heroic resistance, military authorities here doubt that the Philippines can be defended successfully.

Loss Calculated in Strategy.

American strategy for the far east for a generation has been founded on the principle that, in a war with Japan, the Philippines could not be defended; that the Japanese would take the islands eventually, but the war would be decided by naval battle. American forces in the Philippines have been greatly strengthened in the last two years, but not sufficiently to affect the principle of our strategy in that region.

If the Philippines pass into Japanese control, Japanese communications with the southwestern Pacific will become safe from American interference and the jeopardy of Singapore will be increased a thousandfold.

The fall of Singapore would open the way to Japanese occupation of the Dutch East Indies, with the vast oil resources of that region. Japan then would have oil supplies sufficient for a long war.

Question of Planes.

If the Americans and British were able to get enough planes to the far east to gain air ascendency, they might be able to halt the Japanese. At the same time, the British contend, it is no less important to maintain the flow of American and British built planes to the Russians in order to complete the destruction of the German armies on the eastern front. And now with Hitler threatening a thrust into northwest Africa, thru France or Spain, the British have become extremely sensitive regarding any diversion of American lend-lease equipment from Libya and the near east.

As was the case when the British came to the Washington arms conference in 1921, the British are the principal sources of information concerning the current conference. Sir Gerald Campbell, chief of the British information service in the United States, is holding daily press conferences in which he gives out the news and explains the objectives.

Roosevelt to Call Allies.

When he was asked today when other anti-axis nations will be admitted to the deliberations on a common policy, Sir Gerald said it would be up to Mr. Roosevelt to issue the invitations. The discussions in progress, he said, are for the purpose of devising a world-wide strategy to achieve a world-wide victory.

Sir Gerald took great satisfaction in the fact that while dissension is appearing in the axis, the allies are growing closer together, as evidenced by the appearance of the President and the prime minister at the lighting of the national Christmas tree.

NEWFOUNDLAND DULL? NO MORE, THANKS TO U. S.

Families Uprooted at Base Site.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Passed by United States army and navy censors and by the British imperial censor.]

[Sixth article].

ARGENTIA, Newfoundland [By mail].—"We were always praying for something to happen—we were ever at it until we played the divvil with it!"

That was the way a 75 year old native Newfoundland woman of Irish descent expressed her semi-comic indignation over the sudden occupation of the fishing hamlet of Argentia by the American army and navy for the building of a defense base. The poverty stricken folk had prayed for years for something to turn up. When it did it came with a bang.

Two hundred and four families in Argentia were uprooted from their cottages and forced to "shack up" in the pine covered hills off the base area while they build a new settlement. Before hemispheric defense dropped on them like a 2,000 pound air bomb, their land had no value but the Argentians insist they prefer their ancestral homes to American dollars.

Three cemeteries are being moved also.

U. S. Foots Bill.

Compensation for the land and improvements taken over has ranged up to $20,000 for one cluster of business buildings and dwellings. However, the people contend that after they have built their new homes and waited three years for the root crops to grow there will be nothing left.

Amounts of the settlement were determined by the Newfoundland government which receives the cash from the till of the United States treasury.

Today there are only two native residents left on the area occupied by the American naval base. One is Father Dee, the parish priest, and the other, Mrs. Caroline Foran, 65 year old keeper of the lighthouse. Mrs. Foran, incidentally, draws a salary of $50 a year from the government, took a 10 per cent cut when the other civil servants did, and ekes out the rest of her living by raising geese and vegetables.

Americans Are Welcomed.

Father Dee, a rotund, jovial, white haired individual, declared that outside of losing their homes, the people in the community, most of whom are of Irish blood, were receiving the Americans with open arms. Being seafaring folk they take naturally to the sailors, he said.

The priest described the American incursion as a "very kindly invasion."

Most of the social life for the marines and enlisted men at the naval station revolves around the old frame Capital theater of the community, dances, and the Anglican church.

Local girls from Placentia, the old French capital 5 miles away, are imported for the social events and the supply is supplemented by the stenographers from the construction camps, nurses and medical aids from the base. Imaginative and lonely sailors have named the barracks, where the stenographers live, "Hollywood-by-the-sea."

Girls Too Few.

There are no complaints about the girls save that there aren't nearly enough to go around.

A school has been started for the children of the army and navy officers at Argentia. Miss Mary McCarthy, a nurse in the community who conducts the classes, has seven army and six navy children. She said her main difficulties were over the difference in spelling between the English and Americans.

There is no compulsory education in Newfoundland. What schools there are the churches maintain. The population is divided about equally among the Church of England, Roman Catholic and Methodist or United Church of Canada, with a small percentage in other faiths.

TIRE RATIONING INSTRUCTIONS GO OUT TOMORROW

Instructions for the rationing of tires after the ban on public sales is lifted, Jan. 5, will be sent with applications and certificate forms from Washington, D. C., to local councils of defense in eight Midwest states, including Illinois, tomorrow, it was announced yesterday. The information was received in a telegram from the capital by Michael F. Mulcahy, president of the board of local improvements, who was appointed by Mayor Kelly to manage the rationing program in Chicago.

The instructions will govern the setting up of rationing branches thruout the city.

New warnings that a wave of tire stealing is expected were issued by Capt. George Teeling, head of the police stolen auto section, and Carl W. Soderlin, president of the Illinois Police association.

"Watch your tire numbers," Capt. Teeling said. "The only way you'll be able to get a stolen tire back will be by proof of the number. Last year more than 600 stolen tires picked up by the police, went unreturned, because of the failure of owners to identify them."

DIES OF FALL INJURIES.

Mrs. Adela Hagburg, 71 years old, died yesterday in the County hospital of injuries suffered in a fall Dec. 6 in her home at 1733 North Francisco avenue.

Churchill, Roosevelt Texts for Tree Lighting Ceremony

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—Following are the texts of the speeches by President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Churchill at the Christmas tree lighting here tonight:

Roosevelt

"There are many men and women in America—sincere and faithful men and women—who asked themselves this Christmas:

"'How can we light our trees? How can we give our gifts? How can we meet and worship with love and with uplifted hearts in a world at war, a world of fighting and suffering and death?

"'How can we pause, even for a day—even for Christmas day—in our urgent labor of arming a decent humanity against the enemies which beset it?

"'How can we put the world aside, as men and women put the world aside in peaceful years, to rejoice in the birth of Christ?'

"These are natural—inevitable—questions in every part of the world which is resisting the evil thing.

Must Prepare Our Hearts.

"Even as we ask these questions, we know the answer. There is another preparation demanded of this nation beyond and beside the preparation of weapons and materials of war. There is demanded of us also the preparation of our hearts; the arming of our hearts. And when we make ready our hearts for the labor and the suffering and the ultimate victory which lies ahead, then we observe Christmas day—with all its memories and all its meaning—as we should.

"Looking into the days to come, I have set aside a day of prayer, and in that proclamation I have said:

"'The year 1941 has brought upon our nation a war of aggression by powers dominated by arrogant rulers whose selfish purpose is to destroy free institutions. They thereby would take from the freedom loving peoples of the earth the hard won liberties gained over many centuries.

New Year's Day Set Aside.

"'The new year of 1942 calls for the courage and the resolution of old and young to help win a world struggle in order that we may preserve all we hold dear.

"'We are confident in our devotion to country, in our love of freedom, in our inheritance of courage. But our strength, as the strength of all men everywhere, is of greater avail as God upholds us.

"'Therefore, I . . . do hereby appoint the first day of the year 1942 as a day of prayer, of asking forgiveness for our shortcomings of the past, of consecration to the tasks of the present, of asking God's help in days to come.

"'We need His guidance that this people may be humble in spirit but strong in the conviction of the right; steadfast to endure sacrifice, and brave to achieve a victory of liberty and peace.'

Convictions Our Best Weapon.

"Our strongest weapon in this war is that conviction of the dignity and brotherhood of man which Christmas day signifies—more than any other day or any other symbol.

"Against enemies who preach the principles of hate and practice them, we set our faith in human love and in God's care for us and all men everywhere.

"It is in that spirit, and with particular thoughtfulness of those, our sons and brothers, who serve in our armed forces on land and sea, near and far—those who serve for us and endure for us—that we light our Christmas candles now across this continent from one coast to the other on this Christmas evening.

"We have joined with many other nations and peoples in a great cause. Millions of them have been engaged in the task of defending good with their life blood for months and years.

Introduces Churchill.

"One of their great leaders stands beside me. He and his people in many parts of the world are having their Christmas trees with their little children around them, just as we do here. He and his people have pointed the way in courage and sacrifice for the sake of little children everywhere.

"And so I am asking my associate and old friend to say a word to the people of America, old and young, tonight—Winston Churchill, prime minister of Great Britain."

Churchill

"I have the honor to add an appendix to the message of Christmas goodwill and kindliness with which my illustrious friend, the President, has encircled the homes and families of the United States by the message of Christmas eve which he has just delivered.

"I spend this anniversary and festival far from my country, far from my family, and yet I cannot truthfully say that I feel far from home. Whether it be the ties of blood on my mother's side, or the friendships I have developed here over many years of active life, or the commanding sentiment of comradeship in the common cause of great races who speak the same language and to a very large extent worship at the same altars and pursue the same ideals—whichever it may be—or all of them together—I cannot feel myself a stranger here in the center of the summit of these United States.

Feels Welcome at Fireside.

"I feel a sense of unity and fraternal association which, thru all your kindness, convinces me that I have a right to sit at your fireside and share your Christmas joys.

"This is a strange Christmas eve. Almost the whole world is locked in deadly struggle. Armed with the most terrible weapons which science can devise, the nations advance upon each other. Ill would it be for us this Christmastide if we were not sure that no greed for the lands or wealth of any other people has led us to the field. That no vulgar ambition, no sordid lust for material gain at the expense of others, has led us to the field.

"Here in the midst of war, raging and roaring about us over all the lands and seas, creeping nearer to our hearts and homes; here amidst all these tumults, we have the peace of the spirit in each cottage home and in every heart.

Dedicates Night to Children.

"Therefore we may cast aside, for this night at least, the cares and dangers which beset us, and make the children happy in a world of storm. Here then, for one night only, each home thruout the English-speaking world should be a brightly lighted island of happiness and peace. Let the children have their night of fun and laughter; let the gifts of Father Christmas delight their thoughts; let us share to the full in their unstinted pleasure, before we turn again to the stern tasks in the year that lies before us. But now, by our sacrifice and daring, these same children shall not be robbed of their inheritance, or denied the right to live in a free and decent world.

"And so, in God's mercy, a happy Christmas to you all."

CHURCHILL JOINS F.D.R. IN LIGHTING CHRISTMAS TREE

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24.—Christmas messages of grim determination were giver to the United States and the British empire this evening by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Winston Churchill in lighting Washington's community Christmas tree.

The grave prime minister dedicated Christmas eve to the children, but pledged that leaders of the democracies will turn tomorrow with renewed determination to "the stern tasks of sacrifice and daring which shall give children a right to live in a free and decent world."

Churchill closed with the fervent words: "In God's mercy, a happy Christmas to you all."

The President proclaimed New Year's day as a day of prayer and consecration to the heavy tasks ahead.

Leaders Side by Side.

The two leaders stood side by side on the south portico of the White House, surrounded by a few members of the White House official family and the prime minister's entourage.

A large throng poured onto the White House grounds and massed about the large tree. The tree lighting ceremony was the 19th in the capital's history, but the first held on White House grounds.

The ceremony opened with an invocation by the Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, rector of the Catholic University of America, in which Churchill was hailed as a man of "tears and blood and sweat and patience."

Will Address Congress.

On Friday afternoon, Prime Minister Churchill will address an informal joint session of congress. Justices of the Supreme court, members of the cabinet, and possibly the President, will attend.

In making his appearance, Churchill will be following a World war tradition. After America's entry into that conflict in 1917, leaders of the allied nations, including Marshal Joseph Jacques Joffre of France, made appearances before congress.

Tomorrow morning the President and the prime minister will attend Christmas service in Foundry Methodist church.

MERCHANT SHIP SAILORS GIVEN $5,000 LIFE POLICY

Washington, Dec. 24 [Special].—The United States Maritime commission announced today that members of American flag merchant ship crews have been protected by a $5,000 war risk life insurance policy since Dec. 22, and that war bonus rates, to be established soon for mariners entering dangerous waters, probably will be retroactive to Dec. 7.

Maritime commission officials said the announcement was made so members of merchant ship crews would be certain of life insurance coverage pending further consideration and decision by the Maritime war emergency board, whose appointment by President Roosevelt was requested last week by shipowners and Maritime unions.

Exceptions are made for voyages exclusively on inland waters of the United States or on waters of the Gulf of Mexico, which "include the harbors of Key West and Havana and all waters west of the line from the easternmost point of the city of Key West to the easternmost point of the city of Havana."

URGE REMOVAL OF 46 RADIO MEN FROM U. S. SHIPS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—The navy announced today that a qualification board had recommended the removal of 46 commercial radio operators from merchant ships flying the American flag. Their names were not announced. The board, headed by Rear Adm. Adolphus Staton, retired, acted under a new law prohibiting the presence on merchant ships of operators "considered unfit to serve by reason of evidence of subversive activities."

BRITAIN THANKS U. S. FOR MILLION TONS OF FOOD RECEIVED

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard was advised today by the British food mission that 1,000,000 tons of American food being shipped to Great Britain under the lend-lease program had arrived overseas safely.

The notification came in a message from Lord Woolton, minister of food, in which "grateful thanks" of the British people were expressed.

The food consisted principally of dairy, poultry and pork products, canned fruits and vegetables.

Wickard said the communication "adds a note of cheer to our traditionally bountiful Christmas season to know that food from our well-filled national larder is being safely delivered to our friends abroad."

LONDON IS FILLED WITH RUMORS OF NAZIS' NEXT MOVE

Hint Germans Spread Reports Themselves.

Petain's Message

VICHY, France, Dec. 24 (AP).—Chief of State Marshal Henri Petain told the French nation tonight that "the night grows darker over the world—peace is further off than ever." In a gloomy Christmas eve message, addressed primarily to France's prisoners of war in Germany, he deplored the extension of fighting to new continents and "the every day bereaving of thousands of families." He said his hopes of reuniting most of the French prisoners with their families by this Christmas had been dashed, but assured the soldiers he was working for their liberation.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 24.—A report that the Germans "are moving toward Spain" dominated the news in London today. Authoritative circles said Gibraltar was believed to be the axis objective, altho they could find no confirmation of the reported German plans. They suggested the rumors might have been spread by Germans to account for Adolf Hitler's sudden action in assuming the supreme military command.

Other rumors suggested that an attack is being planned against Egypt, Turkey, or North Africa.

The intensification of attacks on Malta, second only to Gibraltar as a base for British Mediterranean operations, suggested to some observers that the axis forces may attempt a sea, air, and parachute assault on Malta similar to that which captured Crete. Plausibility was given to this assumption by reports that much of the German air force has been withdrawn from Russia to Sicily and Greece.

Paris Press Assails Vichy.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 24 (AP).—The German controled Paris press today carried editorials severely criticizing the Vichy government as indications pointed to increased political tension between Germany and France.

The newspapers called upon the government to "make up its mind and choose definitely one way or the other."

The Berlin correspondent of the Basler Nachtrichten said there was no definite progress in ending the tension which has prevailed since Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering met Marshal Petain, French chief of state, Dec. 1.

No Sign of Petain Quitting.

Rumors were heard in some European capitals that Petain was considering resigning, but there was no outward sign of this in Vichy.

The Basler Nachtrichten said that in Berlin the hurried return of Otto Abetz, German envoy in Paris, to the German capital was "a great sensation."

The paper also said that while German-French negotiations apparently were stalled, Italy appeared prepared for closer contact with France.

"No Attack" on Turkey.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 23 [Delayed] (AP).—A reliable unofficial source today said German Ambassador Franz von Papen gave President Ismet Inonu of Turkey categorical assurances yesterday that Germany was not planning an attack on Turkey.

A reported regrouping of German air strength in Greece and Italy following the sudden German retreat in Russia had given rise to fears in many quarters here that such an attack might be imminent.

Word came from other sources close to the government that Turkish, German, and Bulgarian representatives signed a treaty at Sofia today for the completion of new bridges over rivers along the Turkish-Bulgarian frontier.

The bridges were destroyed last spring when Germany attacked Jugo-Slavia and Greece, and the Turks, not satisfied with explanations that they were wanted for commercial purposes, hesitated about permitting their reconstruction.

The unofficial informant said Von Papen told Turkey that talk of any attack was malicious propaganda.

75 Mental Casualties of War in State's Care

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP). — Illinois mental hospitals already are caring for 75 mental casualties of the "army of '41," Guy E. Bonney, superintendent of the division of veterans' service, reported today. Bonney disclosed the commitment of soldiers suffering from mental diseases in letters to veterans' organizations offering the services of the state to victims of the present war.

BIG BASES BUILT ALONG ATLANTIC, GERMANS CLAIM

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—The British radio today quoted a German broadcast as saying intensive fortification works along Europe's Atlantic coast had been completed after 18 months, furnishing "a complete base and support for offensive operations against Britain."

The broadcast quoted the Germans as saying new naval and air bases had been created, many new batteries set up, bombproof shelters for submarines built, and camouflaged troop shelters erected.

This will give the Germans not only an offensive base but greater security against invasion of Europe, the German radio said.

Quarrels with Wife Over Yule Tree; Hangs Himself

After a quarrel with his wife over trimming the Christmas tree, Erwin Stephensen, 43 years old hanged himself in a clothes closet of his home at 4910 Diversey avenue last night.

The wife, Daisy, told police Stephensen was a WPA clerk. She said he had been drinking, and that he had suffered from a heart ailment recently.

"Our Country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

LET NOTHING YOU DISMAY.

What would you, the reader, undertake to say if space in this column were available for your reflections upon Christmas in the world of today? Would you find it difficult to reconcile the Christian world with the world of war on the day devoted to peace, good will, and the triumph of good over evil? Both worlds exist, and in part of the theater of terrific and destructive action the Christian world is divided against itself.

It has been recognized that life in the individual, in the community, in the state, and in the race itself, is a struggle between good and evil. The high principled and idealistic individual finds fulfillment and satisfaction in the discipline which sustains the ascendancy of his ideals. To say that there is a struggle tells people nothing that they do not know.

That struggle now involves the entire world. It has sprung out of what we regard as malignancy. Evil men have prevailed, to the dismay of people who cannot understand the prolonged success of such intentions and such characters.

We speak only for our own nation when we say Americans need not be dismayed. They are not in this war because they sought any of their neighbors' possessions or desired to do them ill. They desire conditions which would conform to the creed of Christmas day, and it is against their will and against their principles that hatred and brutality should cause so much suffering and set back the evolution of people everywhere.

But Americans can celebrate Christmas with its solemn rites and its open handed kindness in good conscience and with undoubting minds. Their own attitude toward the troubled world is proof that their faith is well founded. If it were not they couldn't be disposed as they are toward other peoples to whom, if they could, they would carry the palms of peace and not the swords of war. Certainly this is a triumph for the spirit of the day.

If the American people hate anything and thereby seem to contradict themselves, the hatred is merely for evil things. Justice has been the foundation of the American republic and has given it its ideals. The republic has fought for principle before and is now engaged in a struggle familiar to its forebears. War is a monstrosity, but it is modified by the intentions of the people who find themselves in battle. If their will is good and their honor untarnished, they may set themselves confidently to the task which has been thrown upon them.

In spite of the discouragements the struggle for right gains something in each conflict. If it did not, this nation would not exist. So long as it adheres to its ideals, the Christmas rites are not mocked by the horrid events occurring while they are celebrated.

We can be of good courage.

RATIONING TIRES.

Rationing of automobile tires and tubes will cause hardship, but citizens should remind themselves that the first job of the country is to win the war, and the first step toward victory is the creation of a great military machine. The planes and vehicles of war must roll on rubber. If there is only enough rubber on hand for the machines, they must have it all.

Next in importance, the government must see that it does not impede the efforts of those enlisted in the battle of production by a too drastic application of rationing. Many of the plants manufacturing armaments are not readily accessible by bus, street car, or train. Workers and executives must use cars to get to these factories and shippers must employ trucks to move the materials. These categories deserve priority in the civilian allocation of tires.

The general public may find that the family car must be used sparingly and perhaps that it must be left in the garage. The idea will not prove popular. Tire dealers and garage owners will notice the loss of business. All must recognize that the deprivation, no matter how keenly felt, is in the national interest and for the national security.

In time, if the war continues, we can expect that substitute materials will be produced in quantity. South American rubber trees will begin to fill part of our needs and guayule rubber from Mexico and the southwestern states will be brought into production. Then there should be tires and tubes for every one.

Meantime, there may be a tendency for thefts of tires to increase and a black market to spring up. It is the patriotic duty of all of us to see that neither abuse makes headway. All tires bear serial numbers. The motorist should jot them down and if his tires are stolen he should report the numbers to police. This will be the most effective method of preventing thieves from profiting and fences from operating. It will be virtually certain that any tire offered for resale has been stolen if its serial number is found to have been cut off.

The certificate of title law virtually ended the wave of automobile thefts which reached a peak about 10 years ago. Close supervision by police of accessories dealers made it difficult for fences to continue disposing of stolen parts. Serial numbers will enable the authorities to prevent an illegal traffic in stolen tires from developing. Altho the prohibition era has made the American public tolerant of bootlegging, the people must refuse to succumb to the temptation to buy tires in any black market which may develop.

HEALTHY—AT PRESENT.

The national desire is to make things as unhealthy as possible for the Japanese, so it is with restrained regret that our Dr. Cutter says that altho the Japs are little they are tough. Dr. Cutter is health editor and he has to look at things objectively. His views apply for the present. Later, when our army, navy, and air force get into stride, the Japs may not look so tough and Dr. Cutter may find that their health has declined.

The doctor also states that the Japanese are less inclined to hypochondria when ill or exposed to pain than the European. Those who remember the American soldier in the World war may recall that he showed little morbid anxiety about himself or the way the world was going when he was on his back in the hospital. His main idea was to get back into circulation as soon as possible, and in the interim he generally took things as they came. He had few if any complexes, no capacity for self-pity, and he was never known to get into tantrums and chew the edge of a rug, as Herr Hitler is said to do when the world is too much with him.

If Dr. Cutter will tolerate the suggestion, we would like to say that he emphasized the wrong psychological factor. He should concern himself less with why the Jap is not hypochondriac and more with why he is subject to megalomania.

MR. CHURCHILL MEETS THE PRESS.

Many of the Washington reporters appear to have been amazed at the ease with which Mr. Churchill handled himself at the President's press conference on Tuesday. It was, in a sense, a new experience for him but he played the game masterfully and without the slightest show of embarrassment.

That was to be expected. As a product of the British political system, Mr. Churchill is an old hand at meeting a barrage of questions. The press conference at the White House must have seemed to him a good deal less strenuous and exacting than the type of interrogation to which he is accustomed. The reporters were all on his side. They were not hecklers such as every British politician expects to face in political campaigns and they were not members of the opposition party in the house, intent upon embarrassing him.

No one who is acquainted with Mr. Churchill's career as a parliamentarian could have doubted his ability to handle all that the Washington reporters threw at him and much more beside. As leader of the government and as a spokesman for the opposition he has been on both sides of the questioning game and has mastered it. There is little in the technique of interrogation and reply which he doesn't know.

Our public men are treated much more gently. The public in this country regards a heckler at a political meeting as an intruder and he is lucky if he is not thrown out on his ear. In England the heckler is an institution and the candidate respects him as such. The head of the government in our country speaks in public only when he feels like doing so and never is obliged to face his opponents, man to man, in debate. The head of the British government enjoys no such immunity. He has to appear in the commons from time to time to answer questions and defend the course he and his colleagues have taken. Many an administration has been turned out of office thru failure to meet and parry the thrusts of the opposition.

Both systems have their advantages. In this country an able executive who is not skilful in impromptu debate can rise to the top and hold his position. In England, a slow-witted man has little chance to get to the top and less chance, particularly in time of crisis, to stay there.

BLACKOUT AT GARY.

Readers of THE TRIBUNE saw in the picture of the smoke screen thrown up over the great Carnegie Illinois Steel plant at Gary an explanation of why the Germans have been able to maintain their heavy industry in the Ruhr valley in spite of the most vigorous and sustained attacks by the British air force. The use of factory smoke to blot out an industrial area too huge to be concealed by camouflage was originally a German artifice. The experiment at Gary indicates that with a little experience it can be made most effective.

A steel mill cannot be hidden but when it is placed beneath a pall of smoke several miles in extent the mathematical chance of a bomb hitting a spot where it will do substantial damage becomes extremely slight. This is one subject on which we can afford to learn from our enemies, altho the lesson properly should be applied in the coastal areas rather than in the middle west.

Editorials of the Day

JAPAN'S TWO-MAN SUBS HAD THEIR FORERUNNERS.

[Baltimore Sun.]

In his prepared statement on the Pearl Harbor attack Secretary Knox mentioned for the first time Japan's use of two-man submarines. One or more of these miniature craft was captured by our naval forces and yesterday the navy department released a partial description of them.

They are suicide craft—far more vulnerable than even the ordinary submarine, which is the least protected of all war vessels. Their cruising radius is no more than 200 miles.

Whether or not the existence of such craft was a surprise to naval experts, it no doubt surprised the public. Hitherto many laymen have thought of "supersubmarines"—gigantic U-boats capable of great cruising range and of carrying heavy armament and even aircraft. One such oversize undersea boat exists—the French Surcouf, now in British hands. But, according to Jane's annual, the Surcouf was never counted a success, and authorities doubted the experiment would be repeated.

The two-man submarine represents the other extreme. Yet in essence it may be said to have been foreshadowed more than a century ago by an American inventor. Robert Fulton built a "diving boat," the Nautilus, at Havre in 1800-'01, and with only three mechanics as a crew put it thru successful trials before a French commission. When France failed to take up his invention he gained Britain's interest in it and, indeed, in 1804 sought to demonstrate its practicability by an expedition against the French fleet in the harbor of Boulogne. That attack failed only because his torpedoes proved defective.

Here the world saw a four-man submarine in actual operation for the first time. But the first undersea boat which ever sank a vessel was the Confederate semisubmersible which blew up the Housatonic off Charleston in 1864; even that primitive U-boat, however, carried a crew of nine, tho certainly her spar-torpedo was very like the high explosive charge under the stern of the new Japanese craft.

Unquestionably the two-man submarines are dangerous, especially if they can be put into operation near large and costly vessels. But probably their chief value, like that of the attack in which they took part, was one of surprise. Their limitations, their extreme fragility, and the fact that the navy is now acquainted with all their secrets should tend sharply to decrease their future usefulness to the enemy.

CIVILIAN DEFENSE ODDITY.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

New York, whose mayor is Civil Defense Chief La Guardia, has no air raid sirens. This was disclosed when puzzled citizens wondered—during those false alarms—why the fire engines were making even more noise than usual. But Mayor La Guardia's civil defenders have a complete set of very smartly designed red, white, and blue insignia for their sleeves.

VARIATIONS ON A THEME.

This column's custom for Christmas Day is to devote its entire space to verses by its contributors in the mood of the occasion. It will start, however, with a chant from the Gospel according to St. Luke—the prophecy of Zacharias over his new born son who became John the Baptist.

THE FORERUNNER.

And thou, Child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest:
For thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways;
To give knowledge of His salvation unto His people
By the remission of their sins,
Thru the tender mercy of our God;
Whereby the dayspring from on high hath visited us,
To give light to them that sit in darkness and in the shadow of death,
To guide our feet into the way of peace.

TRIBUTE TO AN UNKNOWN.

From north, and east, and south, and west they speed—
Bright harbingers of warmth and kindly cheer,
To make these days the gladdest of the year
Because they meet a simple human need—
To know that we're remembered! This small deed
Reveals old friends and new, both far and near,
Intent on taking steps to make it clear
That friendship's vast importance is agreed!

A toast, then, to the man, whate'er his name,
Who first in kindliness conceived this thought—
Be he a peasant, prince, or wand'ring bard!
His deed entitles him to lasting fame—
For all the joy his thoughtfulness has brought Because he first inscribed a Christmas card!

Casual.

CHRISTMAS FANCIES.

To my family I'm just Mother, in the kitchen for the day,
Making all the usual cookies in the usual Christmas way.
But I'm really on a journey; leaving homely tasks behind,
I am Mrs. Marco Polo, as I travel in my mind
To Samarkand and Palestine, the Indies and Cathay,
To lands of dream and story many centuries away.
I may mix the time and places while I mix the cooky dough,
But it's sometimes fun to travel as one's fancy wants to go.
I shall take a dhow to Araby from fragant Isles of Spice,
Where I'm getting cloves and nutmeg in exchange for Chinese rice.
I may meet a maharajah, or young Alexander's men,
Or the legions of Augustus out to change the map again.
I shall shop for dates and raisins in some crowded street bazar,
And perhaps I'll see the Magi who are following a Star—
But a door slams, and the Youngest comes bounding in from school,
And dashes to the kitchen where the pungent cookies cool.
I am jolted from my dreaming when I hear him laugh and say,
"At Christmas time the kitchen is the nicest place to stay."

Alice of Elmhurst.

TO GUARD THE FAITH.

Soft snowflakes fall this Christmas night
Upon a saddened world,
While banners bright, of joy and peace,
Lie trampled, torn, and hurled.

Tho want and terror stalk the land,
Leaving its path of pain,
Above the tumult and the sword
Still sounds the sweet refrain

Bidding us on the "Silent Night"
Hear a soft lullaby
That Mary crooned to her small Son
Beneath an eastern sky,

And guard the faith that Mary kept
To see beyond the Cross
A Risen Lord, a Shining Star,
New Life—above earth's dross.

Elsie Melchert Fowler.

A PRAYER FOR THE DAY.

Dear Lord, be kind to lonely folk today,
To all away from home at Christmas time,
To those who wistful wait by empty hearths
And walk with loneliness when old bells chime;
Bend down in pity, Lord, above the ones
Who have lost all that made life gay and dear,
And lest this day destroy their hard-won strength,
Could you at Christmas time be very near?

Kim.

ADESTE FIDELIS.

Beyond the lowering clouds of doubt and fear
Glad bells ring out to greet the glorious morn;
And clearly, past all present pain, we hear
The angels sing because a Child is born.
He came in panoply of gentleness;
He won, in meekness, an eternal crown.
O Prince of Peace, come now, again, and bless
The world, as once you blessed a little town!
. . . For Bethlehem is every human heart
Where doors are open to the King of Love . . .
Now, as the sweet songs of rejoicing start,
We see again His radiant Star above,
And hail, "tho earth is scarred where death has been,"
The deathless promise Christmas ushers in!

HUMANITY VERSUS THE BRUTE.

THE contest for survival is ruthless. Stalwart plants and animals are constantly crowding out and exterminating those that are weak. Thus, it has been said that science is cold—unfeeling. But new truths lead to new discoveries which help to make life safer, richer, and more productive. In consequence, hundreds of thousands of worth while people are carrying on today because the fog of ignorance has been lifted from many hitherto devastating maladies.

But there are certain human attributes, inherent in our natures, which rise above the mere struggle for self-preservation. We all possess them and we hold fast to their character molding influences. Take away affection, sympathy, and graciousness and a world of crass materialism will mock our humanity. Deprived of these characteristics, we become brutes.

The observance of this holiday season thruout Christendom gives the lie direct to the belief that man is nothing but a mass of protoplasm with a dash of salt. It is these qualities, exemplified in the Spirit of Christmas, that set us apart from the wolf pack.

The inhabitants of this old globe need compassion. Perhaps a little more exhibited at the treaty table of Versailles might have created forces so mighty, have established them on so solid a foundation, that it would have been impossible for one man to have defied the age old yearning for "Peace on earth, good will toward men."

But thoughts for others cannot be delivered in packages, nor weighed in pounds. Neither can they be paid for with coin of the realm. They signify consideration for children, for those who are sick, for the elderly, and the unfortunate.

We all meet kind persons. We find them among street car conductors, business executives, shopkeepers—in fact, in all walks of life. Every act of theirs typifies an earnest desire to be helpful. And what an aura of comfort and well being they spread about them!

Towns and villages are built upon mutual coöperative interests. In like manner, great industries flourish because of good will. Nations become noble not because the government hands out a dole but because each citizen regards himself as a real neighbor.

Today, more than ever, with a conflict thrust upon us treacherously in the Pacific, do we need national solidarity. There comes a time when it would be craven to turn the other cheek. Humane instincts are lost upon those who cannot comprehend the meaning of honor or of fair dealing.

The physicians of our land will be called upon to enact the rôle of the Good Samaritan. We would not have it otherwise. But we can punish ruthlessly traitors and all those who would destroy our ideals of government.

Only after we have administered a deadly anesthetic to Mars, the god of war, can we re-create international good will. Meanwhile, for all our people, may the spirit of Yuletide prevail.

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

GREETINGS FROM CAMP CROFT.

Camp Croft, S. C., Dec. 21.—Thank you one and all for your generous response to my plea for books.

Thanks to the more than 200 Tribune readers who sent books. Each platoon of this company has a good selection of books in their reading room. The battalion reading room is richer by more than 350 books and the main post library has over 300 more volumes than before.

We tried to write individual thank-you cards, but got snowed under and had to give it up. The personal benefit I have received in letters and greetings has been priceless.

The sincerest thanks of all the officers and men of the 31st battalion and especially company D is expressed in this note as well as our best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year to you all. CORP. R. C. SHERMAN.

UNGRATEFUL CHILDREN.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—There is a dying old mother in the Kankakee state hospital whose well-to-do children have not visited her for years. This mother was a widow when her children were very young and she worked hard to rear them. Names of her children and hundreds of others like them should be published in the papers, so that everybody would know what kind of people they are. K. D.

HELPFUL ACCIDENT SQUAD.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—I wish to commend publicly the courtesy and consideration of Officers Delaney and Smith of Accident Prevention Detail 107. At a rather serious automobile accident I had last evening they offered every possible assistance and remained on hand until the tow wagon had removed my car and saw me started safely on my way home.

FLAGLESS SCHOOL.

Chicago, Dec. 18.—Long may the flag of our beautiful country wave. But not at the Copernicus grade school at 60th and Throop streets.

Upon inquiry as to the whereabouts of the school flag it was told that the rope on the flagpole was broken and that the budget of the board of education did not allow for such emergencies at this time.

HITLER'S STRATEGY.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—Somebody ought to warn this fellow Stalin against Hitler's trickery. DEFENSE CONTRACTS.

Wood, Wis., Dec. 20.—The blunt editorial leader in today's issue of THE TRIBUNE is highly called for and should help to prod congress into enacting whatever law may still be needful to curb the unscrupulous type of "fixers" who, because of their contacts in Washington, have found easy pickings handling defense contracts.

Coming at a time when many patriotic and brave Americans are shedding their blood in defense of their country, the senatorial committee's revelations leave a bad taste in the mouth of the taxpayers whose money goes eventually to pay the huge "commissions" attendant upon contracts engineered by profiteers.

POSSESSION OF WILL.

Peoria, Ill., Dec. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—When my father made his will several months ago, the attorney placed it in his office safe. I have a brother who, because of my father's wishes [so the latter has informed me], will receive nothing under the terms of the will. I will be the sole heir. The attorney stated to me that inasmuch as my father and I have a safety box jointly the will would be safe in his [the attorney's] possession, so that my brother could not in any way obtain and destroy it should he have any desire to do so. My father does not own real estate and he recently placed the stocks that he owns in joint ownership with me. The joint ownership carries "right of survivorship."

1. Is it possible that the attorney has any ulterior motive in keeping the will in his possession?

2. Could my father demand the original or have a copy of same made and delivered to him for the safety deposit box?

3. Even tho the original will were in the safety deposit box is there any manner in which my brother could obtain the will either now or in event of the death of my father?

4. Since there is not any real estate involved would there be any necessity for probate?

5. If there should be no need for probate could the attorney demand any additional fee from the estate or from me should the will be in his possession in the event of the death of my father?

J. H.

1. It is possible but not probable.
2. Yes.
3. This does not seem probable.
4. No necessity for probate appears on the bare facts that you state.
5. We see no necessity for him to demand additional fees.

It seems possible that his motive may be simply the desire to make sure that he is in touch with the situation at the time of the testator's death so that if an attorney is employed he will have a chance.

Test Your Horse Sense By Dr. George W. Crane.

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 40.

1. The philosophy that "rank imposes obligation" is expressed by the phrase
   Nolens volens — Nota bene — Noblesse oblige — Non constat.
2. The Abraham Lincoln National park is in which state?
   Illinois — Kentucky — Indiana — Missouri.
3. A seismograph is employed to record which of these disasters?
   Floods — Cyclones — Earthquakes — Tornadoes.
4. The word Cheddar refers to a variety of Wine — Cheese — Perfume — Fruit.
5. Which one of these was not among the first Christmas gifts?
   Almonds — Myrrh — Gold — Frankincense.
6. The dramatic personality transformation in Scrooge shows that ideas or attitudes may change almost instantly, but social and mechanical habits are not so swiftly altered. For example, a confirmed woman hater might also undergo a quick change of attitude and desire a wife, but he would still need to learn the social graces and technique of first winning a sweetheart. You deserve one point for each correct judgment today in distinguishing between the slow and fast changes possible in the human being.

GOEBBELS TELLS NAZIS ABROAD: 'STAY AT POSTS'

Promises Germany Will Not Fail as in 1918.

BERNE, Switzerland, Dec. 24 (AP).—Paul Joseph Goebbels, Germany's minister of propaganda, appealed openly tonight to Germans in countries abroad to "remain at your posts!"

"You pioneers," he said, "serve our fatherland."

Acknowledging that they would have to gather in secret, he assured his invisible column of listeners that "time will not witness a German breakdown" as in 1918.

But, he admitted, the German task at home is not easy either because of the air raids in many areas.

Demands "Every One's Effort."

Goebbels' radio speech was addressed not only to the Germans abroad but to all soldiers and to the home front.

Stressing that the restrictions in the third Christmas of war were much more severe in Germany than ever before, he said the task requires "every one's efforts, not only those of the soldiers."

It was the third time in a week that Goebbels had appealed for more war effort at home.

To the soldiers and the German column abroad, he said: "You must be strong until the victory is ours."

"The Fuehrer can rely on us," cried Goebbels. "He leads, we follow. Let us believe in our Fuehrer and fight for him for victory and peace."

Goebbels disclosed that even Germany's Christmas candles had been sent to the eastern front "because our soldiers need them badly."

"Tin Soldiers" Lacking, Too.

"Our tin soldiers," he went on, "are lacking because we need the material for better purposes."

But, he added, if Germans had no material gifts to offer, "we will have to lay more stress on moral things."

At one point Goebbels said: "We Germans are not always loved. . . . We are frequently persecuted and hated abroad. . . . We are minorities suffering anti-German propaganda."

But, he added, Germans could have the consolation that their own cities had not been so thoroly destroyed as the cities of enemy countries.

He called upon his hearers to be thankful for past victories and said this Christmas "our soldiers can sit and chat of home as long as the situation permits them to do so."

NEWSMEN ABROAD TALK BY RADIO TO RELATIVES IN U. S.

American newspaper correspondents in London exchanged Christmas greetings with their families in the United States last night over a short wave hookup arranged by the National Broadcasting company. Their conversations were broadcast over the company's Red network.

The relatives talked to the war correspondents in studios in Chicago and and New York. In the studio here Mrs. E. E. Bunnelle of Urbana, O., talked to her son, Robert Bunnelle, and Miss Virginia Landstrom of 208 West Marquette road talked to her father, Russell Landstrom. Both are with the Associated Press.

Miss Jean Deuss of 229 Clifford court, Madison, Wis., also talked to her father, Edward Deuss, who is with the NBC in London. The broadcast began here at 6:30 p. m. The newspaper men in London pointed out that it was after midnight there.

THRONG ATTENDS MASS AT CHURCH OF THE NATIVITY

Bullitt Visits Shrine in Bethlehem.

BETHLEHEM, Dec. 25 [Thursday] (AP).—The little hall of St. Catherine's, adjoining the Church of the Nativity, was filled to capacity early today as his beatitude, the Latin patriarch, intoned the pontifical mass which precedes the ringing of Bethlehem's bells and the ceremonial unveiling of the Babe.

Diplomatic and consular corps present included William C. Bullitt, United States special envoy to the middle east, making his first pilgrimage to the ancient shrine.

WAR COLORS YULETIDE

BY JOSEPH FRANCIS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JERUSALEM, Palestine [by mail].—Despite the war and its attendant confusion, Christmas this year will find the holy city only lightly touched by the conflict, as peaceful and comely as ever. However, there are signs of the war—air raid shelters, the uniforms of four or five armies, and blackouts.

Adding an unusual touch of color to Jerusalem's Christmas scene are the kitbags and bed rolls of the soldiers, which cram the hotel corridors, and the wounded soldiers in their white and blue hospital togs hobbling about the city's quiet streets.

Another spot of color in the Jerusalem scene is provided by the red "S" boards in the streets pointing to air raid shelters. During the blackout, those who frequent the shelters return after a fashion to the days of Solomon, for one of the shelters is a set of caves which were hewn for that ancient king. They are known as Solomon's Quarries and are located near the Damascus gate.

Preparations Started Early.

Despite the war, Jerusalem began preparing early for the Christmas season. Even in September many stores began to deck their fronts in "feast dress" and Holy Land curiosities and mother of pearl articles went on sale. Show windows bore signs such as, "Christmas cards sold here," and many soldiers from almost every corner of the globe thronged the store to buy cards and presents for their families. The soldiers bought their presents early so that they would be delivered by the war-slowed mails in time for Christmas.

Anticipating a brisk Christmas business, one Bethlehem citizen many weeks ago rented a large house opposite the Church of the Nativity which he will open as restaurant, confectionery, and coffee house for the Christmas season.

"Y" Entertains Soldiers.

Soldiers visiting Jerusalem on their Christmas leaves will find a diversity of entertainment available, altho all of it is a quiet sort in keeping with the city's traditions. The Arab cafés offer chess, backgammon, and other games and here in oriental surroundings many soldiers while away their time in friendly games with Arabs.

The soldiers who do not frequent the cafés find much to occupy their time in the magnificent YMCA building. Here they may dine, enjoy a shower, and play such games as cricket or tennis. The "Y" also offers musical and dramatic entertainment.

UNCLE WILLIAM'S CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—DRAWN BY JOHN GILBERT

These above all . . . on this Christmas day

Frost-powdered dawn stealing across a freedom-loving land . . . on this day, set apart in the name of Love. Eager scrambling on the stairway . . . a headlong rush for the glistening tree. Excited flurries of tissue . . . anticipations fulfilled. Tantalizing aroma of an old-fashioned dinner, shared with Service Men guests. Dusk, deepening across the afternoon . . . nostalgia stirred by whiffs of balsam and the scent of pine. Brave thoughts for loved ones, far away . . . new hope awakened by childish laughter, the deep understanding of family and friends.

Marshall Field & Company

wishes for you on this Christmas day!

WRITS GRANTED WIVES HOLD 3 IN ALIMONY ROW

Bonds They Can't Furnish Only Way to Freedom.

Three men, incarcerated thru a strange abuse of a law, sat in alimony row at the county jail yesterday and gazed into a future in which they see no freedom.

In the last three weeks a number of other inmates of alimony row have been summoned to court for hearings. Some were given a Christmas present of their freedom after promising to make support payments as due hereafter. Others were released after arranging to make payments in arrears.

But these three were not released. They are in alimony row on writs of ne exeat republica; for them there is no recourse unless they can conjure up $500 or $1,000 cash bond, and all are penniless.

Wives Charge Plans to Flee.

The three are there because of their wives, each of whom has gone into court and testified her husband was about to flee the court's jurisdiction. The court then ordered the man's immediate arrest and sent him to jail until able to furnish the cash bond, thus guaranteeing his appearance in court in any future proceedings.

In a quixotic interpretation of the "let the punishment fit the crime" refrain from one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operettas, the men thus may be held for an indefinite period.

Listen to the story of Pete Andersen, a handsome Dane of 39, who has worked for one Chicago firm 13 years. His wife, Maria, with whom he lived until five days before his arrest signed the petition against him. She said he was going to California.

Loses $600 in Pay.

"I wasn't," he said. "I have a good job. In 74-days in jail I've lost $600 in pay. I left her for a good reason; her mother-in-law, with whom we lived, had me arrested after $3,000 was stolen from her. I was acquitted of that, but naturally I didn't go back to her house.

"While gone I sent my wife $20, but then in five days here came this writ. I don't know why. I don't owe her a cent, and I hadn't even removed a tooth brush from the premises. The boys where I work raised $106 toward my bond, but that isn't $500, and here I sit."

Emmett O'Leary, a salesman of 4233 North Albany avenue, admits he owes his wife money for the support of their children. "But," he adds, "I just went haywire when she remarried; that's all. But that isn't fleeing the state. I stayed a year with my aunt in Elgin and I have a job waiting right here. But this way, say," and he sighed. "I can't say I'll be here until my hair grows back," stroking his bald head. "It won't. But I guess I'm here for keeps; $1,000 bond!"

Another Tells His Story.

Dennis Carpenter, 33, a metal finisher, told his story. His wife, Mary, divorced him in June, 1940, and since then, he said, he has paid $15 a week to support their three children, coming in from his job in Gary, Ind., every two weeks to see them.

"The day before Thanksgiving," he said, "I called her and wanted to take them all to Thanksgiving dinner. She said fine. So I drove over, and there, at her door, was a cop waiting for me with a writ.

"I have a good job, $40 a week, and I left $600 worth of tools lying around that garage in Gary. But now I have that $500 bond to make and I'm sunk. Anyway, if I go to court and say I'm going back to work in Gary—that's Indiana, you know—here I am right in this jail for life."

PACKERS MUST PAY 15 MILLION IN BACK SALARY

A 15 million dollar Christmas present will be given an estimated 100,000 packing house workers in Chicago and other cities as a result of a decision of Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe yesterday which upheld the wage and hour division in a test case against Swift and company.

Judge Igoe agreed with the division that the packing houses may exempt from overtime provisions of the fair labor standards act for 14 weeks annually only employés engaged in the handling, dressing, and slaughtering of livestock. This means that back overtime wages since October, 1938, will be given to thousands of employés.

Other firms which will pay are Armour and company, Wilson and company, Cudahy Packing company, John Morrell and company, and the Cudahy Brothers, Milwaukee.

15 ALIMONY ROW INMATES FREED; FOUR SENT BACK

Fifteen alimony row inmates received their freedom yesterday and Tuesday when they informed Judge Rudolph Desort, who committed them, that they intended to keep up support payments in the future. The judge sent four others back to jail.

Frank Sargin, a decorator sent to jail Oct. 3 for being $490 in arrears on support payments for his daughter, Elaine, 18, of 653 West 120th street, was freed when the daughter asked Judge Desort to release him.

DISMISS CHARGE AGAINST BOOER OF F. D. R. FILM

A disorderly conduct charge against Edward Loss Jr., 23 years old, who booed pictures of President Roosevelt in a loop theater on Dec. 14, was dismissed yesterday by Judge Oscar S. Caplan in South State street court.

Judge Caplan said an individual has no more right to boo the President than to give a false fire alarm in a public place, but dropped the charge against Loss because the latter has formally apologized to the President and has bought $200 in defense bonds. Loss, who lives at 1010 North Harvey avenue, Oak Park, was represented by Attorney Sol R. Friedman.

Firemen of Sixth Division Again Remember Needy

For the second year the sixth division of the fire department, whose headquarters is at 1701 North Washtenaw avenue, delivered 75 Christmas baskets of food and toys to the neediest families in the district. Thomas Scanlan and Jerry Sheehan, division marshals, and Edward Shanahan and Joseph Szuczski, battalion chiefs, were in charge. About 300 firemen donated the money with which the presents were purchased.

ARMY SPEEDS UP REPLACEMENT OF OLDER OFFICERS

Younger Vets of World War Moving Up.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 24.—(AP)—The army, stepping up the pace of an extensive rejuvenation program started last summer, is filling the ranks of its colonels and generals—the key commanders—with men in their late 40's and early 50's, a study of recent appointments shows.

Most of these officers were commissioned shortly before the World war began or during its early stages.

Mass turnovers have taken place since war was declared two weeks ago. The war department ordered the immediate replacement of overage officers so that all units of the army would be prepared to move into combat zones with the least possible delay. The replacements still are far from complete.

Colonels Most Affected.

Of all ranks affected by the age limits, colonels and lieutenant colonels proportionaltely are the principal groups to be replaced. For instance, three-fourths of the staff chiefs of 2d army headquarters are being changed, and about two-thirds of the regimental commanders in 2d army divisions are affected. The turnover is in about the same ratio thruout most of the nation's land forces.

Typical of the new blood taking hold is Brig. Gen. Paul J. Mueller, 2d army's new chief of staff, who at 49 is one of Uncle Sam's youngest generals. The sharp featured officer is a 1915 graduate of the United States Military academy. Age limit for brigadiers is 60, for major generals, 62.

New Colonels in '40s.

The colonels newly brought into command are mostly in their late 40's and the lieutenant colonels in their early 40's; the age limit for colonels is 55, for lieutenant colonels 52.

The lopping off of senior officers over the age limits is bringing promotion to so many officers in the lower grades, that the number of overage majors, captains and lieutenants has been greatly reduced. The age limit for majors is 47, for captains, 42, for first lieutenants 35 and for second lieutenants 30.

ROBUST, TENDER, THOUGHTFUL: IT'S CITY'S YULETIDE

Joy Is Commingled with Thoughts of War.

BY CHARLES LEAVELLE.

Chicago's millions last night began celebrating the city's second war Christmas of the 20th century with all the outward joy and lustiness of other years. In the hearts of most there dwelt a calm determination that never shall tyranny or bombs black out the traditional American Christmas, but on the surface it was the same colorful observance as of old.

It was the most prosperous Christmas season in Chicago in many years. The city's merchants reported all time sales records in many lines. And as hub of the nation's transportation network, Chicago had the busiest Christmas in the memory of veteran travel agents.

Airlines Fly Extra Planes.

American Airlines sent five extra sections out yesterday and would have dispatched more had they been available. The line is sold out thru Dec. 28 on the New York flights, according to L. W. King, district sales manager. Two extra sections left for the southwest on Braniff Airways—one of them carrying 18 midshipmen and a lone young woman, Miss Mary Martha Gray of Kansas City, niece of former Senator James A. Reed.

United Air Lines used 18 extra sections in addition to its regular 13 trips east and eight west during the day. And it was the same story with the railroads, whose business was increased unexpectedly by the Greyhound bus strike.

Long distance telephone traffic had jumped sharply, even above last year's record high, company officials said early in the evening. The war emergency caused many more folk to be away from home this year and they spoke to their loved ones from many parts of the continent.

Innkeepers wore broad smiles as travelers and home folk patronized their dining and dancing rooms and bars. Even the hardbitten Chicago taxi driver appeared to thaw a bit, even tho an opposite condition in the weather would have meant bigger revenues.

Mail Volume Exceeds 1940.

The flood of mail that swept thru the Chicago postoffice in the first 23 days of December exceeded that of the corresponding period for 1940 in all branches except incoming parcel post. Other classifications were up 3.7 to 15.6 per cent and postal revenue for the period was $5,870,939.84—an increase of 6.5 per cent.

Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen said that for the first time in its history the early mailing campaign had been so successful as to find the postoffice clear yesterday morning. Two or three million pieces of first class mail usually are awaiting distribution at that time.

It was a Christmas of plenty and much was done by those who had to cheer those who had not. The Good Fellows, with their hearty greetings and their baskets, crammed with toys, festive foods, and warm clothing, led the march of happiness givers.

Christmas parties and celebrations were planned at various park playgrounds and field houses for neighborhood children. Gifts and sweetmeats were to be distributed.

Christmas Feast for Horses.

One of the most moving of yesterday's observances was that of the Anti-Cruelty society which held its annual horses' Christmas. To more than 1,000 Chicago horses that have come upon evil days, agents of the society gave nosebags filled with chopped apples and carrots mixed with cracked corn, crushed oats, bran, and a pinch of salt. To some of the more deserving went warm blankets.

For human beings who are in evil days, thousands of Christmas dinners are being prepared by charitable organizations, restaurant, and tavern proprietors, and individuals.

Most of these things have been done before. The sights and sounds that accompany them and the happiness they bring are an integral part of the great tradition. And knitting them together this year is that calm and clear resolve that the next Yuletide find peace on earth and good will to men.

RATEGAN DENIES MINORITY TAKES PARTISAN STAND

State Rep. Joseph L. Rategan, spokesman for Chicago house Democrats at Springfield, yesterday denied Gov. Green's charge that the Democratic minority in the legislature is "playing politics" by opposing portions of the governor's defense special session program.

Rategan declared that by unanimously supporting bills to double the strength of the Illinois Reserve Militia and appropriating $750,000 for the State Council of Defense, the Democratic side had voted for everything of an emergency nature that the administration had proposed.

"What we have opposed are not emergency measures, but political measures," Rategan continued. "The bill to control germ cultures has 802 jobs, and there are 650 jobs contained in the measure to triple the state police force."

The governor and his house leaders—Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg, and Representatives Reed F. Cutler, Lewistown, and Frederick W. Rennick, Buda lashed the Democratic side after the germ control bill and another health zoning measure had failed to pass in the house.

CAMBRIDGE WATER HEAD DIES.

Cambridge, Ill., Dec. 24 [Special].—Fred C. Carlson, 79 years old, superintendent of the Cambridge Water works the last 20 years, died last night. Born in Sweden June 26, 1862, he was a blacksmith here many years before he became head of the water department which he helped to install.

BELLS RING OUT, CAROLERS SING ON JOYOUS EVE

The bells of Christmas, rung out thru the centuries in peace or war, pealed thru all Chicago yesterday.

From loop carillon and cathedral chimes, from library steps and dark streets, from public lobby and amplifiers on towers, the ageless carols of the birth of Christ with their message of joy and hope for mankind brought pause and momentary peace to millions of hearers.

All day long the carolers sang. At noon a great crowd gathered in the old postoffice lobby to hear the Post Office Glee club. From 4 p. m. until 6:50 sweet-voiced children from Gomper park, standing on the Randolph street steps of the public library, capes over their shoulders, lighted lanters in their hands, halted throngs of passers-by with their poignant song.

Again, at 5 p. m., the voices of children rang the length of Michigan avenue as the Chicago Nursery and Half Orphanage chorus was heard in a Christmas program on W59C and the Mutual network, a program broadcast to the street from amplifiers placed high on Tribune Tower.

The songs ranged from the Elizabethan cherry tree carol to the gay "Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly" and the traditional, "Adeste Fidelis."

After dark the neighborhoods were thronged with wandering carolers, nearly 100 Protestant churches have sponsored such groups. Later in the evening many of the midnight services in Catholic and Episcopal churches were preceded by carol programs. From 11:30 until midnight the 43 bell carillon of St. Chrysostom's church pealed carols over the near north side.

HOLLAND MAYOR'S WIFE DIES.

Holland, Mich., Dec. 23 [Special].—Mrs. Henry Geerlings, 72 years old, wife of the local mayor, died here today following a long illness.

STRITCH SINGS MIDNIGHT MASS AT CATHEDRAL

Worshipers who over filled the seats of the Holy Name cathedral heard Archbishop Samuel A. Strich celebrate a midnight Christmas mass, restored in Chicago this year after a long period of disuse.

The audience, with many standing in the aisles, gathered early and heard the Holy Name choir sing a number of hymns before the traditional service began. Many other Catholic churches of the archdiocese also held midnight masses.

Other denominations observed the advent of Christmas with special night services. At St. Shrysostom's Episcopal church carols were sung and the 43 bell carillon pealed its message of good will. Scores of Lutheran churches were to hold the Christmas dawn service known as julatta.

MANY PARTIES HELD IN CHICAGO AREA FOR YANKS

Soldiers, Sailors Served Turkey at Posts.

With Yule furloughs either shortened or refused because of the war, thousands of soldiers and sailors in camps and stations in the Chicago area will celebrate Christmas today at parties larger than any their respective posts have ever staged.

Festivities at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, where more than 8,000 young recruits are in training, began last night. Blue jacketed carolers toured the station in navy trucks singing traditional songs and during the evening more than a score of parties were held in barracks. Divine services were held late last night.

The 8,000 recruits will be served at noon today a feast of 7,200 pounds of turkey, with tomato soup, oyster dressing, baked ham, sweet potatoes, giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, and three kinds of dessert. During the afternoon they will be entertained at free motion picture shows, radio stage shows and more parties.

No Holidays Granted.

None of the recruits has been granted leave for the holidays, in keeping with the navy's wish to speed up training.

More than 2,000 of the 3,500 men stationed at the Navy pier school for aviation machinists mates and metal smiths will be on deck for Christmas dinner today. The menu will be the same as at Great Lakes.

The men at the Navy pier will be entertained tonight by a stage show presented by the Variety Artists' guild, and later by movies. Several loop hotels also are staging parties for the sailors.

Reserves to Eat Turkey.

The 350 men at the navy signal school in the Naval Reserve armory will dine on turkey with all the trimmings today in their own mess halls.

A full holiday schedule surrounds the student officers at the Abbott Hall Naval Reserve Midshipmen's school on the downtown campus of Northwestern university. Only about 200 of the 850 midshipmen will be on hand as the remainder have gone to their homes for Christmas.

The 200 midshipmen will be served a traditional Christmas feast at Abbott hall today. Later, many of them will be the guests of Chicago families who have asked to share their holidays with the young men.

Many Ask for Soldiers.

Four hundred soldiers from Fort Sheridan also will be guests of Chicago and north shore families for Christmas dinner today. Officers of the post said many other requests from families for soldiers had to be turned down because they were received too late.

Fort Sheridan authorities were reluctant to reveal how many men will be on hand today for Christmas, but did say those who will be there will be dined and entertained in typical Yule style.

The soldiers received a special Christmas gift from the camp commandant—the privilege of sleeping late this morning without noisy bugles or blasting sunrise guns to shatter their slumbers. This also was observed at Great Lakes and other navy stations.

2,000 Camp Grant Soldiers Visit Homes for Christmas

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 24 [Special].—More than 2,000 Camp Grant soldiers were given passes today to visit their homes over Christmas. Men remaining at camp who live too far away to visit their homes tomorrow may get passes for New Year's eve and New Year's day, it was indicated.

STELLE AND TWO SONS APPLY FOR MILITARY DUTY

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 [Special].—Former Gov. John Stelle has applied for a commission in the United States navy. His two sons, Russell and John Albert, also are seeking to join the country's armed forces.

Gov. Stelle said tonight at his home in McLeansboro that his application is on file at Great Lakes, Ill. He added that he had asked for "active duty."

John Albert, who is married and the father of a 2 year old son, has applied for duty with the navy, Stelle said. Russell, a student at Illinois college at Jacksonville, is preparing an application to join the army air corps.

The former governor, who served as head of the state department during the 100 days prior to Gov. Dwight Green's inauguration, was a captain in a machine gun company with the army during the World war, and saw service in France.

WANT TO HELP GOOD FELLOWS? TIME IS SHORT

The last of the 2,500 Good Fellow baskets pledged to the 1941 campaign were taken out late last night to needy homes. But there is still time to become a Mr. Good Fellow. Scores of unfortunate families are on the Good Fellow bureau file at THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Public Service office located at 1 South Dearborn street. By calling there in person or telephoning Superior 0100 you can get the name of a deserving family for your basket of food, toys, and candy.

BECAUSE OF THE WAR

LONG DISTANCE LINES MUST BE OPEN FOR DEFENSE USE ON CHRISTMAS DAY

War makes it necessary that on this Christmas Day the Government and our National Defense Organizations have first call upon the long distance lines of our Nation's telephone system.

We ask that only urgent calls be placed to distant points outside of the State and that conversation on all calls be as brief as possible.

We hope to handle calls between points within Illinois with reasonable promptness; but despite all we can do, there will be extended delays on many calls, particularly to distant points outside the State—and some will not be completed.

We are sorry to ask you to restrict a custom that is so much a part of the spirit of Christmas; but since there will be no truce over the holidays we feel sure you will understand and be glad to cooperate.

Thank you and a Merry Christmas.

5 POINT PROGRAM FOR PEACE GIVEN WORLD BY POPE

Disarmament, Return to Religion Demanded.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 24 [Official broadcast recorded by the Associated Press].—In a Christmas eve message filled with distress for the world's suffering and foreboding for the future, Pope Pius XII. enunciated today five principles he said all mankind must observe to "guarantee for all peoples a just and lasting peace."

His message and blessing were delivered before the college of cardinals, gathered in their customary Christmas greeting to the pontiff, and broadcast by radio thruout the world.

The pope's five points for a "new order founded on moral principles" essentially made a demand for a post-war halt to offensive arming and a bill of rights for the little man, the little nation, and the little minority.

Describes a New Order.

But even before they can be realized, he said, there must be a return to the true ideals of Christianity, a breach with the prophets of "a new religion without a soul or a soul without religion, a mask of dead Christianity without the spirit of Christ."

"Within the limits of a new order founded on moral principles," Pope Pius said, "there is no room for the violation of the freedom, integrity, and security of other states.

"There is no place for open or occult oppression of the cultural and linguistic characteristics of national minorities, for the hindrance or restriction of their economic resources, for the limitation or abolition of their natural fertility.

"There is no place for that cold and calculating egoism which tends to hoard the economic resources and materials destined for the use of all to such an extent that the nations less favored by nature are not permitted access to them.

Assails Armaments Rush.

"Within the limit of a new order founded on moral principles, once the dangerous sources of armed conflicts have been eliminated, there is no place for a total warfare or for a mad rush to armaments. It is essential to proceed with sincerity and honesty to a progressive limitation of armaments.

"There is no place for the persecution of religion and of the church. For faith is not only a virtue; it is also the divine gate by which all the virtues enter the temple of the soul."

The way to the new age is arduous and dangerous, the pope said, but he declared the alternative is war and "the calamity of a world war, with the economic and social ruin and the moral dissolution and breakdown which follows in its trail should not be permitted to envelop the human race for a third time."

The pope lamented what he called "a Godless and anti-Christian conception of the state" in some countries, which "fetters the individual, depriving him almost of all independence."

Anguished by War.

He returned to this several times, saying he felt "obliged, in the name of truth, to say a word about it," and professed himself unable to explain why "in some parts of the world countless legislative dispositions bar the way to the message of the Christian faith."

The pope said he looked with "a depressing anguish, as if in a dream, upon the terrible armed and bloody conflict which has marked this year now drawing to a close" and on the untold misery and ruin it has left.

He warned that such undreamed-of cost has mounted that those who regard the future must be anxious lest it contract the forces of constructive production.

"The very idea of force," he said, "stifles and perverts the rule of law, permits all the destructive forces to upset and agitate the civil atmosphere until it becomes a raging tempest, and you shall see the notions of good and evil, or right and justice, lose their well defined outlines, become blunted and confused, and finally threaten to disappear."

BURGLARS LOOT SIX APARTMENTS IN ONE DISTRICT

Thieves visited six apartments in the neighborhood of 81st street and Paulina avenue late Tuesday night and early yesterday, and obtained loot totaling $852. The victims were Anthony Byrne, 8115 South Paulina street; Martin Nolan, 1708 West 81st street; Hyman Karasik, 8204 South Laflin street; A. J. Runyan, 1114 West 80th street; Elbert Kluender, 1007 West 80th street, and John Metcalf Jr., 1720 West 80th street. The largest loser was Kluender, in whose apartment the burglars found $300.

MINNESOTA TOWN IS FIRST TO SAY: 'HELLO MR. CLAUS!'

Penasse, Minn., Dec. 24 (AP).—Dim, flickering kerosene lamps burning in snug cabins in the nation's most northerly community — Penasse — lighted the way for merry old St. Nicholas as he sped southward into the United States tonight from his North Pole retreat.

And this isolated section of the nation—Northwest Angle, part of Minnesota and long designated as Santa's first stopping place in the United States, was ready with its annual simple, homespun greeting, minus electric yule lights, for rural electrification hasn't arrived here yet.

The younger of three dozen or so children in the wooded Angle country had stockings in place and Christmas trees—they're numerous in the wild area—gayly decorated, and Mother Nature added her touch by coating tree branches with a heavy layer of sparkling frost.

The Northwest Angle, which boasts a population of 150, and two other settlements, Angle Inlet and Oak Island, is bound on the north and west by a roadless wilderness area and to the east and south by broad, wind-swept Lake of the Woods. Twenty miles across the ice of Lake of the Woods is Warroad, Minn.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Chris Schroder, 54 years old, a laborer, was found dead from carbon monoxide fumes yesterday in the garage at the rear of his home on Deerpath road, near county line road, east of Barrington. Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county pronounced the death suicide.

PAROLEE SEIZED, $3,000 BONDS AND GEMS RECOVERED

Stocks and bonds worth $3,000 besides stolen jewelry and other merchandise were recovered by the Englewood police yesterday with the arrest of Lawrence [Willie] Johnson, 49 years old, a paroled convict. He was arrested by Detectives Norman McGrath and Frank Miller at 305 West 64th street, where he roomed.

Johnson was paroled last Oct. 27 from the Stateville penitentiary where he was serving a robbery sentence. He had been paroled twice previously. Johnson was first sent to jail in 1914 for auto thefts and since that time has not been out of jail more than a few months at a time.

After his first arrest he was sentenced eight times to serve one year in the Bridewell for robbery, burglary and auto thefts. He was sent to Joliet in 1929, was paroled twice and returned in 1936 where he served until last October. He confessed three burglaries and a robbery to Englewood police.

Gunmen Menace Hospital Phone Girl and Take $200

Four robbers, one carrying a shotgun, entered the office of the Jackson Park hospital at 7531 Stony Island avenue last night and compelled the switchboard operator, Miss Edith Locker, to surrender $200 from the cash drawer. The men fled in a tan sedan.

Bakes Wedding Ring Into a Cake; Her Son Finds It

LONDON, Dec. 24 (AP).—Months ago Mrs. A. A. Vial of Greytown, Natal, was helping to mix cakes for the troops abroad when she missed her wedding ring. A note was enclosed with each of 150 cakes which had gone out, asking the finder to return the ring. This week she received a letter from her son, Sergt. Ronnie Vial, saying he had found it.

3 RADIO SINGERS HAVE BIRTHDAYS EACH CHRISTMAS

Gladys Swarthout Among Those Celebrating.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

At least three radio favorites have their birthdays on Christmas day. They are Gladys Swarthout, the Metropolitan Opera singer and star of the Family hour on CBS Sunday afternoons; Betty Olson of the Escorts and Betty, novelty quartet, and Tony Martin, the movie actor. All three have long been featured as singers on the air altho Martin just now is on tour.

Martin will be busy with five shows at the Chicago theater today, and at the Chez Paree tonight. Miss Olson, an Iowa born lass who will be 21 today, will be occupied with rehearsals for her Christmas day appearance which comes at 5:05 p. m. today on WMAQ-NBC.

Miss Swarthout as a child used to consider it a misfortune to have her birthday on Christmas. Now she likes it.

"When I was a little girl," she recalled, "I didn't like a Christmas birthday a bit. For one thing, I never had a birthday party. A birthday cake used to finish off our Christmas dinners. But no one really paid much attention to it—except me.

"Then there was the matter of presents. All my family used to tell me I was getting extra special presents because it was both Christmas and my birthday. My private opinion was that I got just about what I would have for Christmas anyway.

"Almost every year some one in the family would recall how Robert Louis Stevenson had 'bequeathed' his birthday to a little girl born on Christmas day. Everyone would laughingly agree that this was really an excellent idea and that one of them should assign his birthday to me.

"I was genuinely in favor of this scheme and used to hope that it would materialize. But the years went by and no action was ever taken."

Miss Swarthout said that it was still the custom to have a birthday cake for her on Christmas.

"But, just as in earlier years, everybody is too tired and too full to pay any attention to it," she added.

There's a characteristic Saroyan story behind the Christmas play, "There's Something I Got to Tell You," which is to be on the air at 9:15 tonight over WBBM-CBS. Last year William Saroyan was asked by the network to write a Christmas play. Saroyan was in San Francisco at the time. Two days later he finished the play and transmitted it by teletype to New York.

A couple of days after Christmas a second play came from Saroyan with this note: "While I was writing Christmas plays I thought I might as well do two. I think this one is better than the first."

The second one will be broadcast tonight.

A new song by Helen Kahn, 1755 East 55th street, titled "I Haven't Thought of You," will be given its premiere at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow over W-G-N when Frank Wilson sings it. The lyric was adapted from a poem by Carol Atwater which appeared in the Line o' Type column in THE TRIBUNE.

The Pekin police station was in holiday garb yesterday as 200 boys, members of the Pekin Recreation club, were guests at a Christmas party. A tall tree sparkled in the station room and Capt. Edward J. Kelly was the unofficial Santa Claus. There were gifts for all the boys. The presents were contributed by policemen and business men of the district. Among the business men were Roy H. Keeling, vice president of the Studebaker company; James Grogan, president of the Keeley Brewing company; Richard Tilley, president of the Munger Laundry company; John Laas, president of the Sunshine Laundry company, and Benjamin Cohen, hotel operator.

600 SERVICE MEN W-G-N'S GUESTS ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Six hundred soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen were entertained at a Christmas eve broadcast in the main studio of W-G-N last night. They took part in the Shoot the Works quiz program and winners collected cash prizes.

The service men heard a special show in which Miss Marion Claire, the W-G-N Symphony orchestra and the W-G-N chorus participated. The orchestra was conducted by Henry Weber, the chorus by Robert Trendler.

OSSIFIED! A 'DOC' BREAKS HORRIBLE NEWS TO PATIENT

But Then, He Says, He Can Fix It, for a Slight Fee.

This is another article in a series by Tribune reporters who have visited quack doctors and submitted to their "treatments." The state department of registration and education has obtained 11 warrants charging violation of medical laws.

BY BARBARA ADAMS.

This is perfectly awful. I'm slowly turning to stone, "ossifying," even as I sit here writing. Every time I think of it I feel like weeping. It must be so. "Dr." Kabana told me so. "Old Doc" Alf Fred Kabana of Kabana & Kabana—offices in the loop and Cicero.

Guised as a prospective patient, my visit to the elaborate downtown suite at 188 West Randolph street made my afternoon most informative, even if I did hand over $17.50 for a first "treatment."

I saw no evidence when I went to visit "Old Doc" Kabana that he was paying the slightest attention to three charges of practicing medicine without a license that are pending against him in County court.

Wife Is a Partner.

Nor did he give any sign that another and similar case [all four of them brought by the state department of registration] still stands against his wife, Margaret. State inspectors say she conducts her practice in the Kabana & Kabana office at 1907 Austin boulevard, Cicero.

"Old Doc" and Mrs. Kabana were arrested in the recent drive on quacks by the department of registration, ordered by Director Frank G. Thompson of Mount Vernon, Ill., who said he was astounded and shocked at the extent of medical fakery in Chicago. They were first arraigned early in October, and the County court at that time took under advisement a routine motion to quash proceedings against them. The court has not yet returned a ruling.

State's Attorney Courtney's office, however, expects a ruling soon and hopes, it is said, to obtain jail sentences in addition to fines.

She's Taken in Tow.

I was taken in tow by "Doc's" secretary, assistant, and all around girl Friday before I was finally given an audience with the busy man, whose first question was, "What's wrong with you?"

I answered, "I don't know, doctor. This cold has been hanging on."

The "doctor" then asked, in his characteristic broken English, "Do you feel pain in your neck?"

"Yes, doctor," I replied, "that is; sometimes I do."

"Every trouble is in the neck!" he went on. "Much ailment is caused by 'constrictions' in the neck. Life travels at 283,600 miles a second—'tru da neck!"

"Life, doctor? Or light?"

"I said 'Life!' Light on'y travels at the rate of 186,300 miles a second. Life goes twice as fast! We have measure!"

He switched suddenly to his work. "I got 20, 30 women are sterile," he said. "When I finish with them—they o. k. Now they got kids—three, four, five! Dat's trouble with women. Their body in bad shape. I fix! Then they feel labor only hour before baby comes. And baby o. k., too!"

Now, About Her Case.

By this time, however, I was interested in a discussion of my own case. "Do you honestly think you can clear up this condition?" I asked.

"Sure! First we get X-rays," he said.

After three X-rays had been taken I was directed to strip to the waist and don a white surgical coat. Then in a dark room "Old Doc" Kabana gently broke the bad news. "You must have been dropped on your head when you was a baby," he said.

"Other people have told me that," I said, "but I wouldn't believe them."

"And you see this here li'l thing?" and he pointed to what looked like a finger smudge on the negative. "That's slowly turning to stone. In other words, you're getting ossified!"

"O! O, doctor!" and I looked at him, expressing the horror I was trying to feel.

"No, don't get worried," he said.

"Can I be saved?" I asked.

Neck Takes a Beating.

"O, yes—with treatment," he explained. "You see, life can't get to the ligament that's ossifying. See, right here in the picture? The bone should be over here—of course, I'm exaggerating a li'l."

"Gosh, doctor, I hope so!" I quaked, awed by the gravity of my condition.

"But we can fix it," and he led me into an adjacent room, where a sharp cracking of my poor neck bones soon told me that another alleged doctor was practicing his "art" on me.

"How long do you think it will take to cure me?" I asked.

"About six months," he replied. "You will come three times each week for first couple weeks. Then two times week. Then one, and then maybe only once every two weeks."

At his usual rate the cost of getting rid of my cold would be approximately $150.

POLICE SEEK 2 RAPISTS; GIRL, 8, ONE OF VICTIMS

Police of the Burnside district were searching early today for a Negro who was alleged to have raped a young woman and stolen her automobile. The victim, who went to the Illinois Central hospital, said the man forced his way into the car and then drove to 84th street and Eberhardt avenue, where the attack occurred. She said the man drove her back to her home.

On the north side a search was in progress for a man who raped a girl 8 years old near Grace street and Lakewood avenue. The child, who was treated at the American hospital, said the man seized her and forced her into an alley.

WEIGH TAX BILL TO GET 'EVERY DOLLAR WE CAN'

New Revenue Sources May Be Tapped.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Chairman Robert L. Doughton [D., N. C.] said today the house ways and means committee might have to write a new tax bill next year calculated to bring in "every dollar we can reasonably get" instead of just a fixed amount of new revenue.

"We have to obtain all the money we can as expeditiously as possible," Doughton told reporters, "and that means perhaps tapping new sources of revenue, increasing some of the existing rates, and tightening up wherever we can, especially administratively." The group will begin consideration of the new bill Jan. 15.

To Weigh Recommendations.

Both Doughton and Rep. Allen T. Treadway [R., Mass.], another committee member, said scope of the measure could not be determined until the committee passed on recommendations by treasury and congressional tax statisticians.

But members Richard M. Duncan [D., Mo.] and Daniel A. Reed [R., N. Y.] predicted the bill might bite huge chunks out of individual and corporation incomes without placing much emphasis on new excise levies. Treadway said he had even heard of a plan to skim off by taxation all income above a fixed figure.

Call Discussion Premature.

Many committeemen shied away from a discussion of a general sales tax plan or one to withhold for the government 15 per cent of all salaries at the source.

They also said it was premature to discuss suggestions that the 1942 tax bill be collected immediately on 1942 incomes. Federal taxes normally are collected in the year after which income is received.

Reed expressed the opinion that some people might have to draw heavily on their savings to meet the new burden.

Dr. Albert G. Hart, economics professor at Iowa State college, recommended that the committee study the possibility of raising taxes equal to 90 per cent of federal expenditures. On the basis of an annual outlay of $60,000,000,000, Hart would have $54,000,000,000 a year raised by taxation.

The last tax bill, designed to raise $3,600,000,000, boosted probable total federal income this year to approximately $13,000,000,000.

THIEF WOUNDED IN FLIGHT DIES; COMPANION HELD

George Klein, 22 years old, who was shot by police early yesterday when he tried to escape arrest, died later in Swedish Covenant hospital. Policemen Oliver Hodges and Charles Egan of the Summerdale station surprised him and a companion looting an automobile in front of 845 Ainslie street.

Stanley Romanowski.

Klein, who lived lived at 4053 Sheridan road, had been arrested previously for thefts from autos. His bride of one month, Victoria, told the police that her husband frequently brought home merchandise which she believed was stolen. Lieut. Michael Ahern said that Klein had looted more than 30 automobiles on the north side in the last few months.

Klein's companion, Stanley Romanowski, 19, of 6112 Eastwood avenue, was seized while trying to hide in the auto they were looting. He admitted being with Klein in several thefts.

MERCY SLAYER OF IMBECILE SON GIVEN FREEDOM

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—Louis Repouille, 39 year old elevator operator convicted of manslaughter in the chloroforming of his 13 year old imbecilic son, Raymond, was given a suspended 5 to 10 year sentence today.

Repouille testified at his trial that everything went blank after he placed a cloth dipped in chloroform on his son's face. He admitted he had thought of doing away with the boy "thousands of times." Judge Jonah J. Goldstein in imposing sentence today said:

"The words, 'mercy killing' have no sanction in law. The fact that you were the father of the imbecile did not give you the right to kill him."

He pointed out that Repouille was married, the father of four normal children, dependent upon him for support and guidance, and the jury had recommended leniency.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

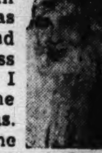
THE QUESTION.

What is the most interesting thing you have noticed since you have been acting as Santa Claus?

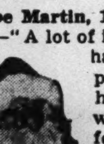
WHERE ASKED.

In the loop streets and department stores.

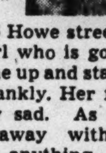
THE ANSWERS.



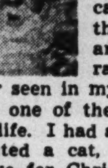
Frank Broderich, 538 West Madison street.—"A little girl came up to me the other day and dropped some money in the chimney. She was about 5 years old and well dressed. To pass the time with her, I asked her what she wanted for Christmas. 'Please, may I have some pork chops?' she answered. I asked her if she didn't want anything else and she replied, 'O, I'll get lots of things but I bet I don't get any pork chops.'"



Joe Martin, 1610 North Waller avenue—"A lot of interesting things have happened while I've been playing Santa Claus here. One little boy wanted the whole world for Christmas but finally decided he would share it with some others. I asked another boy about 4 years old what he wanted and he replied, 'I'm going to leave that up to you. You have more experience about those things than I do.'"

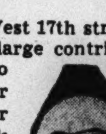


A. O. May, 550 Surf street—"I was sitting on my throne here the other day looking into space and a little boy with thick glasses passed by me. He looked up at me and smiled and said, 'What's the matter, Santa? No business?'"



Christ Sorensen, 1945 Howe street—"Last week a little girl who is going blind came up and stared at me blankly. Her face was very sad. As she turned away without saying anything, she caught a glimpse of me thru the side of her eye and gave me the most radiant smile I have ever seen in my life. I would say it was one of the biggest moments in my life. I had another little girl who wanted a cat, a dog, a rat, and a snake for Christmas. I kidded her and asked her if she didn't want any cockroaches, too. 'O, you can throw in a few,' she said."

William Miller, 1128 North La Salle street—"The nicest thing that happened this year was a contribution of $10 from a poorly dressed old lady. I tried to ask her name but she hurried away without telling me. That was the largest amount I received, incidentally. I have had some well-to-do looking people drop a penny in the chimney."



Emery Minker, 439 West 17th street—"A lady dropped a large contribution in the chimney, so I smiled and asked her what she wanted for Christmas. 'A mink coat,' she replied promptly. I told her, 'Lady, I'm not that kind of a Santa Claus.'"

POLICEMEN TAKE SPECIAL COURSES IN TRAFFIC WORK

Scientific methods of making American cities safer for motorists and pedestrians are being studied by 18 specially selected police officers from all parts of the country at the Northwestern university traffic institute.

The nine month course is designed to give policemen a broad view of traffic control and accident prevention. The subjects include accident investigation, physical laws governing the operation of an automobile, photography, traffic flow regulation, scientific aids to investigation, traffic and national defense, accident records, and psychology.

The 18 men attending represent 7 state police or highway patrol departments and 11 municipal departments. Eight city police are attending on $1,200 fellowships provided by the James S. Kemper Foundation for Traffic Police Training. Five state officers are attending on similar fellowships granted by the Automotive Safety foundation.

ORDER WILLIAMS OUSTER HEARING ON GRAFT CHARGE

Governor Acts Against Detroit Auditor.

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24 [Special].—Gov. Murray D. Van Wagoner today took steps to determine whether Edward H. Williams, member of the Wayne county [Detroit] board of auditors, should be removed from office on the basis of grand jury charges that he collected graft and frequently sold his vote on the board.

The governor designated Probate Judge Maurice E. Tripp of Adrian to conduct a hearing into the misfeasance and malfeasance charges contained in a petition filed with the state executive by Judge Homer Ferguson of Wayne Circuit court, the jurist who has been conducting one-man grand jury inquiries into Detroit and Wayne county graft cases for several years.

$59,000 "Take" Charged.

Williams, a Democrat, is accused in the ouster petition of having received $59,000 for assisting persons and firms to obtain county business and of having told emissaries to "go forth and shake down the bushes" for whatever tribute was available. Harry A. Mead of Detroit, who managed the Wayne county gubernatorial campaign of former Gov. Frank Murphy, now United States Supreme court justice, is among those named as having paid Williams for favors.

Gov. Van Wagoner, also a Democrat, also is irked by the presentation of the petition to him by Judge Ferguson and William E. Dowling, Wayne county prosecutor, without previous intimation of the action. The judge and prosecutor were accompanied by newspaper men and photographers and Van Wagoner was understood to have resented it as an effort to embarrass him politically. He refused to look at the petition for several hours, later consulting his legal counsel, Byron L. Ballard, and Herbert J. Rushton, Republican attorney general, before ordering the hearing.

Accused of Job Sales.

The petition states that Mead paid Williams $4,500 during the latter's eight years in office to obtain award of contracts for Solventol Chemical Products, Inc., and that other payments included: $5,325 for the "sale" of minor county jobs; $1,600 from Nathaniel E. Gould, to vote for retention of Gould as an architect for the county; some $17,500 from George J. Weiss in instalments of $300 a month for voting to give Weiss Detroit packinghouse market contracts to sell meat and butter to county institutions; $10,000 from T. Frank Gaffney to obtain insurance and bond business, and $6,000 from other concerns that sought various types of county business.

Williams is ending his second four year term Dec. 31 and efforts will be made, it was indicated, to hold the ouster inquiry before he starts a new term to which he was elected in November.

BOARD UPHOLDS OUSTER OF 11 ON STATE PAY ROLL

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 (AP).—Eleven employés were notified today they were being dropped from the state pay roll after the civil service commission upheld charges of political activity against them. The commission dismissed similar charges in four other cases and ordered the employés reinstated.

Most of those ousted were employés of the soldiers' and sailors' home at Quincy. They are: Bernard L. Flotkoetter, Anna Callaway, Marion Roberts, Clinton W. Fuller, Arthur R. Awerkamp, Lucky E. Miller, Margaret Shoemaker, and Arthur A. Sexauer, all employés at the soldiers' and sailors' home; Aloys Behrman, laborer at Chester hospital; Irene Stucker and Earl Stucker, both employés of the state training school for boys at St. Charles.

Ten Mistakes Help Suitor to Lose Girl

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

The other day we gave our young women readers a course, in 10 easy lessons, on how to lose the boy friend. Today we'll reverse things and let the boys in on a few secrets about how they may lose a girl's interest.

1. Call your girl friend an hour or so before a date to ask her to go with you.

2. Don't ask her where she wants to go. Keep your plans a mystery.

3. Don't call up the girl after a big date to inquire how she is and report to her that you had a good time.

4. Get liquor high on your date and strain her nerves to the breaking point by insisting upon doing the driving.

5. Talk, talk, talk about yourself; about how you took the boss down a peg; how you settled that fresh waiter for once and all; how you'd do so such and so if you were in another's place.

6. Never break down and tell the girl you like her dress, the way she does her hair, her voice, her other charms.

7. Don't dress according to the occasion. Act as if the girl can take your informal clothes on formal occasions and like it.

8. Don't be a bit agreeable if the girl chooses to pause to speak to an acquaintance, look in a shop window, etc.

9 Load her down with not needed advice in the big brother vein.

10. Break a date the last minute, just because you don't feel up to it, or something more exciting is offered.

Her Engagement Is Announced

Miss Waller, daughter of Edward Carson Waller Jr. and Mrs. Miriam Hall Waller of Chicago, attended St. Mary's academy at Notre Dame and is a graduate of the Francis W. Parker school in Chicago. She now is a student at the Katharine Gibbs school in New York. Mr. Taylor will be graduated from the engineering college at Cornell university in June.

Several Make Announcements of Engagements

The Barret Conways of Winnetka have a prospective new member of their family as a Christmas present today, for in La Jolla, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Caulkins are announcing the engagement of Mrs. Caulkins' daughter, Jane Atterbury Peabody, to Robert Barret Conway. Mr. and Mrs. Caulkins live in Grosse Pointe, Mich.; but their daughter is in California visiting her married sister, who is giving today's announcement tea. Young Mr. Conway is in the coast artillery.

Miss Peabody attended Farmington and made her debut in Detroit. She is a member of the Junior League of Detroit. Her fiancé studied at the University of Michigan. He has two sisters, Mrs. Gail Belden of Wilmington, Del., and Miss Elizabeth Conway.

Mr. and Mrs. Conway will be going to California for the wedding, which is planned for Jan. 23 in St. James-by-the-Sea Episcopal church, La Jolla.

At a cocktail party in their home in Highland Park yesterday Mr. and Mrs. John H. Harmon announced the engagement of their daughter, Emily Boulton, to Robert E. Wolff, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Wolff of Astor street. Miss Harmon attended the North Shore Country Day school and was graduated from Smith college. She made her debut at a tea dance at the Exmoor club in 1937. Mr. Wolff studied at the Hotchkiss school and was graduated from Northwestern unversity.

At a family dinner party last night in their home in Lake Forest, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Welch announced the engagement of Mrs. Welch's daughter, Miss Priscilla Curtis, to Lieut. William C. L. Barker, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barker of Highland Park. Young Mr. Barker, a sub lieutenant in the Royal Canadian navy, is in Chicago for a few days, en route from Montreal, Canada, to a new post.

Miss Curtis, who is the daughter of the late Robert M. Curtis, attended St. Timothy's, Ferry hall, and Bryn Mawr college. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Alfred Landon Baker and a niece of Miss Mary Landon Baker, who at present are in England. Lieut. Barker attended the Ridley school in Canada before entering Yale university.

At an eggnog party in her home in Lake Shore drive yesterday Mrs. William W. Watkins announced the engagement of her daughter, Jane, to Geoffrey A. Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Cook of Evanston. Miss Watkins attended the Roycemore school. Mr. Cook is a graduate of Kenyon college. No date has been set for the wedding since Mr. Cook has registered to enter the United States army air corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Carl Hermann of Maywood announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothea Anne, to Densmer Hepburn Snyder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Snyder of Philadelphia, Pa. Miss Hermann is a graduate of the Pierce Business college in Philadelphia.

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Theodore Jonas of South Shore drive announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Louise, to Jerome B. Strauss of Everett avenue. The announcement was made at a tree trimming party last night at the Jonas home. Mr. Strauss is a graduate of the University of Chicago, and his fiancée studied there.

Mrs. Edward Benish of Wrightwood avenue, formerly of St. Louis, Mo., announces the engagement of her daughter, Barbara, to Milton H. Sachsel of the Embassy hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Manaster of the Chicago Beach hotel announce the engagement of their daughter, Leone, to Jack Kalcheim, son of Mrs. William Kalcheim of Blackstone avenue.

Hope of White Christmas Fades, Third Year in Row

A. J. Knarr, weather forecaster, said yesterday that today will not be a white Christmas. It is expected to be largely cloudy, with temperatures of about 30 degrees, and Mr. Knarr added, a bit apologetically, that there hasn't been a white Christmas since 1938.

Front VIEWS and PROFILES

Merry Christmas!

To doctor, lawyer, merchant,
chief,
Rich man, poor man, beggar man,
thief,
Soldiers, sailors, on duty, on leave.

[This adds some buttons to the old rhyme, as well as a bad new rhyme. Call it patriotic license.]

Twice Told Tales.

We're just under the wire with these two, told by Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon.

In a loop store's toy window there's a house with a mechanically operated family inside preparing for Christmas. Guests arrive, and the mother goes to the door to greet them. The guests then enter the house. The other day, however, something went wrong with the mechanism, and mama slamed the door in the guests' faces. There they stood, looking foolish.

You may have seen the clown in another loop store toy department. Well, according to Mrs. Pynchon, in the summer he's a clown in Ringling Brothers' circus. In the winter he's a section manager for the store. Then, when the holiday season arrives, he gets into his clown suit and carries on.

Bye, Bye Blues.

O never I the one to dread
That I might fall or bump my head;
I have no aches; I catch no
colds;
I'm sure I'll live until I'm old.
My only illness is the pain
That comes with walking from a train
That pulls away, with you its ward—
And me not even asked aboard.
—Sis Willner.

Prepositions.

Leaving the Harris the other night after seeing "Papa Is All," we found ourselves in a mental whirl of prepositions. In the charming Pennsylvania Dutch dialect used in the play, they stand out, because of odd placement in sentences, not like sore thumbs but like soup for dessert. Here are some examples, hastily jotted down while trying not to miss the next line:

"You should see how he gets by the car yet, to let me get first in."

"I'll throw you it out." [Meaning a pail of water.]

"He's talking to Dittendorfer by the fence over."

Example of something else, we're not sure what:

"The blue thread I found the basket in, but its purple all."

If being browbeaten makes you look like Jessie Royce Landis, come on, you bullies!

Greeting Card.

I have come to the conclusion
Glamor is a sad delusion
Tho for years in vain I've sought it.
No one I can find has taught it.

First my teeth were all encased,
Well strapped in, and tightly braced,
So when I loomed into view
All cried, "Something from the zoo!"

Thus behind my golden cage
I became the passing rage
Needing only to succeed
Large signs saying "Do Not Feed!"

So, my dear friend, you can see,
I won't a Garbo ever be—
[In part or whole facsimile]
Instead, I will remain, just ME.
—ALYS.

Hasta la Vista.

G. A. K. writes:

"Popo is easy, but try Ixtaccihuatl. Popo, the Smoke mountain, is sacred to the native Mexican religion. Equal to it in grandeur and second to it only in holiness is Ixtaccihuatl, the "White Woman." The summit of the latter is formed by three peaks that give the unmistakable outline of a reclining woman, a draped figure sleeping in eternal white snow. Some day, say the natives, the Smoke mountain will awaken her, and they will go away to a heaven sweeter than any known to man, for they were lovers once, of a radiant, handsome race that has long since disappeared from earth.

"From the fairways of the Tehuatepec Hills Golf club high above Mexico City, on a clear day, there is no grander sight in all the world than Popo and the White Woman—guardians of the glory of a time that is no more.

"O, yes, the White Woman is 'Ista-see-whatal'."

Historic U. S. Manuscripts Removed to Place of Safety

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—The Declaration of Independence, the Magna Carta, the Gutenberg Bible and certain other documents of "extraordinary value" have been removed from exhibition cases in the gallery of the library of congress to "places of greater security," Librarian Archibald MacLeish said today. He said the value of the documents "requires that they be given the greatest possible protection."

$50,000 Given to Red Cross by Harvester Co.

Fowler McCormick, president of International Harvester company yesterday presented a corporation check for $50,000 for the Red Cross War Relief fund to James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, and Martin H. Kennelly, vice chairman in charge of the industrial division for the Chicago drive. An additional $50,000 was distributed among Red Cross chapters in other cities in which Harvester plants are located, McCormick said.

The nation's quota is $50,000,000 of which Chicago is expected to raise $3,750,000. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Edward A. O'Neal, Edward L. Ryerson and John P. Wilson are the Chicagoans who have been placed on an advisory committee of 53 representative men and women leaders for the national drive, Norman H. Davis, national chairman, has announced. Thomas W. Lamont is chairman.

The Will county chapter of the Red Cross has reached its quota of $29,000, James W. Barr, the chapter's campaign director, announced in Joliet yesterday. Barr said final figures may show that the quota was exceeded.

Judge Henry Cowlin, chairman of the Red Cross drive in Crystal Lake, reported yesterday morning that the local campaign for $1,325 had been oversubscribed 12 hours before the deadline. Almost all the money came in thru voluntary contributions since the massmeeting Sunday in the community high school, said Mrs. Lawrence G. Holmes, cochairman with Harry C. Shales. A. G. Costello was chairman of the special gifts committee.

Society Editor Says a Merry Christmas, All!

BY JUDITH CASS.

MERRY Christmas! It may seem a paradox to be wishing any one a Merry Christmas when most of the world is at war, but paradox or not, we still extend the old, old greeting, for the celebration of Christ's birthday is the essence of our civilization and culture, of our way of life. And, even in these dark days when merriment does not come easily to those who are mature, it is a Merry Christmas when childish faces are beaming, and when we are united in the determination to achieve thru victory a good and lasting peace, not only for us, but for the world.

Howard Peabodys to Give Supper-Dance at Casino.

Christmas is a family day and there are few parties scheduled except in the evening. The largest of these will be a supper-dance at the Casino that the Howard B. Peabodys of Lake Forest are giving for their debutante daughter, Joan, who made her formal bow at a tea last June at home. Between three and four hundred have been invited to attend the party.

There will be dancing at the Glen View and the Indian Hill clubs tonight, too, for at the former the Thomas Bennett Freemans of Winnetka will be giving a supper-dance for their daughters, Jean and Bennette.

The girls' cousins, Miss Ann Mahan of Marianna, Ark., and Miss Nancy Hodgson of Moline, Ill., are here to spend the holidays with the Freemans and to attend the party. Also here is Miss Wilmia Capon of Davenport, Ia. Miss Jean, who attends Northwestern university, and Miss Bennette, who is at Connecticut college, are not official debutantes, altho they are included in the debutante whirl.

13 Will Be Hostesses at Indian Hill Dance.

Twelve former classmates at the North Shore Country Day school and one of their subdebutante friends will be hostesses at the dance at the Indian Hill. The invitations were sent out in the names of Miss Mary Bull, Miss Nancy Graff, Miss Cherry Boyd, Miss Anne Bouscaren, Miss Barbara Wakeley, Miss Jane Watkins, Miss Evelyn Coolidge, Miss Mary Ballard, Miss Sue Bensinger, Miss Polly Goodrich, Miss Joan Butler, Miss Judy Adams, and Miss Olive Baird. Their parents are Mrs. Harry Calvin, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Graff, the Darrell Boyds, Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. G. Bouscaren, the Arthur W. Wakeleys, Mr. and Mrs. William Watkins, the John K. Coolidges, the Ernest Ballards, the Roebrt F. Bensingers, Mr. and Mrs. A. Charles Goodrich, the Gerald Butlers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles True Adams, and the Warner G. Bairds. The dance will be preceded by numerous dinner parties. The hostesses and their escorts will be entertained at dinner in the Butler home by the Butlers and the Wakeleys.

Eugene Swigarts Rhyme an "At Home" Invitation.

"And if the joys of Christmas day cloy in the afternoon, we proffer, if your footsteps stray, a foaming beaker, lest you may in desperation make your way into some low saloon," ends the Eugene Swigarts' rhymed Christmas cards. "Tom and Jerrys and other delicacies from 3 o'clock on," the cards promise further. This is only one of many Christmas day at-homes, altho there are not as many this year as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence have invited friends to drop into their Winnetka home this afternoon and evening to greet Mrs. Lawrence's daughter, Miss Nancy Blaine, who will be at home for a week and a half before going back to the career she's carving for herself in social service. Miss Nancy has been doing defense work all fall in Framingham, Mass. She probably won't be going back to Framingham, however, but will offer her services where they're most needed.

John R. Winterbothams Giving Egg-Nogg Party.

The John R. Winterbothams have invited a group of friends to drink egg-nog with them today from 11:30 until 1:30 o'clock. The fact that their son, John Jr., has not been called by the draft board yet is definitely a Christmas present to the Winterbothams, they think, for young Mr. Winterbotham has been expecting to be called every day. He has given up his postgraduate geological studies at the University of Chicago in anticipation of going into the army.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Hamlin are giving an egg-nog party between 5:30 and 7:30.

A Young Santa Distributes Gifts to Children at Hull House

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Santa Claus, more generally known as Peter Phelps, distributed gifts to children of pre-school age at Hull House. His grandmother, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, has been president of the board of the settlement for many years. Peter's little guests did not recognize him, for he wore a false face. This picture was taken as he gave presents to two 4 year olds, Mary Ann Ralodikis and Charlie Meza.

Ministerial Training Conference to Open in Evanston Dec. 30

The 21st annual conference on ministerial training will be held at Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, from Dec. 30 to Jan. 2. Among those scheduled to address the conference are: Bishop Francis J. McConnell, New York; Prof. William W. Sweet, University of Chicago school of theology; Dr. Roy L. Smith, editor of the Christian Advocate; Dr. E. Stanley Jones, missionary, and Dr. Harold Paul Sloan, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Stage

"The Student Prince," the famous Sigmund Romberg operetta, opens a limited engagement of 2½ weeks at the Grand Opera house tonight. The cast includes Barbara Scully, Nina Varela, Jay Presson, Robert Davis, Detmar Poppen, William Kent, and Lloyd Harris.

Tomorrow evening at the Great Northern theater the Chicago première will be given of "Take My Advice," a comedy by Elliott Lester. Principal members of the cast are Frank Pacelli, Albert Carroll, Sunda Love, and Betty McDonald.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

For holiday parties:

Try, if you're young enough to get away with it, some little Christmas tree ornaments in your hair in the evening. You'll be surprised at how picturesque they are, and what dramatic touches of color they give to your ensemble. A cluster of those small, shiney balls in red, silver, blue, or green tucked over one ear or behind your halo curls is pretty and effective. And, of course, there are always hair ribbons or hair bows. These, for the holiday parties, can be green or red or silver. Little bells are good, too.

For your dinner parties, try a little cologne or toilet water in a good version of pine in your finger bowls. A few drops are enough to make the water fragrant. One of the town's most successful hostesses always does this during the holiday seasons; it makes a great hit with her guests.

When the guests are 10 deep and the rooms are smoke filled spray some pine essence or cologne around. Pine seems particularly effective in freshening the atmosphere and combating the heaviness of smoke. It has a pungency and cleanliness about it that makes it more suitable than any other fragrance for use in crowded rooms. Besides, its very scent suggests Christmas.

And have fun, because if ever there was one this is a Yuletide that should be gay! Merry Christmas!

Yule Memories Linger on With Fashion Sleuth

BY REA SEEGER.

Gone, but by no means forgotten, highlights of Chicago's most exciting Christmas shopping season include . . . that first unprecedented mob rush days before Thanksgiving. The crowds around the hosiery buying like mad in fear of dwindling stocks. That strange lull of a day in the shopping attendance after the now historic Dec. 7. The trimmed Christmas tree high on a seventh floor that drew more people than could be counted. Small fry, always boys, who accomplished the trick of going downstairs on the up escalators and upstairs on the down escalators much to the chagrin of less athletic customers and the wrath of the floor men.

Gargantuan wreaths and candles on every lamp post along State street, with the Christmas carols ringing peacefully in contrast to the headlines of war. Large ladies who barged serenely around the shops and the small jittery ladies who rushed about and were many times jostled off escalators or pinched out of elevators because there wasn't any more space.

Best of all, the holiday boxes, a clever assortment, from the scarlet affairs with red and white striped tops complete with printed "from" card on top, the white with colored snow-flake printed boxes lined with heart warming red paper, and the white boxes printed with a band of red stimulating a ribbon and bow, or the stunning all-red boxes printed with dozens of tiny twinkling Christmas stars . . . any one of which was equal to the most resplendant gift without benefit of paper wrapping, ribbon, and stickers.

It must have been a typical Chicago shopping season, for there were all kinds of feathers floating in the air and on the floor . . . ladies with feathered hats please note! Service men in navy blue or army khaki together with a lot of other masculine shoppers took over the town last Monday and we still think nothing equals the baffled frustration on men's faces when they come to grips with the annual shopping for their "women."

The kids, as usual, had the best time. This year, at least in Chicago, they beat their parents to the toy departments and sneaked the front row in all the toy showings . . . it was a draw between Santa Claus and the real live Indian tho for popularity!

The friendly and coöperative people behind the counters, the delivery wizards and the others behind the scenes deserve all the credit for making this a truly Merry Christmas.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Here and There.

Christmas Kaleidoscope: A large retail store, the executives of which are almost all Scotchmen, gave a party for the employés an evening or two before Christmas. Part of the entertainment was a pageant depicting the Pied Piper of Hamlin—with a lovely Scotch burr. . . . Last Saturday afternoon the pedestrians on East Huron street were treated to an unconventional view of Santa Claus, who came hurrying out of the door of the Allerton hotel, in full regalia, with a riding crop in his hand, jumped into a streamlined car [obviously in great haste], settled himself at the wheel and drove off, leaving some of us to wonder, sadly, what had become of Dasher . . . and Dancer . . . and Prancer . . . and Vixen! . . . Travelers from the west are thinking today of Santa Claus, Ariz., where there are all-year-round Christmas decorations on the table at Christmas Tree Inn, and where, when it's hot enough to fry cacti in the blazing sun, Santa Claus, in the form of a big road sign, climbs down a chimney . . . from December to December.

Gifts for Every One.

A few presents which would be appreciated in any office:

The gift of loyalty. The "I work for Mr. Soandso and I like it, it's swell" variety, as contrasted to the point of view which implies that Mr. Soandso is a crank and you can't for the life of you figure how he pulls down $10,000 a year. Maybe he pulls down $10,000 a year because in his job he must satisfy [a] wartime government regulations, [b] stockholders, [c] employés, [d] customers.

The gift of integrity. A "way of life" precious enough for young men to give up their lives should have no place in it for frauds and rackets which total, in the United States, about 5 billion dollars a year.

The gift of consideration. Work, mixed with strain and inescapable heartache, is the order of the day now. So, kindness and consideration are mighty handsome gifts, and they don't need silver wrappings and satin ribbon, either.

On the Job.

While families linger over Christmas dinners today, uncounted numbers of white collar girls will be on the job—airline stewardesses, nurses, waitresses [one waitress gets a $100 bill each Christmas day from a man whose lunch she serves daily], hat check girls, clerks at the magazine stands in railroad depots, cateresses, cooks, and attendants, such as those at the post-card and catalog desk of the Art Institute, who speculate quietly about the solitary people who come to the galleries Christmas day.

Telephone operators by the hundreds are at work today, many of them former long distance operators, recalled and retrained to take care of the rush business. And telegraph operators, and messenger girls in their pert little overseas caps . . . all on the job.

Christmas Wish.

Henry Van Dyke expressed it for me when he ended his Christmas wish in these words: "I may not be able to tell you about it every day, but that makes no difference; the thought and the wish will be here just the same. Whenever Joy or Success comes to you it will make me glad."

Youth's Christmas Gift: Permission to Join Army

Karl Estey, 18 years old, received his Christmas present in Boys' court yesterday. It was permission from his mother, Mrs. Mercedes Estey, 1239 Early street, to join the army as an aviation mechanic. Last week the youth turned on the gas in an effort to frighten his mother into granting consent to his enlistment. As a result he was technically charged with disorderly conduct. Before Judge Victor A. Kula, Mrs. Estey signed a waiver required by the army because Karl is under age. "I want him to join," said Mrs. Estey.

'Twas the day after Christmas
And all thru the kitchen
Not a bite was left over
Not even a smidgen.

Many a cook wishes this were so when she faces a welter of leftover foods from today's big feast. It gets really bad when you're afraid to open the refrigerator door for fear something will fall out.

But the situation has its advantages, too. Nobody wants to bother much about cooking on the day after a holiday, and foods already cooked don't require much further preparation. It does take a little thought, tho, to figure out good ways of using odds and ends.

Whenever possible, it's a good idea to put little dabs together, using them up as quickly as possible.

Here are some suggestions for turning various holiday feast leftovers into encores:

LEFTOVER SUGGESTIONS.

FOWL AND ROASTS [cold]: Sliced in sandwiches; ground and mixed with mayonnaise and chopped pickle in sandwiches and sandwich loaves; chopped in salads; ground in jellied mousses.

FOWL AND ROASTS [in hot dishes]: With noodles, macaroni or spaghetti, in a casserole or loaf; creamed on toast; in a pie with leftover vegetables; in à la newburg or à la king sauce; ground in croquettes or loaves; in pastry or biscuit turnovers with gravy; in casserole with asparagus or tomatoes and cheese; in a biscuit roll-up; curried with rice; in a loaf with leftover dressing; as hash; in a hot mousse or soufflé; in sautéed patties; in a pie with oysters or leftover oyster dressing.

DRESSING: In croquettes, loaves, turnovers, and other dishes with leftover fowl.

MASHED WHITE POTATOES: In potato cakes; with meat in croquettes or fried cakes; mixed with egg yolks and baked in puffs; baked with pimiento or grated cheese in a casserole; baked in green pepper or tomato cups; baked as nests for whole baked eggs; as topping for leftover fowl and meat pies.

BOILED WHITE POTATOES: Sliced and browned in butter with or without onions; baked with green pepper, onion, grated cheese, a little milk and bread crumbs; sliced and baked in cheese sauce; chopped and sautéed.

MASHED SWEET POTATOES: In soufflé; combined with browned pineapple chunks and reheated; baked with sliced raw apple; baked with leftover whole cranberry sauce topping; in pie [made like pumpkin pie]; baked in hollowed apples; shaped around marshmallow halves, rolled in crumbs and baked; combined with eggs in puffs.

BOILED SWEETS: Sliced and candied in brown sugar and butter; sliced and baked with bananas, pears, or sliced oranges in a casserole; cut in thick slices, dipped in honey and cornflakes and baked or sautéed; sliced and baked with fruit topping.

OTHER VEGETABLES: Combined and baked in a loaf; with leftover meat in pie; with rice in casserole; creamed as sauce for meatloaf, croquettes or meat soufflé; in creamed or meat stock soups; in tomato or carrot cups, in soufflés and timbales; in meat stews; cold in salads.

RELISHES: Cranberry sauce cut in cubes in crisp vegetable salads; jellied as salad with chopped apple, celery, and nuts; in jellied salad with orange or pineapple slices; in tapioca cream pudding; in a whip dessert; in chiffon pie; with meat in sandwiches.

CELERY AND OTHER CRISP RAW VEGETABLES: Chopped in salads and soups; combined with other vegetables and creamed.

PICKLES: Chopped and combined with leftover meat in loaves and croquettes; chopped and added to greens salads; chopped in plain or jellied cabbage salads; chopped and added to mayonnaise for fish sauce.

OLIVES: Chopped in salad dressings and salads; in meat loaves; in cereal and vegetable loaves.

DRESSING: In croquettes, loaves, turnovers, and other dishes with leftover fowl.

ROLLS: If still fresh, brushed lightly with milk and reheated; if dried or slightly stale, split, and toasted.

DESSERTS: Puddings dressed up with a flavorsome sauce or topping; leftover cake and cookie crumbs in custard or refrigerator puddings.

There's not much you can do about using up a couple of pieces of leftover pie, except eat 'em.

TODAY'S PRIZE RECIPE

"Boter banket," an unusual Dutch pastry, wins today's recipe contest prize for Mrs. Henry P. Ottenhoff, 1513 South Highland avenue, Berwyn.

"Boter banket" is a rich holiday dainty which, in the happier days of a free Netherlands, was used as a special treat for St. Nicholas, Dec. 6. The pastry was shaped into initials, and each member of a household was given his own letter. "Banket letters were a highly prized gift to be munched upon for days," writes Mrs. Ottenhoff.

"These butter and almond pastries may be shaped into rolls, and sliced after baking. They are good with coffee, tea or as a dessert. They are better if allowed to stand for a least a day after baking."

BOTER BANKET.
[About 100 1-inch slices.]

CRUST
1 pound [2 cups] butter
4 cups flour
1 cup water

Mix as for pie pastry. Let stand overnight in a cool place so crust becomes firm.

FILLING
1 pound almond paste
2 cups sugar
3 eggs
Grated ring of 1 lemon or 1 orange

Use grater to crumble almond paste. Blend with sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, then grated rind. Set aside with pastry to cool.

To shape pastry: Take a piece of pastry dough, roll out to about 1/5 inch in thickness. Roll a piece of filling to the thickness of your thumb. Lay filling on crust [closing crust at sides] and roll into desired shape. Place on large cookie sheet. Brush top of pastry with unbeaten egg white or yolk. Prick the top every inch or two. Bake in a quick oven, 415 degrees, about 25 minutes.

This amount will make 10 10-inch long patries, and if cut into inch slices after baking, will yield 100 servings of banket.

Almond paste can be purchased in pound lots at any bakery supply house, and in five pound containers at the larger food stores.

Send your favorite recipe to Recipe Contest, Chicago Tribune. It may win a prize for you, too.

[Save this for your scrapbook.]

Merry Christmas!

About this "merry" business—I was just thinking——

The rousing admonition to "be of good cheer 'cause Christmas comes but once a year," takes considerable living up to in this year of Our Lord, 1941. . . . But never was there a year when being of good cheer was more imperative. . . . Morale depends upon it——

We who stay at home must be of good cheer because that way, we get more done. Because good cheer contributes to normalcy. Because normalcy at home is a bulwark for our boys in uniform—and so contributes to THEIR morale. . . . The soldier who has to worry about a weeping, fainting mother isn't going to come thru half as well as the one who can rest his thoughts on a dear familiar figure going about accustomed homely duties with serenity and good cheer.

Thinking of her HE can be of good cheer—and its your laughing fighter who wins in the long run. . . . You know how it is——

Once upon a time—so this story, "Birth of the Blues,"—runs, there was a little southern boy who wanted to make music. . . . Not the Beethoven, Brahms, and Bach sort but the kind of music the plantation Negroes turned out, pl-us a leetle added swing, something that was all his own. . . .

On this account he got in awfully bad with his folks, who wanted to Schubertize him, or the equivalent. Whenever the little boy disappeared they'd go looking for AND find him playing his little cello right sweet and hot along with Negro players who disbursed swing music in a manner that was the mamma of present day swing tunes. . . . The ONLY PERSON who understood the little boy was a Negro house servant [Rochester]. This standby accompanied the little boy, grown into a youth with the same ideas the little boy had had, on his adventures without a band, acquiring a band piecemeal, and finally with the completed orchestra which, at last, triumphed over prejudice and made a place for its revolutionary music in history. . . .

This picture has its flaws—a maudlin near-deathbed episode, some pretty dumb scenes, a grotesque fistic encounter between Bing Crosby and Brian Donlevy, who are rivals in the picture for the favor of sweet Mary Martin—who IS sweet and don't you forget it!—and some pretty punk dialog written in for little Carolyn Lee, who shouldn't be stagy and is. . . . Outside of these drawbacks, "Birth of the Blues" is tuneful and entertaining.

Excellent in support of your beloved Mary, Bing, and Brian are Rochester, J. Carrol Naish, and Warren Hymer.

Rug Made from Hosiery

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The ideal crocheted rug is made from castoff silk hosiery or men's socks, and two shades of carpet warp. These rugs may be used in any room and are especially attractive done in the oval shape. Boilproof carpet warp makes the most satisfactory rugs. Care must be exercised in keeping the crochet tension even, in order to keep the rug lying flat.

For instructions in crocheting the hosiery and carpet warp rug, No. 902, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Legion of Highland Park Holds Open House Today

The American Legion of Highland Park will hold an old fashioned open house for service men from 3 to 7 o'clock today at the community center in the north shore suburb. Harry Eichler, commander, and Mrs. Norman Culver, president of the Legion auxiliary, are in charge.

According to Cubertson

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

As all duplicate players know, sacrifice bids must be calculated to a nicety when playing at match-points. To pay 500 points, for example, to stop a nonvulnerable game is not merely to lose 80 points or so, but to get a very bad match-point score on the board. Conversely, the team that is robbed of game should try to make the sacrificer pay more than he had contemplated. This is where defense comes into its own as a fine art. Note the careful and imaginative defense in the following deal:

West, dealer.
East-West, vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 club	Pass	1 spade	2 diamonds
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	5 diamonds
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

West was somewhat embarrassed for a good rebid over South's two diamonds. He did not like to jump in spades with only three to the king, but, with his powerful hand, had to select a strong bid and could find nothing better than the jump raise. South did just what every other player in his position at the other tables did, namely, sacrificed at five diamonds, feeling that he could go down three tricks and still effect a saving.

West opened the low spade, a common practice of experts when leading to a suit which partner has bid and which they themselves have raised. Dummy ducked and East, sure that West had the king, finessed with the jack and held the trick, then shifted to the deuce of clubs. Declarer put in the jack and West won with the queen.

At the other tables the play then followed "orthodox" lines, that is, the various Wests laid down the club ace and a low club for East to ruff. A diamond then was returned, but declarer, in those cases, had salvaged the important trick, the club king had been preserved against a ruff. In all, only one spade, one diamond, two clubs, and a club ruff were conceded.

At this particular table, West did not make the superficially inviting return of the club ace and a low club. This West stopped to reason. East's club deuce was either the lowest from four or a singleton. If the former, declarer was now void of clubs and any club return would suffice. But if East's deuce was a singleton, which appeared likely, West's duty was to avoid the setting up of even one club trick for the declarer. It appeared unlikely that East could overruff dummy's ten of diamonds. Hence, to lead the club ace and another club, giving East a ruff, then presumably to regain the lead with a heart and lead a fourth club would do no good. Declarer would use dummy's ten, which would probably hold the trick.

To avoid this, West adopted a simple expedient. He returned, not the ace of clubs, but his lowest club. East ruffed and made the obviously correct return of a trump. Declarer, having nothing to lose, finessed and lost to West's king. West laid down the spade king. Declarer ruffed and ran off the diamond suit, but eventually had to concede two more club tricks to West's ace and ten.

The Kitchen Kibitzer

by MARIAN CARTER

A look over the shoulder of the kitchen manager in an attempt to speed, lighten and add some novelty to her daily routine.

Better have ice cream or a light fruit whip after the big dinner. Comp'ny will be happier. Don't make 'em wade thru PIE after all that turkey!

You can leave the black lines in the shrimp if you like. The experts say there's even some mineral value in those veins. But if anybody in the family is likely to object to 'em better go ahead and do all that painstaking work of removal.

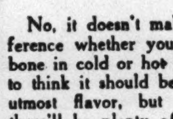
Turkey, chicken, goose or duck, roast it in a slow oven, 325 degrees, and uncovered. Except, perhaps, if the goose is very fat. Then you can cover the roaster for the first hour. Helps steam out some of that goose grease.

* * *

No, it doesn't make a bit of difference whether you start the soupbone in cold or hot water. We used to think it should be cold to get the utmost flavor, but now we know there'll be plenty of flavor, cold or hot.

* * *



Buy a fine grind of coffee for your drip or vacuum pot, medium grind for percolator, and get it coarse for the old fashioned boiled coffee. (But don't let it actually BOIL!)

We're a black-tea drinking nation. But green tea's good, too, and so is oolong, the third kind, which is halfway between a green and a black tea.

* * *

A moderate broiling oven will do better by your steak than a hot one. Too much heat may toughen the meat, and besides, will cook it brown outside before it begins to cook the middle. And rub the porterhouse lightly (yes, lightly!) with a cut-clove of garlic before broiling it. Ooh, it's wonderful!

Society Editor Says a Merry Christmas, All!

Lake Forest have asked their egg-nog guests to come between 12:30 and 3:30, and the Ayres Boals will be at home in Winnetka after 5.

Junior Edward H. Bennetts Will Arrive Here Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Bennett and Mrs. Hammond Sturgis will receive a special Christmas present this morning in the persons of their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Jr. [Harriet Sturgis]. Ensign Bennett and his wife will arrive from Ross, Cal., on their way to the east. They will visit Mr. Bennett's parents in Lake Forest, but how long they will be able to stay is not definite.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pynchon have his son, Billy, with them for Christmas, and on Saturday Billy's two sisters, Hester Pynchon and Mrs. William Jenkins, will arrive for a 10 day visit. Young Mr. Pynchon is in the army, and his sisters live in Connecticut. Mrs. Pynchon is giving a small luncheon for 15 year old Hester on Saturday, and that afternoon the Pynchons will give a cocktail party for Mrs. Jenkins.

The young Sangston Hettlers are giving a cocktail party Sunday from 5 to 8 o'clock for his cousin, Miss Betty Crilly, who is engaged to be married to Arthur A. Frank Jr.

Friends of the former Beatrice Clow Laflin will have a chance to meet her new husband, Cerdic Hagenbuckle, when her father and stepmother, the junior William E. Clows, give a small tea on Sunday. The Hagenbuckles arrived from the east on Christmas eve to stay until Monday.

Two Winnetka Girls Will Be in Georgia for Holidays.

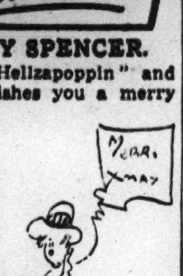
Two Winnetka girls will be in Savannah, Ga., during the Christmas holidays for the debutante whirl there. Miss Dale Bogert, daughter of the Gilbert P. Bogerts, will make her bow there at a dance in the De Soto hotel tonight. Mrs. Bogert lived in Savannah as a girl and the family spends most of its vacations there. Miss Bogert is a student at Sweetbriar college in Virginia.

The Harry J. Sullivans' daughter, Miss Sue, will depart for Savannah on Monday to assist at the debut party on New Year's eve of Miss Jessie Tobias of Savannah. Both young women attend the Stuart school in Boston.

Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

Ole Olsen of "Hellzapoppin" and "Sons o' Fun" wishes you a merry Christmas with this "doodle."



Sometimes the craziest people act sane and the sanest people act like zanies. Mr. Olsen's writing is the opposite to the erratic script one might expect. He writes a simple, clear backhand with fine, sharp letters and an even pressure. I'd say that Mr. Olsen was rather a shy man! I mean offstage. It has been shown many times that the greatest clowns are often shy.

Mr. Olsen [whose first name is really John] has a keen wit, as his sharp letters indicate. And his merry humor is shown in the juxtaposition of his printed formations and in the gay flourish with which he ends his "n."

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Sally Thanks Helpers Who Help Her Help

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

Our Christmas greeting to our readers is a cordial and heart-felt "thank yau" for the regular and encouraging coöperation offered to us every day in the year. Without your unfailing interest and aid, the help we have given to thousands of needy people would never have been possible.

This department is run, to quote a great humanitarian, "for the people and by the people"—we are merely the agent, representing those in need and those able to give, and acting as a clearing house.

Money is not necessary to the work, and those in moderate circumstances as well as those with comfortable incomes may find a way to help another human being. Aid is given and received by all races and creeds. Thousands of kindly deeds, small and large, are recorded through this department, year after year, and seem to me to represent the real spirit of Christianity and of democracy. Help and consideration for those in need aid in keeping us a strong, united nation.

Care for our underprivileged children, our handicapped, our feeble, aged and ill, is important to our country, and will not be forgotten, even though our energies are now diverted by the necesities of war.

And so to all who have helped us to help others, we offer our gratitude and best wishes for a happy Christmas.

OUT ON BAIL.

Mary's quiet, steadfast look stirred in Jack an odd breathless excitement. The sardonic smile on his lean, brown face showed nothing of what he was feeling.

"Was it self-defense?" he asked her. "If I had done as you suggested, if I hadn't reopened this old feud, I wouldn't have been forced to kill him. Maybe you were right. Perhaps time outlaws even murder."

She gave a little lift of her shoulders. "That was a matter of judgment. You did what you had to do. We don't need to go back to that. What counts is that he tried to kill you either two or three times and that there was no other way to save youself."

"I knew there must be trouble if I didn't drop the investigation. In a way I invited this." He added, smiling at her a little ruefully: "But I couldn't stop. I'm too bull-headed."

Mary shook her head decisively. "I can't judge right or wrong for you. But I can think straight about this. You wanted the law to see that justice was done on this man. Because he was afraid of you he tried murder to save himself. You are no more guilty of his death than if he had committed suicide."

Her words warmed him. It was something that she found him blameless, or at least was eager to make excuses for him, even tho he had to take one trail in life and she another.

When Abner drove back to the A C the night of the Tracy killing he found his uncle and grandfather almost ready to start on the warpath. Neither of them had any regard for the dead foreman, but they resented his demise as an affront to the Clinton family. Brad felt that a suitable redress would be a shot from ambush. His father thought it would be more effective to frame Waugh for a long prison sentence by the use of money and false witnesses.

"You're both wrong," young Abner told them. "Tracy brought this on himself. He went ahead on his own and got what was coming to him. He was a bully of the worst kind. To try to use this against Waugh would be a bad blunder. To dry-gulch him would be worse. Tracy was not only a ruffian, he was a fool. If we support him or punish Waugh for this we'll lose a lot of prestige. The only thing to do is to wash our hands of the whole business by refusing to take any side."

"Hmp! And let Waugh laugh his head off at us," the old man snapped.

"He's not laughing about this," his grandson replied. "I watched him tonight and talked with him for a few minutes. He is no killer, and this has got to him. I believe he is about ready to drop this fight on us if we don't made a mistake now. Anyhow, give him a chance."

Brad's narrowed eyes took in his nephew malevolently. His big body was slumped in a chair, more like that of a swollen toad than ever. A razor had not touched his face for two days. "You ought to send this boy to congress," he jeered at his father. "He must be all of 22 or 23 and he knows everything already. You sent him out here to fix things up nice with Waugh, and so far that Texas showoff hasn't done a thing but kill Tracy, get the goods on Parker and Peake, and make us look like a plugged nickel."

Abner looked down at his uncle, not taking the trouble to hide the contempt he felt. "Is it my fault you double-crossed my peace efforts? One of your warriors shot at Waugh within 10 minutes of the time I left him that first night at the Three Prongs. A gang of them wounded another man by mistake while they were trying to ambush him. Tracy made a third attempt today. Why don't you get wise? You can't set the clock back 20 years. And if you had killed him I believe he would be more dangerous to you dead than alive." Young Abner turned to his grandfather. He knew the old man and did not mince words.

"Waugh has gathered some evidence implicating you and Uncle Brad in the killing of his father. I have no doubt you are both guilty. But a lot of water has run under the Santa Rita bridges since then. This time angle works both ways. Our Texas friend can't set the clock back any more than you can."

"Hell's bells!" the old cattleman growled. "I never was scared he could make this stick. But when some squirt makes war on me it has been my habit to accommodate him pronto."

"One minute this smart kid tells us Waugh is fixing to quit gunning for us," Brad sneered. "The next his idea is that the guy is going ahead but can't get anywhere. Which is it to be?"

"I'm making the point that you're not fighting this campaign right," his nephew retorted. "Say he goes ahead. A smart lawyer can knock his case into a cocked hat—give it an appearance of being phony as the devil. Why this belated stirring up of an old trouble? When the evidence was fresh the law couldn't get anything against us. What dependence can be put on witnesses who kept their mouths shut for 20 years until Waugh showed up with a pocketful of money?"

"And we can patch up a nice alibi for you, Brad," his father said. "Fallon could be wrong. If he knew you were with the men who killed Pete Waugh why did he work for you contentedly all these years until now? Abner is right. We let ourselves get stampeded when there was no need for it."

"Anything Abner says is right," Brad complained bitterly.

"We'll drive to Santa Rita first thing in the morning and see the district attorney, Reeves," old Abner decided. "I won't go too far either way. Might be a good idea to get the family together and talk this over. We'll see what John and Ed think."

Altho Brad grumbled, he was satisfied to shift the load to the shoulders of others. His smug brothers did not approve of him, but he knew he could count on the family solidarity. They would not let him down. In Santa Rita they had a powerful influence both politically and socially. His father told him bluntly that it would not be necessary for him to come to town. He would be informed of whatever decision was reached.

When Corbett Carey dropped in with Waugh to see the district attorney he found that person unexpectedly suave and complaisant. Reeves was willing to release the Texan on a nominal bond signed by Carey. Say $5,000. Of course, he would expect Mr. Waugh to stay in Santa Rita until the affair was thoroly investigated. He did not mention that he had just been in conference with old Abner and his son Ed, the president of the First National bank.

Waugh picked up Fallon at the hotel and took a street car that passed near the house of Luke Dixon. The faded blue eyes of the old cattleman lit up at sight of Jack. He gave a whoop of delight.

"You dad gummed crazy galoot," he yelped in shrill excitement. "I have been plumb scared I would have to come and freight you back to town in a box." Joyfully he slapped the Texan on the back. "It's all in the papers how you rubbed out Warren Tracy so doggoned neat. Begad, I wish I'd been there to see. I never did like that bully puss warrior."

"This is Jim Fallon," Jack slid into the spate of words. "I think you know him. He is a good friend of mine."

"Sure I know him. Any friend of Pete Waugh is a friend of Luke Dixon." The former rancher led his guests into the kitchen. "Sally, here is our bad penny back again. He's quit raisin' the devil for a spell and come home."

Mrs. Dixon put her plump arms around Jack's neck and kissed him. "We've worried about you, boy," she said. "I hope you haven't got yourself into a peck of trouble."

"No trouble at all," Waugh assured her cheerfully. "I had to do it. Witnesses will testify he was all ready to shoot me down when I fired."

"He always was a mean cuss," Luke said.

Jack put an arm around the shoulder of Dixon. "If my friends are your friends I want you to meet another of mine," he said, a whimsical challenge in his smile. "His name is Corbett Carey. He has stood shoulder to shoulder with me all thru, altho I insulted him when we first met. Corbett is a fine man, begad, and you ought to shake hands with him and forget any tiff you have had."

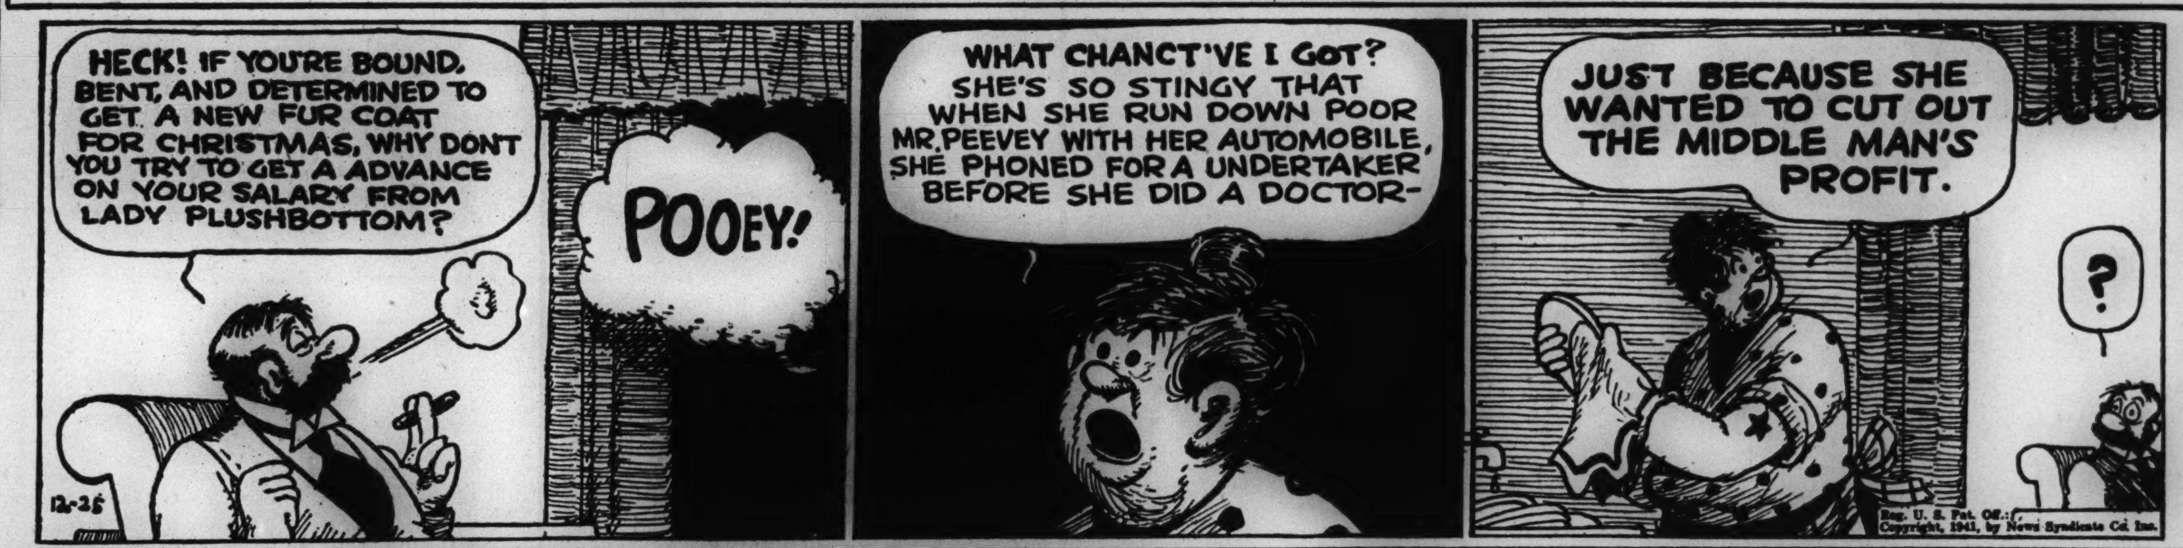
MOON MULLINS—A SOCK IN THE MIDDLE SECTION



PLEASE, SANTA, REMEMBER OUR CUBS AND SOX

They Need a Few More Players.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Neither James Dykes, the White Sox boss, nor Jim Wilson, head man of the Cubs, bothered to write a "want list" to Santa Claus. They thought about it, but abandoned the idea because they couldn't find any record of the old fellow with the white whiskers ever having tossed off any baseball ivory during his annual flits down from wherever it is that his workshop is located.

James Dykes.

Whenever Dykes and Wilson get up this morning—the time is of no importance—they probably will by way of courtesy gush over the lot of hideous neckties, cigars of questionable ancestry, smoking jackets, slippers, etc. But as they paw over the Gray stuff their minds will be on .350 hitters and 20 winning game pitchers and, finding none of these, they'll mutter to their respective selves, "That guy Santa is a bum."

Cubs' Need? A New Team

If Dykes and Wilson had dispatched postal pleas to Santa they'd have said plenty. Dykes would have used his very best parlor language to prove how badly he needed a Joe DiMaggio for his outfield, a Joe Gordon for his infield and a pop gun with which to slay umpires. Wilson, not caring about sixth place where the Cubs finished last season, would have asked for a whole new team. And Santa, in so far as is known, is not a baseball fan, probably would have turned the missives over to the "Nut" detail of the police department.

It was reported last night that Lou Novikoff had made a desperate attempt to communicate with Mr. White Whiskers. In case you have forgotten about Novikoff he's the fellow who hit seven or eight hundred for the Cubs in last winter's magazines but ran out of base hits before the season opened. Lou asked Santa to search his literature shelf and, if possible bring along books entitled "How to Catch Fly Balls," "How to Throw," and "How to Slide."

Silencer for Dykes.

Will Harridge, American league president, kept his Christmas wants pretty much a secret, with one exception. He went to bed last night hoping that when he slipped down to the tree this morning he'd find that Santa had left a gag made to order for Jim Dykes. The gag would bring peace to the lives of Harridge's umpires as well as to Harridge. Ford Frick, National league president, was hoping for a similar contraption with which to quiet down Leo the Lip Durocher, the Brooklyn manager.

Jim Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, didn't wish for much of anything except six or seven ball players, many more customers for his ball park and a box of mustache wax. Of course, Jim would appreciate it if Santa, during the night, had advised the baseball reporters to quit writing about the possibilities of the Cubs being evacuated from their Catalina Island training camp because of the war.

Harry Is Modest.

Harry Grabiner, Sox vice president, was very modest in his order to Santa. All he wanted was a cure for colds and a new almanac showing just what the weather is going to be whenever the team is at home next season.

What a lot of the other baseball people might have craved to find this morning isn't known except the case of Joe McCarthy. Joe has the world champion Yankees which is quite enough so probably will be perfectly satisfied this morning if he has to settle for nothing more than a pair of socks.

P. S.—Larry MacPhail, the Brooklyn wizard just wired that he didn't give a whoop about Santa. Larry said that he'll buy what he wants. And he probably will.

BLUE, GRAY END HEAVY DRILL FOR SATURDAY GAME

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 24 (AP).—The last hard pre-game preparation for the annual Blue and Gray football game ended today as rival coaches pronounced their teams ready for Saturday's game here.

Coaches Matty Bell, Red Dawson, and Frank Howard gave the Gray team a strenuous scrimmage session.

Jack Crain, Texas' star half back, who was counted upon for much of the Gray attack, remained on the sidelines and is not a certain starter. Crain has been suffering from a cold.

On the opposite side of town the Blue squad's only ailing member, Ohio State's John Hallabrin, returned for practice and was assigned the quarter back post on a team likely to get the opening call.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

Merry Christmas.

As ancient as the Eastern star,
As new as each new dawn—
In time of peace, in time of war,
The Christmas tale lives on.

So, too, the greeting friendship sends
Rings true, whate'er befall—
To those on whom the Wake depends:
A MERRY CHRISTMAS, ALL!
—Arch Ward.

Toys of Memory.

When Christmas comes I always plan
There'll only be upon the tree
The tinsel and the colored lights—
And think the family might agree.
But every year the plans are changed
And all I say is laughed away,
Out comes the box of ornaments
Belonging to another day.
The snowman—yellowed now with age—
How memories stir, of him and her,
The boy and girl that now are grown—
I watch it all with eyes that blur.
The tiny Santa Claus we bought—
It's long ago—I hardly know
Just when it was—but they were small—
[And then, it seemed they'd never grow]
And there's the little doll on skates
All dressed in blue—and pretty, too,
To others they mean not a thing—
And yet to us how much they do.
But if they take me at my word
Well then I guess, I must confess
I'll hunt the ornaments myself
With all the speed that I possess.
Because in spite of all I say
I know our tree would never be Complete without these little toys—
The treasured toys of memory.
—Hilda Butler Farr.

A Small Boy Speaks.

I'm only a kid, but I want to know
About this Santa, who rides in the snow.
I spent a whole evening writing a letter,
Same as he asks for—but HE knew better.
He brought me hankies, a tie, and a ball,
A ship with sails—a manger stall;
Apples, oranges, candy, a game,
All right for kids who are sick or lame.
But I asked for a bicycle, and a gun,
Something to make the other guys run.
I wanted some boxing gloves and a sled,
But Ma says I might get a cut on the head.
Shucks! What's the use of writing a letter
When Santa Claus brings you things that are better?
—Florence E. J. Mitchell.

Christmas Knight.

Deep in the forest of Christmas trees
He carried his love in snow to his knees,
Stirred by the pungent aroma of pine,
Which went to his head like a tumbler of wine.

Bright with the glow of adventure and bold,
Frayed with the icy winds, smarting with cold,
There he did wade in the white wonderland
And high on a mountain he asked for her hand.

She was the South Wind, so gentle and mild,
He was the Winter and Mother Earth's child.
So they were wed, and at Christmas each year
There's a calm in his fury, as he holds her near.
—Virginia Pennock.

No Room?

The man who kept the inn must bear
This memory with scorn,
He kept the inn which had no room
For Christ when He was born.
These words are often said of him
Thruout each Christmastide:
"Had he but known who would come in,
He had made room inside.

"Had he but known he would have changed
His own historic part——"
But, lo! Christ stands outside this day
And knocks at every heart.
As keeper, have you cleared away
All hate and selfish pride?
You hear His voice, you know who knocks,
Have you made room inside?
—Hilma E. Willis.

Christmas Thoughts.

Before a cozy fire we sit,
Ensconced in easy chair,
And pause a moment to reflect
On all the joys we share.

Much that's good has come to us,
Still, when reflection ends,
Of all the joys which we possess,
We treasure most our friends.
G. W. H.

Silent Worshipers.

The Prince of Peace from heaven came down,
Not in triumphant proud array,
But in a little swaddling gown
He nestled in the hay.

No potentate in world so wide
Just Mary, Joseph there were found
To welcome Him; while beasts mild eyed
In wonder stood around.

Only the beasts with breath so warm
Were privileged to be courtiers
To shield Him from the night wind's harm,
Those silent worshipers.
—Katharine Isabelle Dignum.

Follow the Star.

Celestial Star of the Infinite,
Whose opalescent glow lighted
The way of the three Wise Men
To the crib of humanity, cradling
The Child of Immortality;
Shine on 'til earth shall pass away,
And safely guide bewildered men
To everlasting joy and peace,
And for the deliverance of humanity
From the bondage of sin and death
And the ruthless binding of mortality.
—L. E. Barber.

Spirit of Christmas.

The spirit of Christmas fills the air,
The faithful rejoice today.
Like the shepherds of old we bend the knee
In reverence as we pray.

All honor to God's Beloved Son—
Born of Mary, most virgin pure,
He died when His life's work was done
Our future to insure.

Today the crib is more dear to us
As we look at the sweet face of charm,
And above the fears in this war-torn world
Find a strength against danger and harm.

Whilst angel choirs hover above,
Their voices joyously sing,
"Glory to God in the highest,
All hail to our new born King!"
—Will J. Moore.

Some Other Year.

'Tis Christmas morn and all is still,
And everywhere is peace, good will.
No cannon roar, no grief and pain,
No bitter strife for worldly gain.
But all about is gentle song,
Peace and praise, no sign of wrong.
Good will toward men, all races, creeds,
Is manifest in words and deeds.
—Robert Blackadder.

Lonely Star.

Be not dismayed as once again
The earth is plunged in dreadful war,
Judea's deathless radiance
Still gleams beyond its ramparts far.

Let bleeding hearts not lose their trust—
God's ways are not the ways of men.
The pall will lift, the grief will pass,
That lonely star will shine again.

It's happened many times before,
A sorry world, heartbroken, sore,
By keeping faith has learned that war
Can't quench the light of Bethlehem's Star!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

The Story.

The story of Christmas?
I know that it's old.
But a story more beautiful
Has never been told.

How Mary and Joseph were told at the inn,
"Go back to the stable, and there you'll get in."
For the inn it was filled with rich people and such;
But Mary and Joseph were glad . . . for that much.

And then a star was seen . . .
The brightest star that ever shone.
It swept across the moonlit sky
And stopped above this stable home.
And suddenly there came from heaven
Angelic voices ringing clear;
And shepherds stood in wonderment
With widened eyes, hand cupped to ear.

Three wise men paused . . . and listened
To the angels . . . for they knew,
And nodded . . . in accordance,
The prophecy's come true.

What was it that the angels sang?
You mean . . . I did not say?
Why, "Peace on Earth . . . Good Will Toward Men, A Christ Is Born This Day."
—G. A. R.

CHRISTMAS TIME —AND IN CHICAGO IT'S SONJA TIME

Miss Henie's Show Opens in Stadium Tonight.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Christmas night and time for Sonja Henie to do some fancy skating for the Chicago fans. Writing an advance story on the holiday arrival of Sonja and her company of 100 ice artists has become almost as routine as telling about the better grade of fireworks on the Fourth of July, turkey on Thanksgiving, or champagne on New Year's eve.

And it's entirely unnecessary to put in a plug for the show for the simple reason that everybody knows that each year the gal has a better spectacle than the one the year before. She will appear in the Stadium, starting tonight and continuing thru Jan. 4, with only Jan. 1 omitted.

Movie Tunes Provide Background.

Last year Miss Henie did $308,000 in her '40 day holiday visit here. This engagement, her sponsors predict, she will top that plump sum. They say that this, the fifth annual transcontinental tour, cost more to produce, is replete with new ideas and—here's the turnstile clicker—Sonja's personal time on the ice totals an hour, more skating than she has done in any of her extravaganzas.

Tunes from Sun Valley Serenade, Miss Henie's latest movie, form the musical background of four of the numbers in the current Hollywood Ice Revue, these in addition to the featured classical compositions which are played during the ballet numbers in which the star appears. These include "Gay Parisienne," by Offenbach, and "Clair de Lune," by DeBussy.

Hawaiian numbers are used for the first time. Miss Henie skates a hula to the Ulili Hila Chant during the finale of act I., in which the entire company participates. The number is entitled "Isle of the Trade Winds, a Fantasy of the South Seas."

Program Lists 22 Numbers.

There are 22 numbers in the two acts and more principals appear in support of the star than in any of her other revues. Her new partner is Gene Turner, national figure skating champion. Among the feminine stars are Dorothy Caley of Toronto, the Brandt sisters, Helga and Inga, of Switzerland; Amanda Dietrich, Arlene Thomas, and Jean Sturgeon. Fritz Dietl and Peter Killam, great skaters, well known here, will make frequent appearances, and the comedy numbers will be handled by Jeff Stevens and others.

According to Arthur Wirtz of the Chicago Stadium and executive director of the Henie show, this year's production has cost $200,000 in the staging, $72,000 of which was spent for costumes.

MICHIGAN STATE FIVE TROUNCES HARVARD, 39-28

Lansing, Mich., Dec. 24 [Special].—Led by Joe Gerard, Dudly Jones and Nick Hashu, three Indiana boys, Michigan State came thru strong in the second half tonight to turn back a Harvard five, 39 to 28, before a holiday crowd of 1,500. The score was tied, 10 to 10, at the half.

Joe Romano added two baskets in quick fashion to give Harvard a four point lead to open the second half, but the Crimson margin was quickly wiped out as Jones, Gerard and Hashu went to work. With Harvard leading, 14 to 12, the "Big Three" teamed together and accounted for the next 21 points the Spartans scored.

Roman paced the easterners with 4 baskets and 5 free throws for 13 points, while the Spartans' scoring was divided between the three Indiana aces, Gerard led with 11, followed by Jones and Hashu with 7 each.

A Merry Christmas and An All Stars and Stripes New Year

Riggs Opens as Pro Tomorrow; Knows His Foes' Weaknesses

BY WILLIAM FAY.

Three weeks ago tonight National Tennis Champion Bobby Riggs was propped up in bed in his Lake Shore clubroom. Bobby's eyes were watery. His nose was red. He had a bad cold, but—between sneezes—he was thinking and talking ahead to his professional debut in the cross-country tour which will open tomorrow night in New York City's Madison Square Garden.

"Budge ought to be the toughest of the three," Bobby said, "but I won't have to worry about Don the first night. He'll play Frankie Kovacs in the opener, then I take on Fred Perry in the windup.

"I think I can beat Perry—provided I keep the ball away from his forehand. It's murder on a fast court—and that canvas we'll be playing on is almost as fast as plain wood. Give Fred a short ball and he'll step in and slap it away cross court every time.

Kovacs Is Hard to Figure.

"Now that Perry backhand"—Riggs popped a cough drop into his mouth—"that backhand's another story. It's a nice steady slice, but I figure I can break it up—I'll have to if I'm going to win."

And how about the Budge-Kovacs battle, Mr. Riggs?

"Kovacs is likely to do anything. He'll beat anybody when he's hot—but I'll vote for Budge on a percentage basis. He hasn't a weakness. He'll match Kovacs' backhand and—what's more—he'll outhit Frank off the forehand. Another thing you've got to give Don—this'll be his fourth tour on canvas and he'll be more at home on the stuff than Frank."

Looking ahead, Mr. Riggs, how do you expect to make out against Budge and Kovacs?"

Is Don Still Hefty?

"There's no way to attack Budge. He's solid in every stroke. However, there's this angle—that tour he made with Bill Tilden last fall didn't help him any. Don knew he could beat Tilden. There was no reason for him to keep his game tuned up, so he got a little careless and he didn't keep strict training."

"That's where that rubber tire he was wearing around his middle at the pro championships at the Chicago Town and Tennis club last June came from.

"Correct. Don put on too much weight. Of course the bad fall he experienced the week before the tournament contributed to his failure, but the fall doesn't explain his subsequent defeats by Perry in the grass court tournaments. Don was overweight—and he couldn't cover court. If he's still overweight, naturally it'll be my cue to try to chase him around when we play."

And Kovacs?

"I won't beat Kovacs every time we play, but I think I can outsteady him most of the time. Also Frank's a mechanical shotmaker. From certain points on the courts he invariably returns cross court; from others he always hits down the line. Consequently I usually have the jump when we play—I know just about where he'll hit the ball. That's half the battle."

And Finally, the Forecast.

Then you think you'll win the round robin championship, Mr. Riggs?

"I didn't say that. We're all so evenly matched it's anybody's ball game——"

"For goodness sakes, honey"—at this point Mrs. Riggs, a blonde and very pretty Mrs. Riggs, broke into the conversation and simultaneously reached a formidable bottle of medicine from the stand beside Mr. Riggs bed—"how in the world do you expect to win if you don't think you're going to win. Tell the man you're going to win."

"I will if you'll put that medicine away," Mr. Riggs countered.

Mrs. Riggs put the bottle down on the table.

"I'll murder those guys," said Mr. Riggs.

TOMMY YARR, EX-NOTRE DAME STAR, DIES AT 33

Tommy Yarr, 33 years old, captain and All-America center on the Notre Dame football team in 1931, died of a heart attack yesterday afternoon in his offices in the Klee building, Cicero Avenue and Irving Park boulevard. Yarr had suffered previous heart attacks last spring and summer.

Tommy Yarr.

He won monograms as a center on three of Notre Dame's greatest teams. He understudied Tim Moynihan on the unbeaten 1929 team, then moved up to the regular job in 1930 and 1931. Yarr turned in such an outstanding performance on Knute Rockne's last national champion eleven in 1930 that he was elected captain for 1931.

Following his graduation in 1932 he remained at Notre Dame as assistant line coach in 1932 and 1933 under Head Coach Hunk Anderson and then played one year of pro football with the Chicago Cardinals in 1934. In 1935 he was head coach at John Carroll university, Cleveland, O., and then gave up football for business. He was manager of a loan company for the last five years.

Yarr was born in Dabob, Wash., near Tacoma, in 1908 and attended high school at Chimacum, Wash., where the school's athletic field is now known as Yarr stadium in honor of its alumnus who gained such football prominence at Notre Dame. He was married in St. Mel's church, Chicago, on Feb. 4, 1932, to Miss Rosemary Killen of Chicago, who survives, together with three children—Joanne Catherine, 6 years old; Rosemary, 4 years old, and Alice Joyce, 3 months. There are also four sisters and a brother in Dabob.

FOUR CARDINALS MAKE CHARITY CONTEST SQUAD

Goldberg and Baugh May Decline.

BY JAMES COSTIN.

Four Chicago Cardinals were selected on the National Football league's All-Star squad of 29 players to oppose the champion Chicago Bears in a benefit game in New York on Jan. 4. Announcement of the squad's personnel was made last night by Elmer F. Layden, commissioner of professional football.

Ray Apolskis, center; Joe Kuharich, guard; Bill Dewell, end, and Marshall Goldberg, half back, are the Cardinals selected for the squad, but Goldberg is a doubtful starter. He is employed in a Chicago plant manufacturing tank parts and may be unable to get leave at this time from his defense job.

Another doubtful starter is Sammy Baugh, great Washington Redskin passer who is reported in bed at his home in Sweetwater, Tex., with an attack of influenza.

Start Practice Tomorrow.

The All-Stars will assemble in New York tomorrow for their first workout, with Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants, eastern division champions, in charge. Owen said yesterday in New York that if Baugh is able to play he will start at left half back for the All-Stars, with Larry Craig of the Green Bay Packers; Pug Manders of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and probably Ward Cuff of the Giants as the other starting backs. Don Hutson, the Packers' celebrated pass catching end, also will be in the starting lineup.

The Bears, who scattered to their homes for the holidays following their victory over the Giants here last Sunday, are due to report back next Monday to start work for the benefit game.

Aids Sailors' Families.

Proceeds of the game, which was transferred from Los Angeles, Cal., to New York following outbreak of the war with Japan, will be given to the Naval Relief society, an organization which aids the families of men killed or injured in the navy.

Following is the All-Star squad:

CENTERS—Mel Hein, New York; Ray Apolskis, Chicago Cardinals; Charles Cherundolo, Pittsburgh.

GUARDS—Joe Kuharich, Chicago Cardinals; Clyde Shugart, Washington; Augie Lio, Detroit; Joe Divell, Brooklyn.

TACKLES—Chuck Adams, Cleveland; Willie Wilkin, Washington; Joe Coomer, Pittsburgh; John Mellus, New York; John Tripson, Detroit; Frank [Bruiser] Kinard, Brooklyn.

FULL BACKS—Pug Manders, Brooklyn; Tuffy Leemans, New York.

VOTE INDIANS DISAPPOINTMENT NO. 1 IN 1941 SPORT

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—Apparently a lot of folks expected the Cleveland Indians to win the American league pennant—or at least make a fight for it—and Lou Nova to do more than talk a good fight against Joe Louis.

Their failures were listed as disappointments No. 1 and No. 2 by the 89 sports writers who cast their votes in the Associated Press' annual poll.

The Indians, who had come close to the top in their unhappy 1940 season under Oscar Vitt, figured to do just as well last summer. Instead they wound up in a fourth-place tie, 26 games behind the New York Yankees. That failure was listed as the year's greatest disappointment by 31 writers. Sixteen voted for the nonappearance of Nova's cosmic punch and his six-round knockout at the hands of Louis for the top rating. One split his vote between the two.

CONNECTICUT IS VOTED PLACE IN U. S. SKATE GROUP

Pete Miller of Chicago, president of the Amateur Skating Union of the United States, yesterday announced that the state of Connecticut has been admitted into the United States skate body.

Miller notified Mrs. Jenny B. Englemann, secretary of the eastern association at Windsor, Conn., last night that the state may now send athletes to national meets, conduct events and be the governing body of the sport in Connecticut.

Twenty state associations participated in the vote.

ARMY TURNS OUT STRONG TEAMS AT FORT CUSTER

Reception Center Units Meet College Foes.

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Battle Creek, Mich., Dec. 24—The Fort Custer recruit reception center, because it is a permanent organization to handle the thousands of selectees from Michigan and Illinois, has had splendid opportunity to build up its athletic teams here at Fort Custer and to arrange schedules with nonservice opponents.

Last September the reception center baseball team won the amateur world series of the American Baseball Congress and the basketball team currently is playing games with Michigan colleges. The reception center football team played Camp Grant, Grand Rapids, and Saginaw among other opponents. It does not follow, of course, that all teams from this unit are superior to those of the regiments and battalions of the fifth division, but the 565 men permanently attached to the sections have done well.

Silvestri an Organizer.

Organizers for the sports, following the plan of the division athletic council, include Ken Silvestri, Gene Stack, and Art Wummel, baseball; Johnny Whiters, boxing; Sgt. James Manning, who was the first selectee in the United States, Ben Good, former Michigan State player, Sergt. Paul Psik of Notre Dame, and Hercules Renda, Michigan, football; Corp. Carl Tollstam of De Paul, Andy Pello and Corp. Bill Feduniak, former Albion college center, basketball. Other sports now are volleyball, soccer, and softball.

Twelve hundred selectees normally are at the reception center and for the recent months, from 6,000 to 9,000 men have been classified for special abilities, uniformed, and delivered to training centers or permanent units every 30 days. Lieut. Col. Hammond D. Birks is commanding officer of the reception center. Capt. George Zegolis, former Wayne university athlete, is athletic and recreation officer.

Meets College Fives.

The reception center basketball team already has met Michigan State, Calvin college of Grand Rapids, and Hope college, and has games scheduled with Toledo university, Wayne university, Alma college and Albion college. Personnel includes Carl [Chet] Tollstam, who attended Schurz High school, Chicago, and De Paul, and who was the first man called by his selective service board; Hank Adams, Alma; Joe and Mark Barnowski, Royal Oak, Mich.; Truman Connell, Washington university, St. Louis, who appeared with Sonja Henie's first show and won a national speed skating title in 1935; Elwood Duryea, Fort Wayne; Bill Feduniak, Albion college; John Gilman, from Kalamazoo who played two seasons at Yale university; Lester Johnson, Battle Creek; Louis Zanin, Georgetown college; Harold Rupp, James Manning, Andy Pello, and Felix Juzwiak.

Detail of the organization of the reception center teams can be duplicated by other units of the post command, by the regiments and battalions in the 5th division athletic council, and also by the attached troops of the 5th division and those attached to the post. Literally there are hundreds of teams which eventually will head up to division teams.

Seek Maximum Participation.

Early this month—before war was declared—by order of the secretary of war transmitted to all armies, corps areas and air force combat command, a program of athletics was drawn up designed for "maximum participation, greater spectator interest, and better public relations." War conditions will alter the program, no doubt, but it will be followed as nearly as possible.

Basketball will serve as an example of what the war department planned. Each company or special troops will conduct a tournament of platoon teams after which company teams will be formed. Each company or special troops will compete in a regimental league. Regimental champions will be determined by highest percentage. [This organization has been fundamental at practically all camps.]

Regimental teams then compete in a divisional league. The plan then calls for competition between divisions to determine the basketball champion of each field army.

Drawn for Six Other Sports.

Other sports for which a plan was drawn to determine champions of the field armies are boxing, volleyball, playground baseball, tennis, baseball, and football. In the latter sport, semi-finals and finals among the field armies are to be completed by December, 1942.

The war department in this order listed six man football, soccer, wrestling, track and field, touch football, badminton, golf, horseshoes, handball, and table tennis as contests recommended to insure maximum participation of personnel.

RUBIN, CHAMACO, DENTON ENTER IN 3 CUSHION MEET

Entries of Art Rubin of New York, Joe Chamaco of Mexico City and Tiff Denton of Kansas City in the world's championship three cushion billiard meet to be held in the Morrison hotel Jan. 9 thru 23 were announced yesterday by Charles C. Peterson, tournament director.

Rubin entered the 1940 meet as a freshman and finished last, but was fifth last year.

Denton will be the veteran of the tournament. A former champion, he set the three cushion high record—17—in 1919 and tied the mark in the 1940 tournament.

Chamaco rose to prominence in 1939 when he swept to victory in the 72 game round robin tournament held in eight cities. During that 33d tournament he had a high run of 18, one more than the world's tourney mark.

The Mexican star two months ago ran away from Jake Schaefer of Chicago in a match series.

Leads Chicago Table Tennis Squad

Billy Holzrichter, No. 5 in national table tennis rankings, will lead Chicago's team in the intercity table tennis tournament which opens Saturday in the Sherman hotel. Holzrichter, 1941 Western open singles champion, has been named to the Chicago team for the third time. In intercity competition he has won 15 matches against eight defeats.

Table Tennis Officials Put Their Cards on the Table

United States Lawn Tennis officials always have been great ones to ring out the old year and ring in the new by suspending somebody.

Many's the time a ranking amateur player has opened one of those snappy Holiday Greeting telegrams expecting message No. 52 [TO A FAITHFUL FRIEND, MOST DEAR, MERRY CHRISTMAS—GLAD NEW YEAR], only to find that some USLTA official had taken advantage of the cheap holiday rate to send a message of his own composition. Like this: YOU ARE SUSPENDED INDEFINITELY STOP—MERRY CHRISTMAS.

Why this practice was abandoned in Frank Kovacs' case is puzzling. Kovacs, the nation's No. 2 singles player, was suspended prematurely in November for expense account violations. Kovacs then turned professional, along with Champion Bobby Riggs, so this reversal of Yuletide policy seems to have cost the USLTA its two best gate attractions.

Let's Move Into Another Realm.

But all this is a sordid commercial story and does not belong on the sports page on Christmas morning—especially, when it is possible to move over into the realm of table tennis, where there are no amateurs and no professionals, just table tennis players.

A few winters ago, for instance, Miss Ruth Aaron, the women's champion, was giving nightly exhibitions in the Rainbow room in New York City's Rockefeller Center. Miss Aaron's weekly fee for knocking a celluloid ball back and forth across a nine foot table was $1,500.

The United States Table Tennis association officials thought this was very nice work if Miss Aaron could get it. And, if Miss Aaron could find the time, they'd be happy to have her play in their tournaments, too.

Contrast that attitude with the straight-laced financial outlook of the USLTA officials who suspended Kovacs for, say, adding an extra chocolate ice cream soda onto his swindle sheet at Newport. Or was it Southampton? Or was it an ice cream soda?

They Just Ignored It.

Table tennis officials have removed the pro-amateur controversy from their dealing with players by ignoring the question of how players get to tournaments. Once the players arrive, they are provided with a place to sleep and three meals per day.

Before that, it doesn't matter. Traveling expenses are a player's own business. If he has been able to make money as Miss Aaron did, that's fine. For instance, Coleman Clark, who entertained Sherman hotel Panther room customers thruout the fall, would be eligible to play for the Chicago team which will compete against squads from New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and Indianapolis in the 11th annual national intercity tournament upstairs in the Sherman's Bal Taberin Saturday and Sunday. However, Mr. Clark won't be playing, because he did not win a place on the Chicago team.

There's Some Slight Restraint.

The United States Table Tennis association does hold the players under light financial restraint, however. The players must belong to the association to compete in association tournaments. This involves the payment of $.50 dues each year.

In fairness to the table tennis association, it should be pointed out that, in return for this exorbitant outlay, each association member receives eight [8] copies of the table tennis magazine.

Pick Officials for Madison, Savoy Matches

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The men who will officiate in tomorrow's Chicagoland Amateur Boxing league match between Savoy Athletic club and Madison A. C. boxers in Madison arena on the west side were named yesterday. They are:

Jimmy Lavelle, referee; William Brooks and Emil Mack, judges; Leo Ranieri, timer; Dr. Herbert S. Sarnoff, physician; Dick Mastro, announcer.

These men were agreed upon by Eddie Plicque, coach of the Savoy team. All are licensed by the Central AAU.

Heretofore officials at the various league fights were appointed without consulting the visiting team, and as a result unpopular decisions have marked several shows.

Must Submit List.

In an effort to eliminate disputed decisions, or at least keep them down to a minimum, the league committee passed a rule which requires the manager of the home squad to submit his list of officials to those in charge of the visiting delegation in advance of the program. This new system gives the visitors an opportunity to raise an objection to any official who does not meet with their approval and allows time for appointment of a substitute.

Tomorrow's pairings follow:

160 pounds—Matt Slobotnick, Madison A. C., vs. James Williams, Savoy.

135 pounds—Vince Pellegrini, Madison A. C., vs. Al Walker, Savoy; Lou Leonetti, Madison A. C., vs. Charles Rogers, Savoy.

126 pounds—Matt Wolton, Madison A. C., vs. Roual Tyler, Savoy.

118 pounds—Johnny Mezzano, Madison A. C., vs. Robert Jones, Savoy.

Maloney, Walker Rematched.

The contest between Maloney and Jesse Walker is a rematch, the latter winning a decision in five rounds in a nonleague show in the Madison arena last Friday. Pat fought Walker to a standstill for three rounds, but he tired in the last two. Since the encore is scheduled for only three rounds [as are all league bouts] Maloney will have an opportunity to gain revenge.

Spoldi to Meet Castiglione in Stadium Jan. 9

Aldo Spoldi, lightweight from Milan, Italy, who beat Lou Fortuna in Holyoke, Mass., on Monday, has been signed to meet Nick Castiglione in a 10 round bout in the Coliseum Jan. 9. Joe Maxin, Cleveland heavyweight, and Booker Beckwith of Gary are principals in a 10 round windup contest. . . . Eddie Lander, west side 135 pounder, today will be given an enforced vacation from training for a 10 round headliner in Marigold Gardens next Monday against Harry Tenney of Cleveland. Lander wanted to continue drills despite the holiday, but changed his mind when informed by Joseph [Packey] Pacanowski, manager of Trafton's gymnasium, that the loop training center will be closed until tomorrow. . . . Milt Aron, foremost contender for the welterweight championship last year, will spend Christmas in Michael Reese hospital, where he has been waging a fight for his life since Oct. 2. Aron, who contracted a blood infection following a knockout by Fritzie Zivic in Pittsburgh last Sept. 15, hopes to be released from the hospital in time to observe his 25th birthday at home on the west side Jan. 3.

Frank Gustine Classed 1-B by Draft Board

Frank Gustine, 21 year old Chicagoan who spends his summers playing with the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball team, yesterday received a 1-B classification by his draft board following a physical examination in the army medical offices. Gustine was placed in the limited service class because of a hernia. The second baseman last week said he would enlist in the navy if he had successfully passed his army examination.

DUKE'S SOUTHERN STYLE WELCOME AMAZES O. S. C.

Coast Rose Bowl Eleven Works Out, Anyway.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—If Oregon State loses the Rose bowl football game to Duke at Durham on New Year's day, Coach Lon Stiner is going to put part of the blame on southern hospitality.

Stiner and his squad of 31 men arrived in Durham this morning and were greeted with open arms and a brass band. Martin Chaves, the Beavers' captain, was even made the honorary mayor of that tobacco manufacturing city.

The squad, dog tired from a five day trip, came the remaining 10 miles to Chapel Hill a couple of hours later and worked out this afternoon. It will be work and no play from now on to New Year's day, with heavy drills scheduled daily on a field of the University of North Carolina here.

Can't Politely Win.

"Honestly," said Stiner when the ceremony at Durham was over, "everybody's been so nice to us that I just don't see how we can politely win the Rose bowl game. I never saw such people."

Stiner thinks the game with Duke is going to be mighty close—"lots closer than folks around here seem to think."

"We've got a fine team and we are used to playing under pressure," he said. "Sure, we've been beaten twice, but we've never looked bad and we've been playing in an awfully tough league."

SOUTHERN CHRISTMAS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 24 (AP).—Even a husky football player can't escape homesickness if Christmas catches him far from the family and girl friend, but the 128 men training for the Sugar bowl and East-West games will have Santa Claus, turkey, and a letup in work to help fight the malady.

St. Nicholas himself had gifts tonight for the Sugar bowl opponents from Fordham and Missouri who meet Jan. 1. There were presents also for the All-Star teams from the East and West, who will play Santa Claus in a way themselves Jan. 3 when they clash in the Shriners' annual benefit game for crippled children.

Party for Fordham Rams.

Fordham's 36 Rams came into New Orleans tonight for a party at the "House of David"—as the suburban home of Sugar bowl Vice President Joseph B. David is known to hundreds who have attended his parties.

One of Missouri's coaches was Santa Claus at the team's training quarters in Edgewater Park, Miss., where the 46 boys had a turkey dinner tonight. Besides the Christmas gifts the players received gold footballs emblematic of their Big Six championship.

Rams Skip Workout Today.

Fordham, practicing twice daily, will skip tomorrow morning's workout. The Missourians will forego practice altogether and take a boat ride to nearby Ship Island. The East-West teams, which ordinarily have two daily drills, will have only light morning sessions followed by turkey dinners.

Mrs. Bernie Bierman and Mrs. Andy Kerr, wives of the co-coaches, presented gifts to the 23 Eastern All-Stars at a Christmas party tonight in Biloxi, Miss. Bill Coffman of San Francisco, director of the Shrine game, distributed wrist watches and blankets emblematic of team membership.

The 23 Westerners will get their presents tomorrow afternoon.

Sunday the Missouri players will be guests at the "House of David" at a party similar to that given tonight for the Rams.

Hunters Have Much to Be Grateful For

BY BOB BECKER.

By the time the fishermen, hunters, dog owners, and other sportsmen get a chance to go over this morning's TRIBUNE they will have opened all their Christmas presents. So our first wish for the millions of American outdoor fans is that Santa came across with that shotgun, hunting suit, or fishing rod any may have put on their Christmas priority list. And for all we wish a very merry Christmas.

All of us who love the outdoors have many reasons for being happy and genuinely grateful this holiday season despite the fact we are in a war and faced with many obligations, worries, and possible heartaches in the days to come.

Grateful for Many Things.

For one thing, we can at this Christmas season be grateful that up until a few weeks ago ours was the only country in the world in which 10,000,000 sportsmen could use millions of sporting weapons for the fun of shooting at wild game instead of having to fire military cartridges at human targets.

And ours is still a country in which there are hundreds of thousands of the best streams and lakes still maintained as free and open waters instead of being owned or leased by a privileged few.

This is one feature of the American way of outdoor living and enjoyment which can be matched in no other nation in the world—a feature enjoyed by millions of anglers who in years past thought nothing of spending $750,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 for the fun of fooling fish.

A Christmas Wish.

World conditions make it impossible for us to expect that the coming year will be as carefree for fishermen and hunters as those in the past, because we have a real war job to finish.

But our Christmas wish for all fishermen, hunters, and outdoorsmen is that they and the nation will not forget the part that the outdoors can play in providing relaxation and renewed vigor during the arduous days ahead, and that in 1942 there will be time for at least an occasional day amid the peace and restful quiet of a favorite fishing spot.

CYO Ice Derby Postponed; Mild Weather Is Cause

Mild weather has forced the Catholic Youth organization to postpone its ice racing Derby which was scheduled for Sunday. This was announced last night by Athletic Director Jack Elder. It was decided, however, that if the weather turns cold the meet may be held next Tuesday or Friday night in Waveland park at the northern end of Lincoln park. That site would be likely to freeze quickly, aided by Lake Michigan winds, Elder said.

TROPICAL PARK'S FEATURE IS WON BY BLUE WARRIOR

Miami, Fla., Dec. 24 (AP).—Blue Warrior, consistent 3 year old son of Blue Larkspur, was much the best of his rivals in the Christmas eve purse at Tropical Park today as he chalked up his third straight victory and a record of being in the money in 17 of his 23 starts this year.

Carrying the silks of B. A. Dario, the New England colt set all the pace in the sloppy going of the mile and sixteenth event, ran wide at the turn for home, but won by three lengths over Mrs. A. F. Sherman's Sun Eager. Jake Freeman's Homeward Bound, favorite in the five horse field, trailed by a head in third place.

Blue Warrior, traveling the distance in 1:47 4-5 under 114 pounds, returned $9.30 for a $2 win mutuel.

STEEL HEELS FAVORED

New Orleans, La., Dec. 24 [Special].—Steel Heels, owned by J. W. Bell, was the favorite tonight to win the $2,500 added Pontchartrain handicap, feature of the opening program at the Fair Grounds tomorrow. The events also will mark the return of horse racing to Louisiana after the lapse of one year.

The 42 day meeting will continue until Feb. 17. More than 200 horses, which originally were scheduled to race at Santa Anita, have been shipped here, and the total stabled at the Fair Grounds has reached 1,400.

ONE TROJAN WILL WED; SECOND ASKS NAVY JOB

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 24 [Special].—Two former University of Southern California football quarter backs figured in the news today as one took out a marriage license and the other applied for enlistment in the United States naval reserves. Marshall D. Duffield, 31, years old, filed an application for a marriage license with Miss Donna Frances Maguire, 23. Ambrose Schindler, 24, now a coach at Glendale, Cal., High school, applied for enlistment as a physical education instructor to serve in the navy's athletic program.

DEAR SANTA: WE HOPE YOU CALLED ON THE GOLFERS

Good Boys of Fairways Deserve These Gifts.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Dear:
Santa Claus,
St. Nicholas,
Kris Kringle,

Somewhere up there last night, while you were dodging dive bombers on the way to your own 19th hole, we hope you managed to drop the following Yule gifts on the fairway artisans of sport:

A good sound back for Craig Wood, so that the big, blond gent from New York won't have to wear a polo belt and a plaster while he's trying to win the Masters' and the National Open championships, as he did succeed in doing last spring and summer. And please, we hope, you didn't drop a first hole seven in Craig's stocking. He had one, if you remember, in winning the Open. Then there's a little matter of a man such as Byron Nelson catching you at the 63d hole of the Masters'. Let's hope that doesn't happen, either. Byron is one of the nicest persons you would care to meet, and Mr. Wood would be the first to say that, but the situation is one to create nervous perspiration for one and all. Whew!

A Gallery for Bud Ward.

A gallery for Marvin [Bud] Ward. After all, the kid did come out of winning the National Amateur for the second time in three years, wholelimbed, and, as ever, wholehearted. Maybe those folks who tried to break Bud's legs and arms didn't understand, but, in trying to help Pat Abbott, Ward's opponent in the final, they were embarrassing Pat, who happens to be one of Bud's best pals.

Here's one you can't do a thing about, Santa, but we hope nothing more happens like it—the tragic death of Marion Miley. It might happen to any of us, but it was too bad that it had to strike a swell gal and a great golfer like Marion.

A pair of wading boots and a club that will play a shot backwards for Lloyd Mangrum. These would be handy if the slender Mr. M. got into such a match as he did in the semifinals of the National PGA, when he caught Vic Ghezzi on the 35th green and then hammered his drive on the 36th into the bank of the lake at Denver's Cherry Hills club, and had to play his second back toward the tee.

Make Chicago No. 1 Golf Center.

A big stockingful of cheer for the Western Golf association, in view of its recent decision to concentrate all of its activities on the promotion of national caddy welfare at a time when it's needed most. And you might, we hope again, have dropped some chock full hosiery into the homes of such men as Scotty Fessenden, Tom McMahon, George May, Fred Snite, Larry Rutherford, and Ted Quinn, the fellows who have, within the last two years, made Chicago the No. 1 golf center of the country.

And, we might add, we hope you didn't drop any warnings that the present international situation will take any divots out of a game that we all love. Fifty years and more of golf in America are too many to allow it to decline because of the advantage taken by treacherous Japanese. We have a hunch, Santa, that all of these packages have been delivered, so here are aces and eagles to you.

Buddy Baer Shaken Up in Auto Accident

Long Branch, N. J., Dec. 24 (AP).—Heavyweight Fighter Buddy Baer suffered scratches about the face and was shaken up today in an automobile collision, but his handlers said the injury was not severe enough to interfere with his championship bout with Joe Louis in New York Jan. 9.

With no sparring work scheduled for today at his Lakewood training camp, Baer decided on an automobile ride with his trainer, Izzy Klein. Another handler, Jerry Casale, was driving the car.

Baer and Klein were taken to Monmouth Memorial hospital. Klein's left leg was injured, requiring an X-ray examination. Casale was unhurt. All left the hospital later.

Klein said Baer's injuries would only prevent his boxing for a few days. He meets Louis in Madison Square Garden, with the navy relief fund receiving all earnings of Louis and Promoter Mike Jacobs and a portion of Baer's purse from the affair.

LOUIS TO REST TODAY.

Greenwood Lake, N. Y., Dec. 24 (AP).—Joe Louis, training for his Jan. 9 title bout with Buddy Baer, plans to celebrate Christmas day by resting.

MARQUETTE FIVE WILL RETURN TO DRILL TOMORROW

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 24 [Special].—Marquette university's basketball squad, following a layoff since the defeat last week-end at the hands of Wisconsin, will report back in uniform Friday to start preparations for next Wednesday night's game with Michigan in the Milwaukee auditorium. That contest will be the first part of a New Year's eve double header program which also will include a game between Wisconsin and Dartmouth.

Weir, Ex-Indiana Star, to Coach at Stanford

Vincennes, Ind., Dec. 24 [Special].—Woody Weir, Vincennes High school basketball coach for the last three years, resigned today to become assistant to Everett Dean, head basketball coach at Stanford university.

Bruins Acquire 4th Loyolan for Game Tonight

Tonight not only will be Christmas night in the Coliseum, but it will be a Loyola homecoming, too. Just to add to the general Rambler picture which always has included Wibs Kautz, Mike Novak, and George Hogan, the lineup also will include George Wenskus when the Bruins face the Fort Wayne Zollner Pistons in a National Basketball league battle.

Wenskus, a member of the 1938 Loyola team which won 20 games before losing in the Madison Square Garden tournament final, signed up yesterday. His presence in the lineup will assure the Bruins of a foursome of onetime Rambler stars. The only reason it isn't a full quintet is that Bill O'Brien, former regular forward on the Loyola team, has joined the FBI.

Wenskus Paired with Vaughn.

Wenskus will open this evening at forward, paired with Ralph Vaughn, the former Hoosier star, who played college basketball at the University of Southern California. Novak, 6 foot, 9 inch handicaper of many a basket, will start at center, and Wibs Kautz, who has been working at forward, will return to share the guard posts with Ed Sachs, onetime rival of all Loyola lads while he was at De Paul.

Mention of De Paul brings up the fact that the Fort Wayne five tonight will present big Elmer Gainer, onetime Blue Demon star, who the other night scored 12 points against the Indianapolis Kautskys. With Elmer will be Bobby McDermott, who delivered 17 points in the same game.

Hope to Break Losing Streak.

The Bruins will be attempting to correct a three game losing streak at the same time that the Fort Wayne gents will be after their third straight triumph. The contest might well be an interesting one, for the Pistons edged out the Bruins by a mere 48-46 score in their first meeting in Fort Wayne.

The opening game, scheduled for 7:45 p. m., brings together the Burton Dixie quintet and the Club 25 team of Gary.

Blackhawks to Battle Ranger Sextet Tonight

Games Tonight

Chicago at New York.
Boston at Toronto.
Brooklyn at Detroit.

New York, Dec. 24 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks, still waiting for Santa Claus, escaped across the East river this evening in the hope of encountering the old gentleman. They had a deal of trouble in Brooklyn last night in their quest for the fine old fellow who is supposed to typify the good fellow spirit.

Somewhere in Flatbush, Mervin [Red] Dutton and his Brooklyn Americans are chortling over their rallying 4 to 3 triumph over the Chicagoans in the game last night by which the Americans hoisted themselves from the cellar of the National Hockey league into a portion of sixth place.

Want Victory as Present.

Tomorrow night, the Hawks hope, Mr. S. C. will climb down the chimney of Madison Square Garden during the 60 minutes they will consume in the course of their battle with the New York Rangers. Nothing could please the Hawks more in the way of a Yule present than a victory over these same Rangers. It will be the fourth meeting between the two old rivals, and neither has been bashful about scoring.

Twenty-one goals have been scored in the current series.

Branigan out Four Weeks.

Andy Branigan, the young Brooklyn defense man who sustained a batch of torn ligaments in the course of crashing into his own goal post last night, will not be available for action in Mr. Dutton's corps for nearly four weeks, according to the Brooklyn club physician.

CARDINALS PAY YULE TRIBUTE TO THEIR SURGEON

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 24 (AP).—The battered St. Louis Cardinals, plagued by injuries all last season, paid Christmas tribute today to the man who patched them together for their gallant fight in the National league pennant race.

Capt. Terry Moore, as a committee of one representing the team, pr[illegible]sented a silver plaque to Dr. Rob[illegible] F. Hyland, club surgeon. Bearing the signatures of all the players, it attested to their esteem for Dr. Hyland and "his deep understanding of baseball men and the game they play."

The surgeon played a big part in the Cardinals' struggle. Virtually every man on the team suffered an injury of one kind or another during the season. Among them, Pitcher Morton Cooper underwent an arm operation; his brother, Catcher Walker Cooper, suffered a broken shoulder bone, and Infielder Jimmy Brown a fractured hand.

OLLIE HUNTER OF IRISH WILL RUN IN SUGAR BOWL

Notre Dame, Ind., Dec. 24 [Special].—Ollie Hunter III., Erie, Pa., junior Notre Dame distance star, left here today for New Orleans, where he will run in a special three mile race at the Sugar bowl games Sunday. Hunter said he will spend two days in St. Louis, Mo., working out en route.

Included in his opposition will be Greg Rice, Notre Dame alumnus, defending Sugar bowl champion and world record holder indoors at two and three miles.

BOY, 3, KILLED BY TRUCK AFTER TREE IS TRIMMED

Hit at Montrose Corner by Turning Car.

The big Christmas tree was up last night in the Knop home at 4414 North Manor avenue, gayly tinseled and spangled with blue, white and yellow lights.

But the lights were out last night. Earlier in the day Jimmie Knop, 3 year old, had helped decorate the tree with his brother, Owen, 8, and his mother, wife of Herman Knop, assistant chief engineer at the Stevens hotel. It was a swell job, as even little Jimmie could see.

Nothing to Do But Wait.

Then he went out, with nothing more to worry about until morning when he knew he would find the bright yellow sled, tiny automobiles and other toys that he had ordered two weeks back from Santa Claus.

Suddenly around the corner at Montrose avenue a truck came to a skidding stop, accompanied by the sharp screech of brakes. Claude Lamb, 31, of 2525 Wilcox street, the driver, leaped from the cab, picked Jimmie from the pavement. The youngster never moved.

At the Montrose avenue hospital, physicians shook their heads, and so last night the big Christmas tree in the Knop home was dark, but at its base lay a yellow sled and other toys—in memory of Jimmie Knop.

Tony Skrinskis, 47, of 4800 Harlem avenue, Stickney, was killed when his car collided with another at 50th street and Harlem avenue in Stickney. The driver of the other car, Robert E. Brethauer, 24, of 12722 Greenwood avenue, Blue Island, was seriously injured and taken to the Berwyn hospital.

Elderly Man Is Victim.

Edward Doyle, 72, of 511 West 36th street, a former railroad employé, was killed when he was struck at 35th street and Lowe avenue by a delivery truck driven by Frank Szczerva, 31, of 827 North Marshfield avenue.

Mrs. Shirley A. Casey, 33, of 526 Brainard avenue, Libertyville, died in Condell Memorial hospital, Libertyville, of injuries suffered Monday when a car she was driving collided with one driven by Harmon Garwood, 17, of Antioch, at the intersection of routes 173 and 45, two miles east of Antioch.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday, 946 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 667 were killed in Chicago where 25,942 were injured in the same period.

BABY SLEEPING IN BAR RETURNED TO HER MOTHER

Patrolmen Michael Brosnan and Michael Kerrigan of the East Chicago avenue station yesterday happily returned 18 months old Shirley Starks to her mother, Mrs. Ethel Starks, 1028 North Wells street. The baby had spent the night at St. Vincent's orphanage after Mrs. Marie Leach, 171 Hill street, had seen the unattended child asleep in a saloon and had called the police.

Mrs. Starks explained that she had left Shirley with her brother, Roy Samuelson of Moline, here on a visit, while she went shopping and returned to find that some woman had taken the baby from him in a saloon. She frantically called the police and was relieved to learn that Shirley was safe in St. Vincent's. William, the father, is a machinist.

Donna Dye, 6 years old, who was abandoned last Sunday in a rooming house at 2204 Orchard street by her mother, believed to be Mrs. Ellie Dye, has been placed in a foster home while the Juvenile court continues its search for the mother. Donna's 18 months old sister, Josephine, also abandoned, is being cared for in St. Vincent's. Mrs. Rosine Brucker, the landlady, discovered the abandonment and called the police.

YOUNG SEAMAN FATALLY SHOT WITH OWN GUN

The death Tuesday night of Eugene Earl Nichols, 18 years old, an apprentice seaman and barracks guard at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, was due to a pistol which "couldn't go off," officers at the station said yesterday.

Nichols, who lived at Three Rivers, Mich., pressed his .45 caliber automatic pistol against his abdomen, telling his companions, "This can't go off." He pressed the trigger and the weapon was discharged. He was taken to the naval hospital at the station, where he died an hour later. Officials are investigating, it was announced. Nichols enlisted in the navy last July 10.

Cutler [R., Lewiston], passed out candy and apples to between two thousand and three thousand central Illinois children tonight at Gov. Dwight Green's Christmas party. Gov. and Mrs. Green, and their two children, Nancy and Gloria, aided in handing gifts to their guests—a two and a half hour parade of children of all ages—past the front entrance of the executive mansion.

A children's band from the soldiers and sailors orphans home at Normal played in front of the huge Christmas tree on the lawn, and from the portico of the mansion. A local high school a capella choir sang carols. Members of the band, 34 in number, were guests for dinner at the mansion.

The Walgreen company filed suit yesterday in Circuit court, asking an injunction to restrain George B. McKibbin, state director of finance, from prosecuting an assessment of $215,624 in sales taxes. The company contends that, since the assessment was canceled, the state cannot again try to collect for the same period.

CITE ARGUMENTS TO BRING PATENT OFFICE TO CITY

Manufacturers Report Chicago Advantages.

BY AL CHASE.

The Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday renewed its efforts to have the government patent office with its 1,400 employés transferred to Chicago. Under tentative plans announced this week in Washington, the office will be shifted to New York.

James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the association, notified Fred E. Taylor, newly appointed manager of Office of Decentralization Service in Washington, that the Merchandise Mart here has available the 280,000 square feet required by the patent office.

Donnelly also sent copies of his letter to Reps. Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] and William G. Stratton [R., Ill.] of the house committee on District of Columbia, which is especially assigned to the transfer of governmental offices from Washington to other cities.

Appeal by Donnelly.

Donnelly's letter, in part, follows:

"The American patent system, with the incentive it offers to investors, is a vital factor in any production program, and any action minimizing the importance of our patent system or tending to decrease the effectiveness of the patent office would seriously hamper the progress and development which are essential to achieve the production required by our military program.

"Moreover, the records housed in the patent office comprise highly valuable and irreplaceable technical data which should not be subjected to the hazards of storage in any exposed coastal city."

Donnelly declared that Chicago was more convenient and accessible than other centers and a more suitable site for the patent office than New York or any Atlantic coast city.

Asks Transfer of I. C. C.

Donnelly also sent messages to Sen. Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] of the senate interstate commerce committee and Representatives Edward A. Kelly [D., Ill.] and George A. Paddock [R., Ill.] of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee, renewing a recent plea of the Illinois Manufacturers' association that the Interstate Commerce commission also be moved from Washington to Chicago.

"Chicago, probably more than any large city in the United States, is especially fitted for the general headquarters of the Interstate Commerce commission," he wrote. "It is a geographical center of the country, a great industrial center, and the largest railroad center in the United States.

Importance Is Recognized.

"Its importance as a center of the motor truck carriers, as well as the bus and air lines of the country, has been generally recognized."

It was learned yesterday that Arthur Rubloff & Co., agent of the 14 story Chicago and North Western railroad office building at the northeast corner of Jackson and Franklin [which has been standing vacant for several years since the railroad moved its offices to the west side], has written to Washington explaining that 200,000 square feet of space is available at once and all under one roof. This is the only completely vacant tall office building in the downtown district available for federal use, it was said.

DUTCH PAYMENT OF DEBT BRINGS BANKERS' PRAISE

Government in Exile Acts to Maintain Credit.

The Netherlands, in continuing interest payments on its internal debt while the government in exile prosecutes its fight against the axis, is carrying out one of the most unusual financial operations in modern history, bankers said yesterday.

While the mother country is controlled by Germans, the government of Queen Wilhelmina, operating from London, is paying its obligations to holders of securities in the United States, England and other countries, in the currencies of those countries.

Bars Payments to Axis.

The decision to make the payments was announced early last month. To avoid giving the enemy any financial support, no funds are being disbursed in the home country and a careful check is being made to determine that holders of securities in other parts of the world are not under domination of the axis.

Funds for the payments are obtained in part from the rich Netherlands' East Indies, center of the new area of war in the Pacific, and the source of much of the United States' supplies of rubber, tin and other vital war materials.

Pays Fixed Exchange Rate.

The current payments cover interest accrued since May 15, 1940—date of the German invasion of the Low Countries—on all loans of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, the Netherlands East Indies 3½ per cent loan of 1935, the 3 and 3½ per cent conversion loan of 1937, and the 3 per cent conversion loan A of 1937.

Payments are being made by J. P. Morgan & Co., New York, at a fixed rate of exchange of 1.87 guilders to the dollar, and in London at the rate of 7.60 guilders to the British pound.

PRICE CHANGES IN BONDS NARROW AND IRREGULAR

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—Narrow irregular price changes prevailed in today's bond market. Isolated cases of firmness among the rails and an assortment of specialties were about offset by a preponderance of losses among other corporates, United States government loans and foreign dollar issues. Trading tapered off in anticipation of the holiday with sales totaling $7,662,100, par value, compared with $9,268,500 Tuesday.

Government loans were generally neglected on the stock exchange, but losses of 6-32 to 27-32 predominated. There were more issues traded over the counter, but here too, declines were in the majority.

Losers of fractions to more than a point in the foreign dollar group included Argentine 4½s, Australia 4½s, Colombia 3s and Denmark 6s. Norway 4¼s and 6s were higher.

SEARS, ROEBUCK SEEKS RETURN OF AAA LEVIES

Sears Roebuck & Co., filed suit in Federal District court yesterday to recover $541,262 in taxes and interest assessed in 1933 and 1934 by the Agriculture Adjustment administration. The taxes were imposed on floor stocks of goods against which processing taxes had been levied by the AAA.

Bert Klooster, counsel for the mail order house, said the United States Supreme court has held that these taxes were illegal and that the treasury department must return the money if the company can succeed in showing that it has not passed the tax on to consumers.

13 Companies to Pay Part of Wages in Defense Bonds

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 24 (AP).—Employés of the 13 companies headed by M. L. [Mike] Benedum, oil magnate, will begin receiving next payday 5 per cent of their pay in federal defense bonds. The "Check-off" goes for everybody, from refinery worker to Walter Hallanan, president of the big Plymouth Oil company, an announcement by the parent Benedum-Trees corporation disclosed.

William Ayres Will Head Trade Commission Again

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—William A. Ayres, a Democratic congressman from Kansas for 20 years, will become chairman of the Federal Trade commission under the rotation system for the second time on Jan. 1. Ayres was appointed to the commission in 1934 after declining to seek reelection to congress. He served as FTC chairman in 1937.

PayDeduction Plan for Sale of Bonds Expected Jan. 10

Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau announced that the treasury expects to have its pay roll deduction plan for the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps ready by Jan. 10. On that date "pledge cards" will be ready for distribution to employés.

HOG PRICES SOAR 25 TO 50 CENTS; RECEIPTS DROP

Top Sales Reach 15 Year Peak for Month.

The market for hogs soared 25 to 50 cents a hundred pounds yesterday, equaling the sharpest one day upturn since early last April when a strong rise followed the government's announcement that it would support hog prices. An abrupt decline in farm selling, large preholiday buying orders and the possibility of an increase in the price ceiling on lard contributed to the action of the market.

Sorted 190 pound hogs reached the $11.60 top, up 40 cents for the day and the highest price paid since Sept. 25. This price established a new 15 year December peak and compared with a December top of $7.25 in 1940. The day's average jumped 35 cents, to $11.20, within 5 cents of the highest daily average this year.

Pork Climbs at Wholesale.

Wholesale markets for fresh pork surged upward from 50 cents to $1.50 a hundred pounds, top light loins showing the biggest advance. The latter brought $19.50, while the heaviest loins sold at $17.50.

"Lard hogs" shared in the price increase, rising 25 to 40 cents, with some of the heavy butchers up as much as 50 cents. Most 350 to 500 pound sows sold from $9.75 to $10.35, while the biggest of the butchers, 350 to 400 pounds in weight went at $10.85 to $11.

Most action occurred in the lightest hogs, under 210 pounds in weight. These comprised a very small part of the run and sold largely at $11.35 to $11.50.

Lamb Market Stronger.

Strong to 15 cents higher bids bought the bulk of fat lambs. The best loads brought $12.40, with most sales from $11.75 to $12.35.

Most yearling cattle held steady, but heavy steers ruled 15 to 25 cents lower.

BUDD TO RESUME RAIL JOB; WORK FOR U. S. LAUDED

His Role in Meeting Car Needs Cited.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

With the appointment of Joseph B. Eastman as director of the new Office of Defense Transportation, Ralph Budd will give up his transportation coördinating activities in Washington and return to Chicago to resume full time activities as president of the Burlington railroad, it was disclosed yesterday.

Ralph Budd.

Budd had been director of transportation in the now superseded National Defense Advisory council. Eastman had been chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission.

Meanwhile the nation's transportation is reaping the results of many of the planning activities of the Budd organization in Washington. The sleeping car situation was cited as an instance yesterday.

All Sleeper Demands Met.

Despite the enormous demands for Pullmans to handle the heavy holiday traffic and the heavy movement of troops, the public has suffered little inconvenience so far, it was said. The government places orders for trains of Pullman cars and leaves it to the Pullman company to produce them. Frequent requests have been made for 15 or 20 trains of Pullmans in a day and on one day Pullman had to supply 70 trains. David A. Crawford, president of Pullman, said the company has not failed to fill the government's orders so far.

In meeting the government demand for Pullmans, the company has had to operate all its customary cushion of extra cars to take care of the heavy holiday traffic, Crawford said. He said that at New York there was not a single Pullman car left over. No trains with Pullmans had to be canceled and almost all passengers desiring them got Pullman accommodations. Whereas upper berths formerly have been difficult to sell, now they are in demand.

Defense Duties Broadened.

None of the western railroads has had any shortages of sleepers, but all are ready to turn them over to the government on demand when wanted, railroad officials said.

In the new transportation setup at Washington, Eastman has been given a number of duties not handled by Budd. He is to have charge of rate making as affecting governmental shipments and of coastwise and intercoastal shipping, two fields in which Budd had no part.

It is expected that Eastman will form his own staff, largely from among the organizations which he set up when he acted as federal rail coördinator several years ago.

Leading Chicago transportation authorities yesterday lauded the railroads as being one industry which has met all demands thus far in the national emergency. Predicted car shortages failed to materialize. Budd was given special commendation.

Budd Praised by Shippers.

Fred A. Schleifer, general chairman of the Midwest Shippers Advisory board—an organization which includes all the larger middle western shippers—said that Budd's ability and experience had been invaluable in shaping the railroad policy which enabled the carriers to make such a notable record.

"The shippers feel that Mr. Budd has made a notable record of accomplishment," Schleifer said. "We in the middle west are proud of his work. We are glad to coöperate in carrying out his suggestions and we shall coöperate with Eastman."

C. J. Whipple, chairman of the transportation division of the Chicago Association of Commerce and president of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., said that Budd had played a leading rôle in preparing the railroads to meet the enormous demands of this year. "He has done a wonderful service for the country," Whipple added.

Wholesale Price Index Up Again, U. S. Bureau Reports

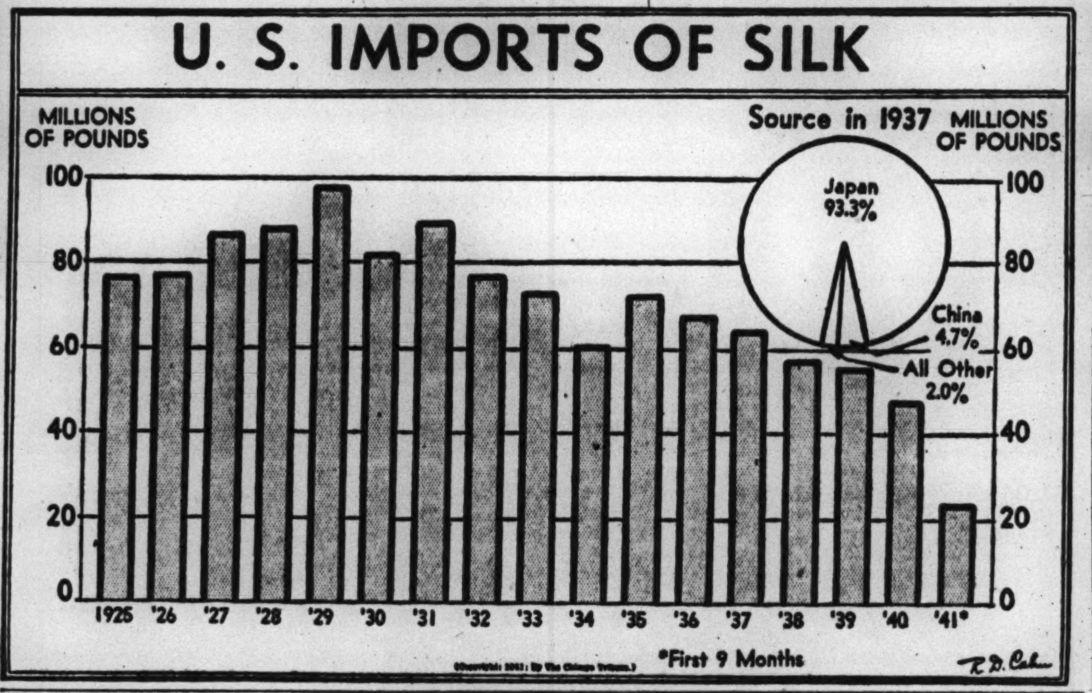
Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Led by sharp increases in wholesale market prices of farm products and processed foods, the index of 900 prices rose 1 per cent in the week ended Dec. 20, the bureau of labor statistics reported today. The largest rise was 3.4 per cent in farm products prices. The general level for meats was up more than 3 per cent.

Board of Trade Mortgage Interest Rate Is Reduced

Reduction of the 1942 interest rate on the mortgage on the Chicago Board of Trade building will save members of the grain exchange approximately $85,000, it was announced yesterday. The rate was reduced from 4 to 3 per cent, marking the third successive year such a rate adjustment has been made.

Chicago Federal Savings Reports Large Growth

The Chicago Federal Savings and Loan association has grown more than 42 per cent during the year, Col. John B. Reynolds, president, reported yesterday. The association's resources have reached three million dollars and membership is up to 3,000 savers, investors, and borrowers.



Ceiling Prices Are Placed on All Leathers

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Acting to forestall increases in prices of shoes and other leather products, the Office of Price Administration today established emergency ceilings on prices of all types, grades, and qualities of leather at levels prevailing between Nov. 6 and Dec. 6. The schedule takes effect Dec. 29.

Demand for leather is increasing rapidly, Price Administrator Leon Henderson said, and pressure for higher prices has resulted because many foreign sources of hides and skins will be cut off by the war. The emergency ceilings, soon to be replaced by a permanent price schedule, would prevent such advances, Henderson asserted.

Covers All Sales Except Retail.

All sales except retail are covered by the ceilings. However, contracts signed prior to Dec. 29 may be completed at contract prices, regardless of whether they exceed the new maximums.

Henderson also established a revised ceiling on combed cotton yarn, providing for upward and downward adjustments depending on fluctuations of the daily cotton market. He said the action completed the OPA program, begun last October, to tie in all of the OPA ceilings in the cotton textile field with the price of raw cotton.

Reflects Higher Costs.

The general level of maximum prices on yarns reflects the higher costs of long staple cotton. The lower and upper counts of yarn were reduced. Prices of the middle counts were increased.

Henderson said the schedule was not in final form, but that it was necessary to issue it immediately to facilitate the army's procurement program covering cloth for uniforms, wind breakers, barrage balloons, and other items. Details still to be worked out include exports, treatment of jobbers, and amplification of premium yarn provisions.

DENMARK UNABLE TO PAY OFF BOND ISSUE DUE JAN. 1

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—Default of the principal on the 30 million dollar 6 per cent bonds of the kingdom of Denmark maturing Jan. 1 was indicated today by Henrik Kauffmann, Danish minister to the United States. He said Jan. 1 interest coupons would be redeemed for all bondholders except residents of Denmark, which is under Nazi control.

Kauffmann obtained the coöperation of the treasury department in barring dollar payment on the coupons to Danish residents. The treasury immediately revoked all licenses which otherwise would have permitted the payment to the accounts of the Danish government or Danish residents.

"Under existing conditions, the Kingdom of Denmark is not at this time in a position to meet the maturity on Jan. 1, 1942, of $30,000,000 principal amount of the 6 per cent loan," Kaufmann said. He designated the National City Bank of New York as the paying agent for the coupons.

AUTHORIZE EXCHANGE OF DEFENSE STAMPS FOR INCOME TAX NOTE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 (AP).—Defense savings stamps may be converted for use in payment of federal income taxes, starting next Thursday.

The treasury announced today that beginning Jan. 1 it would permit the stamps to be turned in for the purchase of tax anticipation notes, which range in price from 25 to a million dollars.

The stamps cannot be turned in directly for taxes, but any one who doesn't want to buy the tax notes could cash his stamps and use the money for taxes.

Originally the treasury hoped that the public would use the stamps only to trade in for defense savings bonds.

FHA TO ACCEPT BOMBED HOMES WITHOUT REPAIR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—The Federal Housing administration will not require properties damaged by enemy bombs to be repaired for acceptance in exchange for mortgage insurance, Abner H. Ferguson, administrator, announced today.

Regulations of FHA require that foreclosed properties must be transferred from the mortgagee to the administrator "undamaged by fire, earthquake, flood, tornado, or waste," before insurance debentures are issued.

"Damage caused by enemy bombs does not come under the meaning of the term 'waste'," said Mr. Ferguson, "and consequently the FHA would not require the repair of such damage, until it is caused by fire, and then only to the extent of the fire damage."

MORE FATALITIES RESULTING FROM RISE OF INDUSTRY

Fatalities resulting from industrial accidents this year increased 25 to 67 per cent in nine of the 21 principal industrial states, the National Safety council reported yesterday. Nine other states had smaller increases, including Illinois with 440 fatal accidents, an increase of 4 per cent. Three states reported decreases.

Deaths reported in the 21 states for the first 11 months totaled 7,118, an increase of 8 per cent. Industrial expansion was blamed for the rise in fatalities. The largest increase, 67 per cent, was reported by Nebraska.

People and Events

James M. Nicholson has been named assistant to the operating vice president of the Santa Fe Railway, succeeding John Purcell who will retire Jan. 1, after 57 years with the organization. Nicholson was first employed by the road in 1912 and at present is general assistant in the mechanical department at Chicago.

John E. Olson, art director of Leo Burnett company, Inc., Chicago, has been appointed vice president of the firm. He will continue to serve as art director.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Thursday, Dec. 25, 1941.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

CHRISTMAS RETROSPECT.

Christmas, 1941, brings to the investor a mixture of brightness and gloom, uncertainties and perplexing problems. This Christmas finds the United States a belligerent in a new world conflict.

On the bright side is the nation's record industrial activity and general business prosperity. Profits have mounted, dividends and pay rolls have expanded.

The uncertainties of the future are great. The heaviest taxes in American history were imposed in 1941, but they are only a foretaste of higher taxes to come. Government spending and public debt reached new peaks as rearmament and aid to other countries gathered momentum. No one can predict what further heights will be reached now that the United States has entered a war with the determination to achieve victory at any cost.

The stock market has been listless and recently has developed relative stability in the face of war news. The year saw the paradox of rising corporation profits and declining stock prices.

Many investors at one time or another in the last year viewed the business and industrial upsurge with skepticism. Uncertainty bred caution and put a brake on investment activities. "How long will it last?" and "What's going to happen when it's all over?" were common questions reflecting the wariness with which many watched the new prosperity born of rearmament and government spending.

The absence of small speculators from the securities markets was conspicuous. The average investor apparently was not inclined to "play the market." Even the securities of corporations benefiting directly from war and rearmament seemed to have little speculative appeal.

The outstanding market trend, as in 1940, appeared to be the increased interest in long-term investments—securities that provide regular income. The investor of moderate means was less interested in price fluctuations and more concerned with dividends. There was more interest in "peace stocks," securities that might be expected to be on reasonably firm ground when the war ended.

Taxes, public debt, and concern for the business future were not the only sobering influences. The investor also was occupied with the bogy of inflation and the job of putting his money to work. What type of investment might offer the greatest protection against inflation was a question of vital interest to all investors. There was no pat answer to give. Fewer investment outlets and declining interest rates multiplied the problems of individuals and institutional investors.

Study Special Session for Oil Flow Curb

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 24 [Special].—A second special session of the legislature may be called to consider establishing controls over oil production in Illinois production quotas, Robert M. Medill, director of the department of mines and minerals, said today.

Robert M. Medill.

Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, federal petroleum coördinator, has fixed Illinois crude oil quota at 386,400 barrels daily for January, compared with 426,500 barrels this month.

Control Not Authorized.

Medill said that since Illinois' oil conservation law does not include production controls, a revision of the recent legislation may be necessary if the state is to comply with Ickes' recommended oil control program. Gov. Green wired Ickes today that the state would meet his suggested quota.

Medill said Ickes' quotas, altho submitted as recommendations, have been interpreted as having the effect of orders. The controls were formulated to prevent wasting of oil reserves by improper and careless drilling and pumping.

Flow Stepped Up with War.

Oil production in the state averaged 388,000 barrels a day in November. However, production was increased in December after the outbreak of war.

Trimming of the production rate to the restricted level will entail special controls, Medill said, which are now being studied.

GRAINS ADVANCE ON HINT OF PRICE CEILINGS REVIEW

Prices of all grains and soy beans advanced in Chicago yesterday as a better feeling prevailed thruout the marketing pits on the Board of Trade. Support for the advance appeared to be in the remarks of Price Administrator Leon Henderson that he has begun a review of the price ceilings he has clamped on numerous agricultural commodities.

Biggest advance came in the soy bean market. After climbing around 2 cents a bushel early in the session, prices settled to close to 1⅜ to 1¾ cents higher. Beans sold at the finish for delivery on May contracts at $1.77⅝ a bushel.

Wheat closed ½ cent a bushel higher with May contracts at $1.26⅛. Corn advanced ⅛ to⅝ cents; oats, ⅜ to ⅝ cent; and rye, ⅛ to ¼ cent. Lard closed unchanged at the ceilings imposed by the Office of Price Administration. There was a small trade in lard for January and May delivery.

Muscatine Button Firms Raise Wages 10 Per Cent

Muscatine, Ia., Dec. 24 (AP).—A general 10 per cent increase in wages affecting all employés of the five major button factories here will go into effect Jan. 1, it was announced today. Officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America estimated it would amount to about $75,000 a year.

Blanket Export License System to Be Curtailed

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—After Jan. 19 American exporters will be required to have individual licenses for the exportation of a long list of articles and materials now being exported under general license, the board of economic warfare announced today.

PRODUCTION OF POWER SETS NEW RECORD FOR 3D CONSECUTIVE WEEK

Establishing a new record high mark for the third consecutive week, electric power production in the period ended Dec. 20 totaled 3,448,597,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 0.5 per cent, the Edison Electric Institute reported yesterday. The total was 13 per cent above a year ago.

Electric power output by the Commonwealth Edison group of companies in the Chicago area last week totaled 168,275,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 170,216,000 in the preceding week. Last week's increase over a year ago was 6.9 per cent.

YEAR'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS NEAR 5,100,000 UNITS

Production Curbed by Federal Rules.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 24 (AP).—The nation's automobile industry has completed passenger car production for the calendar year 1941 with an indicated output of approximately 5,100,000 passenger and commercial vehicles. Except for the restrictions placed on normal car manufacturing activities after last Aug. 1, the aggregate would have come close to the 1929 record total of 5,600,000 units.

What lies ahead of the industry in production for civilian use is more obscure now than at any time in the current model period. The rationing system being set up to dispense the limited supply of new automobile tires is ready to function also in the distribution of new automobiles should that become necessary, it is said in trade circles.

Output Schedule Slashed.

With respect to production, the automobile makers know only that they may proceed on a rigidly curtailed schedule during January. What may be done in February and subsequent months has not been determined.

The industry's book's for the year will show sales activities in the first seven months topping anything in its history followed by an almost perpendicular drop in the final months. To this sudden withdrawal of buying interest despite curtailment of production and predictions of an impending scarcity may be attributed the accumulation of a field stock of unsold new cars now totaling approximately 300,000 units.

No Scramble for New Cars.

Contrary to the expectations of many trade experts the further restriction on car manufacturing following the United States entry into the war did not precipitate a scramble for available new passenger vehicles. Many trade authorities assert that new car demand will surge upward soon after the turn of the year instead of in March or early in April as had been expected under the original production program. Such a development, these same sources say, could precipitate car rationing and possibly a ceiling on used car prices, two things that have been speculated upon for the last three or four months.

Near Loss on Operations.

Further reduction in car production schedules announced by the governmental war production agencies brings passenger manufacturing activity close to operations on a loss basis. Complete suspension of car production is not likely to be proposed by any producer because of that fact, it was said.

Most of the factories are scheduled to resume operations on Jan. 5 at rates for the month that normally would provide them with scarcely a week's production activity. The 102,424 unit maximum fixed for next month compares with 418,350 passenger vehicles assembled in January, 1941.

FIRST CHRYSLER ANTI-PLANE GUN BARREL FINISHED

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 24 (AP).—A pair of 40 mm. Bofors anti-aircraft gun barrels, first to roll off a Chrysler corporation assembly line, were presented today as a Christmas gift to Corporation President K. T. Keller by employes.

Howard Brown, 55, representing the workers, handed the gun barrels to Keller. Attached to them was a Christmas card depicting Hitler weeping at the prospect of their mass production. The barrels then were shipped to another corporation plant where the completed guns will be assembled.

Chrysler officials said that manufacture of huge numbers of the guns awaited only the arrival and installation of additional machinery. All parts of the gun except the mountings are being made in Detroit for the United States navy.

Woman Quits as President of Illinois Watch Case Co.

Illinois Watch Case company, one of Elgin's oldest industries, announced yesterday that Mrs. Annetta R. Eppenstein, president and general manager since the death two years ago of her husband, Louis A. Eppenstein, is retiring and that her interests are being taken over by Allen B. Gellman and Joseph Weiss of Chicago. Gellman will be president and manager of operations.

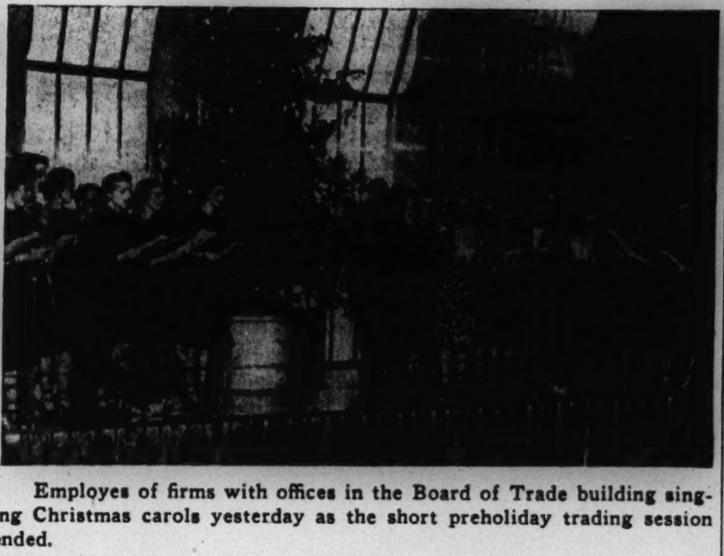
Steel Mills Going Full Blast Today Despite the Holiday

More than a third of approximately 90,000 steel workers in the Chicago district will work today as all major producers operate virtually all blast furnaces, open hearths and coke ovens thru Christmas for the first time in many years. Finishing mills, which can catch up with lost production, generally will be closed down.

New Type of Automobile Finish to Go on Market

Nu-Enamel corporation has perfected a new type of automobile finish devised as a result of shortages in materials caused by the war, L. Frank Pitts, president, announced yesterday. Retail delivery for the product is scheduled for Jan. 1. Pitts said that the new finish has eliminated the danger of streaking.

A Merry Yule at Grain Mart



Employes of firms with offices in the Board of Trade building singing Christmas carols yesterday as the short preholiday trading session ended.

MARKET HOLIDAY.

United States and Canadian security and commodity markets are closed today for Christmas. With the exception of the naval stores market at Savannah, Ga., and the Winnipeg Grain exchange, all will be open as usual tomorrow. The naval stores market will be closed until Monday.

Expect 90 Pct. of Steel to Go Into War Use

Approximately 90 per cent of all the steel produced in the nation will be earmarked within 60 days for war use, it was estimated yesterday. That this will be a huge amount is indicated by the annual steel production capacity of about 85 million tons, and the industry for months has been operating near capacity.

"Pressure for increased production of war materials and equipment from American plants this week was reaching levels which were already making prewar [before Dec. 7] efforts look unimpressive by comparison," Iron Age, trade publication, announced.

Set New Production Goal.

"Typical of the new production goals being set as a result of the United States entry into the war is that of the machine tool industry. Long under forced draft because of its strategic position in the flow of raw materials into ships, tanks and planes, the machine tool makers are now asked to lift production 50 to 100 per cent."

Indicating that some industries are moving faster than schedules, the Office of Production Management announced that the first bomber assembled from parts manufactured by the automobile industry will roll off the assembly line at Kansas City early in January.

One peacetime industry that promises to be able to operate at a fairly high level is farm equipment. Altho it had been planned to impose the same sharp restrictions on production in this industry as on others, the necessity for increasing food production to feed a hungry world ultimately may result in the farm equipment makers escaping with a reduction of only 20 per cent in 1942 production.

Progress in Conversion.

Much progress was reported in the conversion of peacetime plants to war use. Washing machine manufacturers are making machine guns. Vacuum cleaning manufacturers are making small fittings of all types. Safe and lock companies are making gun parts. Calculating machine companies are manufacturing shell fuses and fitting pins.

Iron Age estimated steel output last week at 93.5 per cent of capacity, a drop of 4 points from the preceding week. The only increase was at Chicago where the rate rose 1 point to 104 per cent.

Honolulu Stock Exchange to Reopen After New Year

Word was received here from Honolulu yesterday that the Honolulu Stock exchange, closed since the war began, will resume activity after the first of the year with trading on a restricted basis. Closing New York quotations now are being received and distributed in the usual manner, it was said.

Plane Plants' Workers Get 'Highest Pay'

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 24 (AP).—A contract described by a union official as providing "the highest factory wage scale in America" was signed tonight by The Aircraft, unaffiliated union at Curtiss-Wright's two Buffalo warplane plants, and the airplane company.

Leo Kriegbaum, union president, said the agreement prohibits strikes and lockouts and grants a general wage increase averaging seven cents an hour to more than 13,000 production workers. It also contains, he said, a clause providing wage increases in event of rises in the cost of living.

Minimums Increase Soon.

The contract sets a minimum starting wage of 60 cents an hour to be increased to 65 cents after a month's employment, 70 cents after two months, 80 cents after six months, and 85 cents after one year. Previously the starting wage was 55 cents hourly with five-cent increases monthly until the basic rate of 70 cents was reached.

Effective Jan. 3, for one year, the agreement provides for arbitration of all deadlocked disputes. Production bonus which has averaged 25 per cent of the employes' wages in the past is to be paid, Kriegbaum said.

Curtiss workers' average "take-away" would be $1.17 an hour compared to an average for the aviation industry of 89.6 cents an hour. "Take-away," he explained, includes the basic wage rate plus overtime and bonuses. Last week, Curtis workers averaged $1.07 an hour, he said.

Other Contract Provisions.

Other features of the new contract, as outlined by Kriegbaum, include:

1. General five-cent wage increase when the cost of living in Buffalo, based on United States Labor department statistics, rises five per cent and an additional five-cent wage increase when living costs rise another five per cent.
2. Paid vacations ranging from two-days' vacation for six months' employment to two weeks for six years.
3. Strict seniority after 13 weeks' employment.
4. Time and a half pay for more than eight hours' work in one day or 40 hours in one week and double time for Sundays and holidays.
5. Sick leave clause.

SETTLE CLEVELAND STRIKE

Cleveland, O., Dec. 24 (AP).—Federal conciliators announced late today settlement of a six day old strike at the General Chemical company which makes sulphuric acid used in TNT production at the government's big Plum Brook ordnance plant.

Striking CIO unionists voted to resume work immediately on war orders and other chemical products when company officials agreed to submit wage and other strike issues to a three-man labor department panel, Conciliator Thomas Robertson reported.

The strike was called to enforce demands for a 20 cent hourly wage increase, a closed shop, bonuses for workers on afternoon and night shifts, and other revisions in a wage schedule which the company said averaged $1.01 an hour.

News of Securities Issues

A. G. Becker & Co. yesterday offered 5,000 shares of Abbott Laboratories common stock at $47 a share. The firm said more than half the stock, which came from holdings of a principal stockholder, had been sold last night.

Southern California Telephone company was authorized by the California railroad commission to issue and sell 360,000 shares of $100 par capital stock to Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company at par to pay the company's indebtedness to Pacific Telephone and reimburse the company's treasury for improvements.

The Long Island Lighting company was authorized by the Public Service commission to refund $29,961,000 of 4 per cent bonds with a like amount of new liens maturing in 1971. Of the total $19,669,000 would bear an interest rate of 3⅝ per cent and the remainder 3½ per cent.

Four million dollars in Food Machinery corporation 3 per cent debentures, offered yesterday, were sold quickly, with insurance companies and trust accounts the main buyers.

Connecticut Light and Power company, Hartford, filed with the Securities and Exchange commission a registration statement covering 336,088 shares of no par value cumulative preferred stock. The company said that 136,088 shares, with an annual dividend rate of $2.25, would be offered in exchange on a 2 for 1 basis to holders of outstanding 5½ per cent preferred stock, except to shareholders in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Maine, New Hampshire and California. Remaining shares, with an annual dividend rate of $2, will be offered publicly.

The B. F. Goodrich company announced it has sold privately to an insurance company 5 million dollars of 3 per cent first mortgage bonds due in 1956.

NATION'S SUGAR SUPPLY AMPLE, DEALERS INSIST

Declare Hoarding Is Only Threat.

No sugar shortage exists in this country and none is likely if the consumer refrains from hoarding, wholesale and retail sugar distributors in Chicago said yesterday. It is their unanimous belief that the nation's sugar supply is more than ample for the normal consumption rate, even in the face of curtailment or loss of receipts from the Philippine Islands and Hawaii and diversion of supplies into military and lend-lease channels.

The United States has produced to date this year about 2,370,000 tons of the more than 6,800,000 tons of sugar consumed in 1941. Cuba supplied about 3 million tons. Puerto Rico and Hawaii normally send 26 per cent of the United States annual supply, Philippine Islands 14 per cent, and other countries ship 1 per cent.

Large Reserve Built Up.

Total deliveries in 1941 have been estimated at 7,800,000 tons, giving the country a large reserve. If supplies are no longer available from Hawaii and the Philippines, the loss can be made up under the new United States-Cuban sugar crop contract calling for four million tons from the island in 1942, and thru other methods. It is estimated that Cuban production can be increased to 5 million tons annually if necessary.

To supplement the increase in Cuban supplies the government on Dec. 19 temporarily suspended quota allotments to permit domestic producers to raise as much as they please. The government also has frozen sugar stocks in excess of 60 day supplies. Without shipments from Pacific sources deliveries in 1942 are estimated at 7,100,000 tons.

Situation During Last War.

Altho during the World war the annual consumption figure was well below the present level, this country produced only about 250,000 tons of sugar in 1917 and substantially less than that in 1918. Shipping facilities were more sharply curtailed in 1917 and 1918 than today in proportion to the amount available then and now.

During the World war consumers at one time were restricted to 2 pounds of sugar per month, and supplies to manufacturers were greatly curtailed. Dealers today predict that the sugar supply situation will not get out of hand because of price regulations and government restrictions on supplies which are more than adequate.

Prospects of shortages in other foods have been ruled out by a recent department of agriculture report disclosing that the American food reserves today are the largest on record. Shortages in import staples from the far east such as cocoa and pepper are possibilities, altho a recent survey among New York dealers disclosed that supplies were ample for a year or longer. Coffee supplies may be affected by restricted shipping as the war progresses.

INSULL UTILITY BANKRUPTCY IS NEARING CLOSE

The treasury of the bankrupt Insull Investments, Inc., was scraped almost bare yesterday in making the last payment of $3.36 per $1,000 debenture. The payment was authorized by Judge John P. Barnes of the federal District court last Sept. 6.

Judge Barnes' order yesterday awarded $4,000 in fees to the law firm of Rosenthal, Hamill, Eldridge and King for services since last June 21. Previously the lawyers had been paid $45,000. After payment of the fees there remained only $544 which will be used for incidental court costs. Judge Barnes also approved the spending of $4,711 as the expenses of Harry A. Bigelow, trustee in bankruptcy, in disbursing the checks to 17,000 debenture holders.

Only the final order discharging the trustee is awaited to wind up the affairs of the bankrupt corporation.

BENDIX DENIED EXCLUSIVE RIGHT TO ITS WASHERS

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 24 (AP).—A ruling filed today in northern Indiana federal District court denied Bendix Home Appliances, Inc., exclusive rights to manufacture and sell its washing machine in the domestic market.

Judge Charles G. Briggle of Springfield, Ill., ruled in a suit filed by Bendix more than two years ago against the Borg-Warner corporation of Chicago and a local research firm asking that they be enjoined from manufacturing the same type of machine.

Judge Briggle held that Borg-Warner had a legal right to manufacture the machines, but specified the cylinder should be larger than 4.06 cubic feet capacity.

STOCKS MANAGE MODEST RALLY, FIRST IN 8 DAYS

But Contribution to Yule Cheer Is Feeble.

New York, Dec. 24 (AP).—The stock market today contributed a measure of Christmas cheer in Wall street by recording its first average advance since Dec. 15.

It was far from a rousing rally since it added up to a rise of .1 in the Associated Press 60 stock composite at a closing level of 35.6. Dealings totaled 1,375,190 shares, against yesterday's 1,417,422. Of 896 issues traded, 351 finished higher, 305 lower, and 240 unchanged from Tuesday's close.

Early Weakness Fades.

The improvement, which came after another sag in prices in the early proceedings, was in the face of a further run of tax loss selling and some nervous liquidation occasioned by war news from the Philippines.

Tending to counteract the adverse far eastern news was the hopeful sentiment engendered by the meeting of Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt in Washington. Also favorable were reported new gains by the Russians and by the British in Libya.

Support for various stocks after the initial retreat seemed based on the idea that another technical rally might be in the making in view of the market's substantial decline since United States involvement in the war.

American Telephone, notably weak in recent sessions, dipped to a new

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Prices closed unevenly lower on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday in transactions totaling 64,000 shares. Of 143 issues traded, 37 advanced, 54 declined, and 52 closed unchanged.

The volume leader was Chicago corporation, with 7,550 shares traded. It closed unchanged at ⅝. Middle West was unchanged at 3½; Commonwealth Edison, unchanged at 20⅜; General Motors, up ½ at 30⅝, and Libby, McNeill & Lilly, unchanged at 4½.

Jeannette Glass company, Jeannette, Pa., authorized a $3 dividend on the 7 per cent preferred stock to apply on arrears, compared with a preceding payment on the issue of $1.75 in July.

National Bronze and Aluminum Foundry company, Cleveland, declared a dividend of $1.25, the first since a payment of the same amount was made in 1937.

THEATER CHAINS GIVE INSURANCE AS YULE BONUSES

Other Firms Pay in Cash or Defense Bonds.

Christmas gifts in the form of insurance policies are being presented to employés of Balaban & Katz theaters thruout the city and suburbs, and of Balaban & Katz Great States theaters elsewhere in Illinois and Indiana, John Balaban, executive head of the combined theater circuits, announced yesterday.

The gift will mark the fourth annual renewal of the insurance plan, the cost of which is borne entirely by the company

Pays in Bonds and Stamps.

The Selected Investment company, Chicago, and its statistical affiliate, Security Supervisors, Inc., announced that 50 per cent of Christmas bonuses being paid employés will be in defense bonds or stamps.

Christmas checks totaling more than a half million dollars will be distributed to employés of the Wright Aeronautical corporation, Paterson, N. J., including those who entered the military service during the last year. Four thousand employés of the Rath Packing company, Waterloo, Ia., will receive $200,000 as overtime compensation.

The Chicago Belting company paid bonuses ranging from 4 to 8 per cent of annual earnings, half in cash and half in defense bonds.

Bulova Watch Gives Bonus.

The Bulova Watch company announced it had given all its employés a Christmas bonus aggregating $250,000 and urged them to invest in defense bonds.

Scholl Manufacturing company, Inc., Chicago, announced a bonus to more than 1,000 of its employés, and former employés now in the army and navy. Clark Linen company of Chicago, gave bonuses in defense bonds and stamps. The Marchant Calculating Machine company, Oakland, Cal., gave a bonus of 3 to 12 per cent of annual salaries.

Payment of $65,000 to its employés savings and profit sharing trust fund by the General Finance corporation was announced by company officials. The fund, started early this year, is invested in company securities and will be distributed at the end of five years. The employés pay two per cent of their annual salaries to the fund.

PRICE CEILING REPORTS CAUSE DIPS IN BUTTER

Washington reports that plans are under consideration for placing price ceilings on dairy products sent butter figures down ¼ cent a pound on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Pressure came from liquidating sales and trade selling. A firmer tone developed before the close, however, and prices closed unchanged to 1-10 cent lower. Butter sold for January delivery at 32.9 cents a pound.

Liquidation of December egg futures contracts continued and prices broke .65 cent a dozen to close at 32.25 cents. January contracts closed 1-10 cent lower as wholesale prices fell. Declines in fresh egg prices ranged from ½ to 1 cent a dozen with best grades selling at 33¼ cents.

Shorten Maturity Period of Treasury Bill Issue

Washington, D. C., Dec. 24 [Special].—The treasury tonight invited tenders for 150 million dollars of 76 day treasury bills, instead of the usual 91 day issue. They will be dated Dec. 31 and mature March 17. The reason for the shorter maturity period is the treasury's desire to ease the impact on the money market of the large tax payments due on March 15 by paying off several bill issues simultaneously.

Judge Approves Payment of Inland Power Case Fees

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday approved the payment of $8,500 in fees to John E. Dwyer, trustee of the Inland Power and Light corporation, a subsidiary of the Commonwealth Light and Power company. The award was for services from Nov. 8, 1940, to last Nov. 14. Three law firms which acted as counsel for Dwyer were granted a total of $8,700.

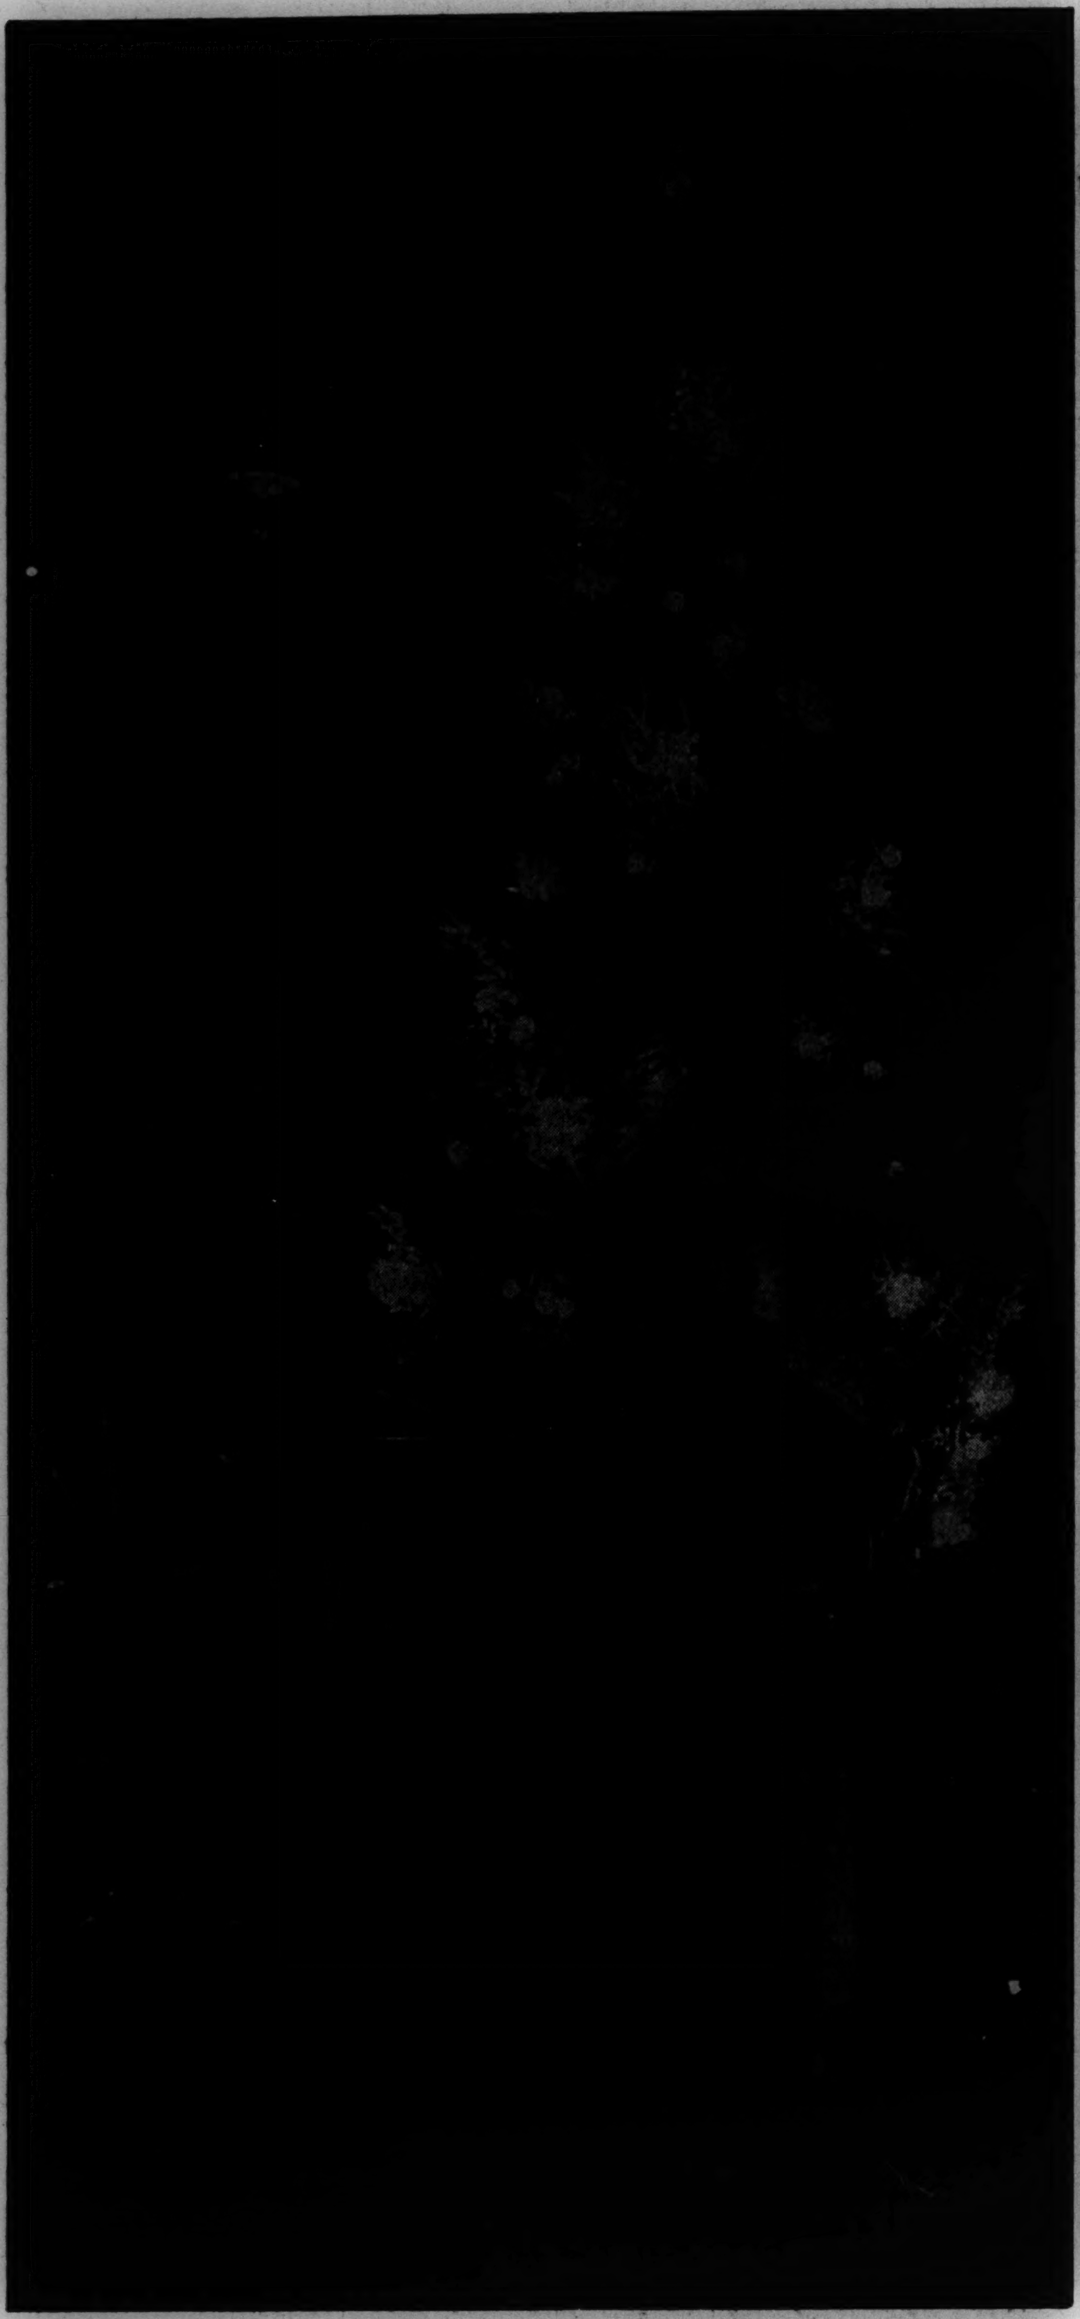
How the Thousands of Soldiers and Sailors from Chicago Are Celebrating Christmas at Their Posts



Private Louis F. Poss of Chicago on duty at Fort Sheridan, one of the camps where big Christmas parties are being held because the war has canceled or shortened furloughs.

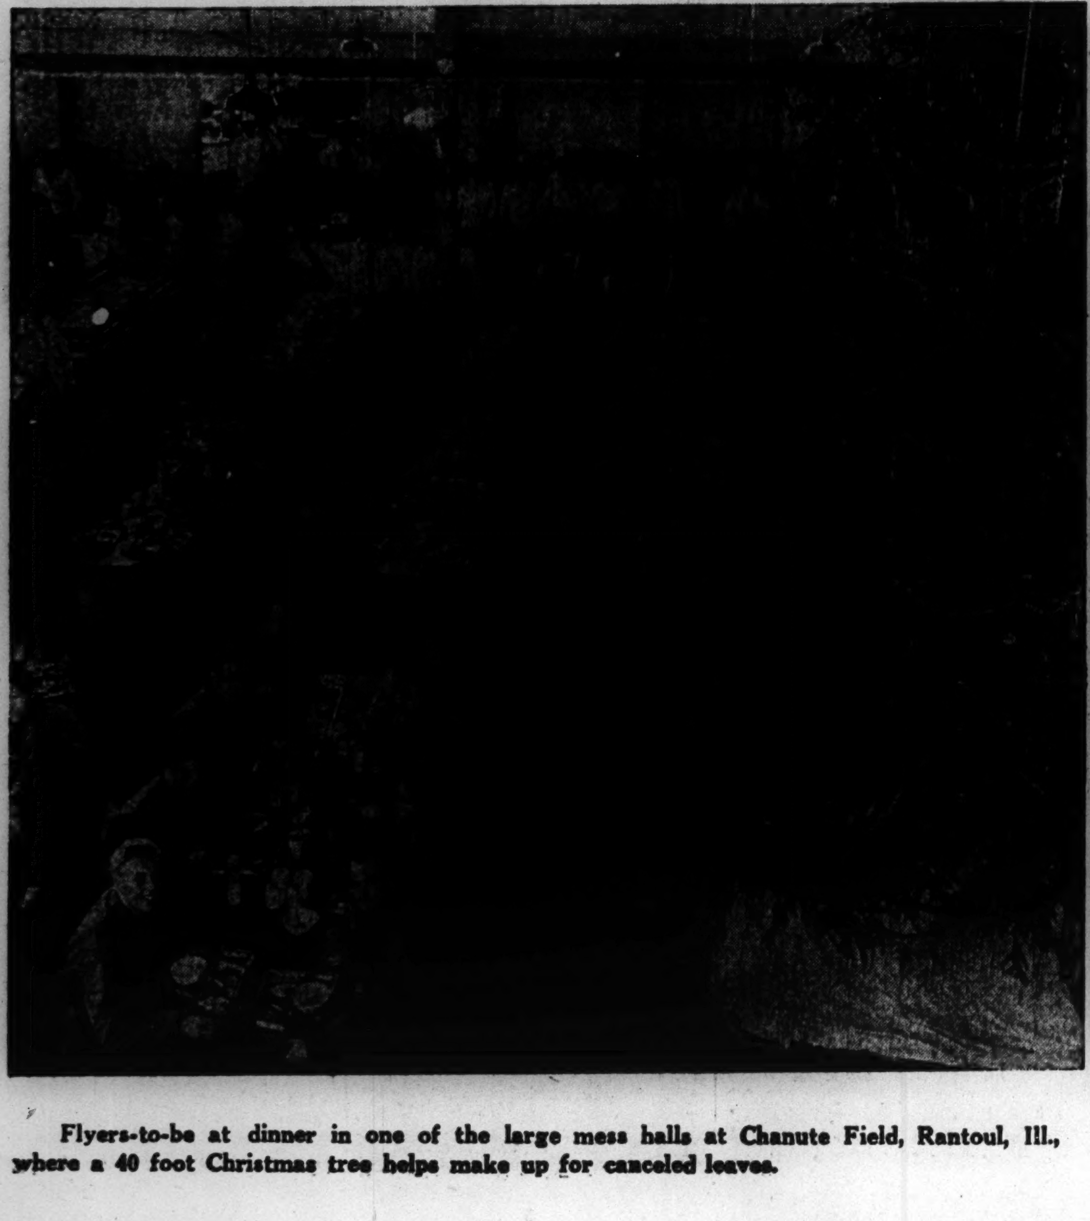
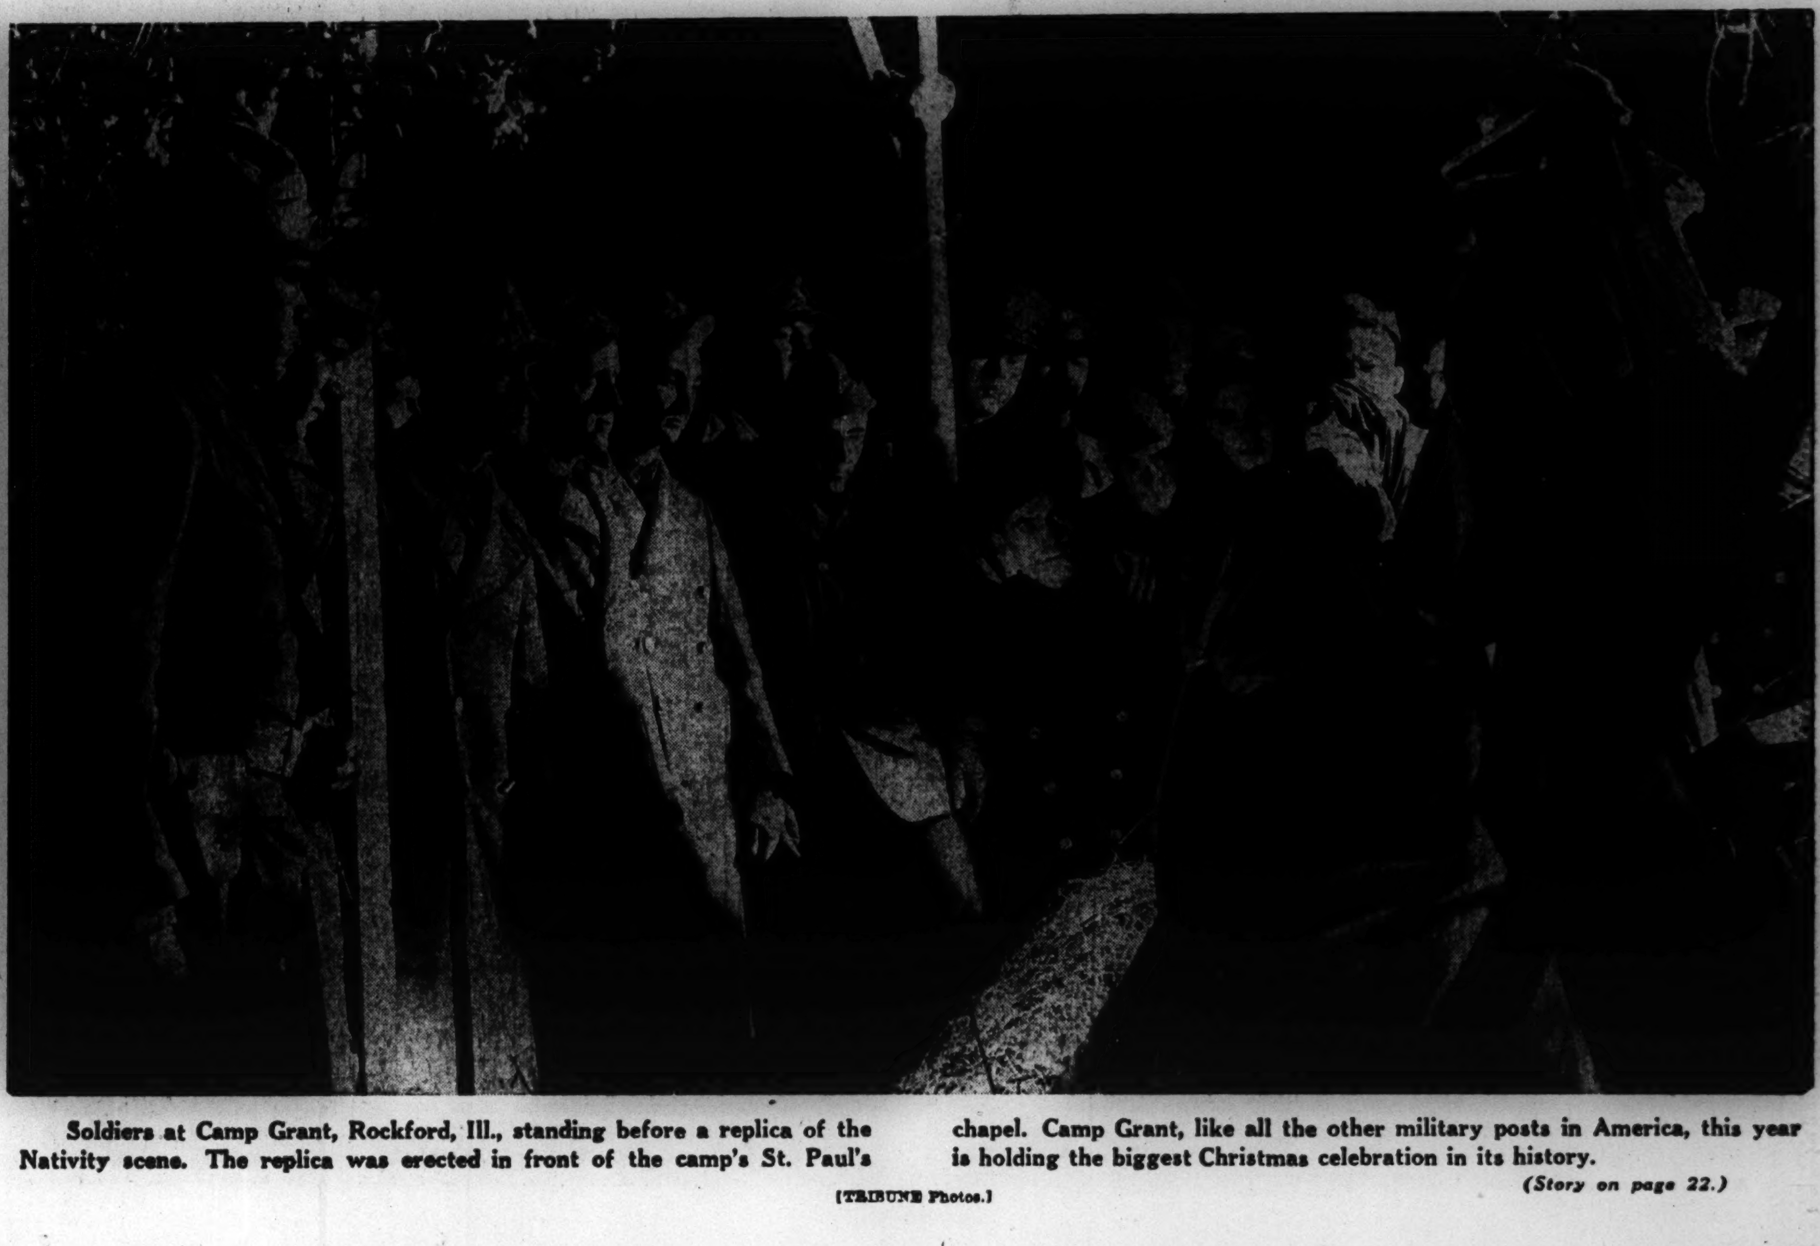
Soldiers from Chicago singing Christmas carols in a Service club center at Fort Custer, near Battle Creek, Mich.

One of the companies of infantry at Camp Forrest, Tenn., where many Chicagoans are spending the holiday at their posts, conducted this gift exchange.



Flyers-to-be at dinner in one of the large mess halls at Chanute Field, Rantoul, Ill., where a 40 foot Christmas tree helps make up for canceled leaves.



Soldiers at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., standing before a replica of the Nativity scene. The replica was erected in front of the camp's St. Paul's chapel. Camp Grant, like all the other military posts in America, this year is holding the biggest Christmas celebration in its history.
